No Rails In B.C.

Times News Services

The majority of some 7,000 British Columbia railway workers defied a parliamentary order for the third straight day today by remaining off the job.

In other parts of Canada trains rolled and East Coast ferries went back into service during the weekend as 11 Canadian railways moved to clear a backlog of passengers and freight after a month of regional strike action and the nine-day national shutdown.

The order providing a minimum 8.25 per cent wage increase went into effect at 12:01 a.m. Sunday but the two national railways reported their B.C. operations were still tied up.

"You don't hear any train whistle, do you?" railway union leaders remarked early today.

Instead of going to work, members of the running trades and the shop crafts were scheduled to attend mass meetings today at Nanaimo, New Westminster, Revelstoke and Cranbrook.

In Victoria today, Roy Head, spokesman for one of the unions, said members were giving negotiators 30 days to come up with a decent contract "or there will be another strike."

About 100 members locally of the Brotherhood of Rail and Airline Clerks went back to work at midnight Monday "but they're very, very unhappy. It wouldn't take much to get them off work again."

Head said members are at the point now of saying, "to hell with it, we'll go to jail."

Resistance of members of the non-operating unions broke down at Prince Rupert where workers returned to the job Monday night but trains still were unable to operate without the running trades, including the enginemen, or the shop crafts who include machinists.

Crews were back at Kamloops but none at Nelson, Cranbrook or Revelstoke, CP Rail reported.

There was no yard staff at CP Rail's big Coquitlam yard but almost 50 per cent of the yard staff was back in Vancouver waiting to move trains that could not move without enginemen.

A CNR spokesman said passenger service has resumed operations on the northern line to Prince Rupert.

There was no other passenger service anywhere in B.C.

The regular eastbound train was scheduled to leave Prince Rupert today, and a westbound passenger train left Jasper for Prince Rupert.

Angry yardmen in Calgary have also defied the back-to-work legislation and their union leader says he cannot say when they will return.

"The men were absolutely adamant they weren't going back at midnight Labor Day — of all bloody days to order us back," Phil Burke local chairman of the United Transportation Workers, said today.

In New Westminster about 1,000 non-ops unanimously approved a resolution Monday that unions in the Greater Vancouver area remain off the job until a new contract is negotiated and approved.

Roger Butler, president of a joint council of non-ops in New Westminster, told reporters after the vote the resolution ordered national negotiators to bargain for better contracts or resign.

"We didn't get anything that we were promised by our union officials. They sat back and let Parliament take over and it took the onus off them."

Cholera Ravages Spread

Times News Services

ROME — Cholera tightened its grip on Italy today, taking its 15th victim and spreading to northern Italy.

Various countries have taken precautionary measures to prevent its spread as one case has already been report*ed in West Germany.*

The outbreak began in Naples and spread to Rome and Sardinia before reaching northern Italy.

Naples hospital authorities announced the death of a 51-year-old man, bringing the city's death toll to 10.

In Rome, the health authorities announced a second cholera case Monday night.

Health authorities in Pia*cenza, southeast of Milan,* reported that a 31-year-old woman, who had recently travelled in the Middle East, has contracted cholera.

She was the first reported case in northern Italy.

So far 15 countries including Canada have announced that vaccination certificates must be carried by travellers from Italy.

Many countries have also urged people visiting Italy to be inoculated against cholera.

Cancellations are pouring in from foreigners who had planned holidays in Italy.

The Italian health ministry has blamed infected shellfish imported illicitly to Naples from North Africa for the cho*lera.*

There now is a virtual country-wide ban on the sale of mussels and other shellfish.

Italians, meanwhile, continued to line up at vaccination centres, particularly in the south, but there were no panic scenes like those of last week.

Joint Oil Strategy Pledge

CAIRO (WP) — King Faisal of Saudi Arabia has delivered a pledge to Egypt's President Anwar Sadat to restrict oil production increases to the level of 10 per cent annually by the end of the year, if U.S. policy in the Middle east does not change, according to responsible Egyptian and foreign sources.

The pledge, given to Sadat during his secret trip to Saudi Arabia last weekend, evidently signals fundamental policy changes for both Sadat and Faisal, and is part of a significant shift in political alignments within the Arab world now taking place.

The realignment, with Egypt looking toward the oil-producing lands of the Arabi*an Peninsula for help with a* long-term strategy that will emphasize Arab political and economic pressure against Israel rather than war, was underscored by the limited steps taken to implement the merger between Libya and Egypt which came into effect Sunday.

Sadat's normally outspoken partner in the proposed merger, Col. Muammar Khadafy, *has been silent since return*ing to Tripoli Wednesday night after reluctantly agreeing to a declaration of unity that fell far short of the instant total fusion of the two Arab states that the stridently-hawkish young Libyan wanted.

Libya nationalized 51 per cent of the holdings of all foreign oil companies Saturday.

The decree affects the Amo*seas Oil Co.,* jointly owned by Texaco and Standard Oil of California, as well as all other companies operating in Libya, including Esso Standard and Royal Dutch Shell.

Sadat's turn to the oil-rich king instead of to the oil-rich colonel suddenly makes Faisal the key figure in the Arab confrontation with Israel, and moves Egypt still further

Milk, Bread Subsidies Gas Freeze Introduced

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberal government today introduced higher subsidies for bread and milk and imposed a petroleum price freeze until Jan. 30.

Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons Tuesday that the oil industry will be asked to stop all further price increases until the Jan. 30 date. The freeze would apply in all cases except where the energy minister decided the *"increase in the cost of im*ported crude oil warrants a Canadian price increase."

*Imported crude supplies Ca*nadian needs east of the Ottawa Valley.

*Mr. Trudeau said the gov*ernment will also seek "a control mechanism" by which increases in U.S. prices will not automatically push prices higher in Canada.

"An export tax or a national oil marketing board are *two possible control mecha*nisms," Mr. Trudeau said in language that appeared to be taken directly from the energy policy paper released last June.

Besides the petroleum freeze of interest to all motorists and homeowners using oil for fuel, there were these consumer oriented provisions:

Subsidies payed to domestic millers will be increased to $1.25 from $1 a bushel and the consumer price of milk will be subsidized to the extent of five cents a quarter in any province where the marketing board guarantees prices will not be increased during the next year.

The government also in*tends to implement a raise in* family allowances averaging $12 a month beginning next month and the increase won't be subject to income tax.

Another increase would begin in January, raising family allowances to an average of $20 a month from the current level of $7.21.

In Toronto radio station CFTR says the federal government several weeks ago ordered the printing of millions of ration stamps from a large Toronto firm.

The station says the firm's employees were given the job of running off material on three-colored paper. Then the firm's supervisors were called in to add the printing.

The station says what finally developed were Canadian ration stamps to be used in conjunction with possible introduction of wage and price controls.

Trudeau announced three weeks ago the government was going to escalate old-age pensions and the guaranteed *income supplement on a quar*terly basis according to the increase in the Consumer Price Index, instead of basing it on the annual rate of in*crease. There was no word* of this today.

Both the Conservative and New Democratic Party opposition have been pressing for a full debate on inflation and particularly on rising food costs.

New Democrats, following a two-day caucus two weeks ago, once again threatened to withdraw support from the minority government if the Liberals failed to take steps in four living cost areas.

They included moves to toughen the food prices review board, subsidize basic *food products, force down in*terest rates and help people on fixed incomes.

Observers suggest, however, that the New Democrats will be sufficiently placated if the government moves to act on pensions and allowances. NDP Leader David Lewis has maintained throughout that the party is more interested in working for progressive social legislation than in toppling the government.

As a result, the government may move shortly afer the pension and allowance debates to suspended discussion on a bill that would extend a partial ban on capital punishment for another five years.

Government House Leader Allan MacEachen has denied that the government has set any time limits on the probable inflation debate, describing as false reports that the government would once again recess Parliament if such a debate ended within two weeks. If not, the reports said, the government would move on to other subjects, thus preventing another recess until the normal Christmas break or an election call.

DOPE CHECK AT BLAINE CAUSES JAM

BLAINE, Wash. (AP) — A line of vehicles estimated at several miles long jammed the United States-Canada boder crossing here Sunday and Monday as Labor Day travellers returned to the U.S.

U.S. customs and immigrations agents said they were checking from 300 to 400 cars an hour for liquor, marijuana and other items.

Authorities said they were finding some illegal items in the searches framed by the International Peace Arch, the border-straddling symbol of friendship between the two nations.

Up-Island Prison Hit By Riot

Two prison guards were overpowered at knife-point early Monday at the Snowden prison camp near Campbell River.

In the following 80 minutes, before RCMP were notified, four prisoners escaped and the others rioted causing extensive damage to buildings and property.

Two of the inmates are still at large and two were apprehended soon after the riot.

Police are seeking Brian George Angus, 25, and John Arthur Heffernen, 29, who escaped in a car stolen from one of the camp guards.

*Prison guards said the dis*turbance began at about 1 a.m. when they were forced at knife point into a solitary confinement unit by a group of prisoners.

While the guards were confined, extensive damage took place at the camp.

Offices, kitchen cupboards, storehouses and files were broken into. The camp flag pole was cut down. A fire ex*tinguisher was turned on in* the kitchen.

Car tires were slashed.

The main office of the camp was knocked off its foundation and the gate of the camp was run down by a fleeing truck.

Campbell River RCMP were called to the camp at 2:20 a.m. by prison officials. On the way to the camp, police stopped a prison truck allegedly stolen by Robert Clifford Sherlock, 20, and Daniel Michael Wright, 20, who were prisoners at the camp. Sherlock and Wright have been charged with being unlawfully at large and with possession of a stolen vehicle.

Arriving at the camp, RCMP found all prisoners in their living quarters but at a 4 a.m. roll call Angus and Heffernen were missing.

Police said Angus and Hef*fernen probably left the area* before the RCMP were alerted. The car in which they left was a 1971 gold Plymouth, with licence number RGE 490.

There are 52 prisoners at the camp, part of the provincial corrections system. Police said they did not know how many of the prisoners in all took part in the disturbance.

When asked about the situation, an RCMP spokesman said: "I'd call it a disturbance rather than a riot."

Meanwhile, Colwood RCMP and officials of William Head prison are baffled by the disappearance of inmate Reginald Alexander Genereaux, 41, who was reported missing Sunday following a prisoner count at 6:30 p.m.

He had been seen four hours earlier walking towards the end of the William Head spit and carrying a fishing rod and radio.

Institution director Gamaliel Milner said a search was made Monday of the shore*line. The search continued* today.

Colwood RCMP Sgt. Ted Foster said there are no clues as to where Genereaux might have gone. He said there have been no reports of stolen vehicles in the area and assumed the man either walked away or hitched a ride.

According to police, Genereaux, who was serving an indeterminate sentence as a dangerous sexual offender since 1965, was recently refused an application for parole. Foster speculated this may have had some bearing on his disappearance.

NEWS BRIEFS

Cash Talks Set

PARIS (UPI) — Financial experts from 20 leading Western nations arrived in Paris Tuesday for talks on restructuring the world money system. Conference sources said the experts were optimistic of their chances of success because of the recent stabilization of the U.S. dollar on international money markets.

Fun for Surfers

GALVESTON, Tex. (UPI) — Daredevil surfers took advantage Monday of the high waves whipped up in advance of tropical storm Delia, but Labor Day vacationers and coastal residents fled the beachfronts today as the storm bore down on the Texas coast.

Battle Rages

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Reinforced defenders of Kompong Cham battled Khmer Rouge insurgents today on two sides of the beseiged Cambodian provincial capital whose garrison is a potential threat to the insurgents' supply lines from North Vietnam.

Workers Locked-In

YORKTON, Sask. (CP) — Some employees of the Morris R. Weeder Co. barricaded themselves inside the plant for the second day today, vowing that they won't come out until their dispute with the company is settled.

Tokyo: A City on the Verge of Total Collapse

TOKYO (Reuter) — A total collapse of city life is predicted for Japan if current migration to urban areas continues unabated for another decade.

The government's economic planning agency has urged emergency measures to prevent further population concentration.

And, with Tokyo nearing the bursting point, it has strongly recommended the government consider moving the national capital elsewhere.

Unless something is done, the agency said, living conditions in 1985 are "likely to be very miserable."

The housing shortage will become more acute, pollution will get worse, traffic jams will be monumental, garbage will pile up in the streets with no way of disposal, and water will be in short supply, as it is now due to a prolonged drought.

The Tokyo sprawl has reached out from the original 23 wards of the metropolitan area into three surrounding prefectures, swallowing up former satellite towns.

The agency said this Tokyo monster will probably have a population of 38 million by 1985 — 31 per cent of the national total — if the present rate of urban migration continues.

It studied three urban conglomerations — Tokyo and the two western Japanese concentrations around Nagoya and Osaka, now virtually joined.

The agency found 43.9 per cent of Japan's estimated 105 million people are concentrated in the three areas.

It expects this percentage to increase to 56 per cent — about 68.6 million people — by 1985.

The demand for public utilities, housing, schools and transportation imposed by that mass of people would exceed capability and contribute to the collapse of city life.

The agency said a decent living standard could only be guaranteed if the population inflow to the three areas is not only stopped but reversed.

One suggestion is to transfer institutions of higher learning to the countryside to draw away the young people who are the main migrants from rural areas.

Another is a revival of the idea that the government move to a new location.

The economic planning agency study is part of a review of an over-all national development plan formulated in 1969.

Some experts say this ambitious plan to turn Japan in the world's most closely-knit economic society has run into trouble because the government seriously underestimated the growth rate.

It also ran into problems from a public suddenly aware of the deteriorating environment, and opposed as a result to some of the industrial expansion plans.

No Drop Seen in Grain Prices

LONDON (AP) — A record world grain harvest is predicted this year. But experts say grain prices will continue to rise because of soaring demand.

The results will be seen in prices for bread and cookies. Meat is likely to stay high also, because grains feed the animals that produce the meat.

The paradox of record production at the same time as increasing prices—and a drop in world grain stocks—is due to a "strong, unabated world demand" for wheat, the International Wheat Council reports.

The United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization warns that import demands can be expected to go still higher in coming years.

In an effort to do something about the situation, the organization has called an urgent meeting in Rome Sept. 20 for representatives of the world's major wheat exporting countries, including Canada.

Unless exportable stocks are increased, the organization says, the world's developing countries will be particularly hard hit. These comparatively poor countries, with an insatiable demand for grain to build up food and feeding stocks, account for about 50 per cent of world wheat imports.

Increasing costs, which the wheat council calls unprecedented, may seriously disrupt the economies of the developing countries and put a pinch on pocketbooks in the rest of the world.

The situation where more wheat is being grown but more people are demanding it has led to a serious drop in world stocks, to what the council describes as the critical level of 23 million tons estimated for the 1973-74 crop year.

The Soviet Union's record wheat purchases in 1972 were an important factor in depleting world stocks and sending prices up, the UN food organization says. The Soviets, who used to be exporters, have bought about nine million tons of wheat and 18 million tons of course grain in the last 18 months, officials in London report.

Soviet leaders are counting on a record grain harvest this year. But Moscow reports it is unlikely to reach the target of 197.4 million tons of grain, so more purchases may be necessary.

Saanich Winter Programs

Saanich's Cedar Hill Community Centre, opened at 3220 Cedar Hill in June, starts its first winter program of activities Sept. 17.

Program supervisor Marie Bradshaw says the program has been planned to attract all ages and she's particularly hopeful that elderly citizens in the area, such as the residents of the Kiwanis Villa, will make full use of the centre's facilities.

"The trick is getting the people to use them, or else they'll really be white elephant tax burdens," she said, referring to the Cedar Hill and Gordon Head centres.

Both centres are now taking registrations for various classes.

Among the programs for which no registration is needed are sessions of bridge, whist and cribbage and a tea hour every Tuesday from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. and Thursdays from 10 a.m. to noon.

Another is the open gym nights for teens in which they can play basketball, volleyball, floor hockey or badminton.

Both of these programs cost 25 cents a session at the Cedar Hill Centre.

The one-to-three-year-old group is catered for with a playtime program at both centres. The Cedar Hill's program is each Tuesday from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. and the Gordon Head program from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. each Friday.

At these times the children's mothers will be able to take part in programs of their own, the combined charge for child and parent being $8.50 for 12 sessions.

The Gordon Head centre is offering a combined program for senior girls and women on Mondays, starting with tap dancing from 7 to 7:45 p.m., followed by a swimming session from 7:45 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

Other interesting programs run the gamut from puppetry and drama to ballet and ballroom dancing, and Latin American dancing.

More details on the programs can be obtained by phoning the Cedar Hill centre at 384-4148 and the Gordon Head centre at 477-1871.

$715,000 GEM THEFT

AMSTERDAM (Reuter) — Dutch police set up a dragnet today for four men who escaped with jewellery worth about $715,000 in a daylight raid on an Amsterdam diamond dealer.

The Netherlands Association of Diamond Dealers, meanwhile, offered what it described as "an incredibly high reward" for the recovery of the jewels. A spokesman said the exact sum would depend on the value of the stones returned.

Chief Inspector Hans Hock of the armed raids section of the Amsterdam police described the raid Sunday as "expert, really professional."

The four being sought are three dark-skinned men believed to be Arabs and a fourth man described as "an English type."

Their ages are put at between 40 and 45.

The raiders entered the show room of Streeps diamond firm in Amsterdam, which is open on Sundays, and asked to see stones. One of the men said he had to fetch his glasses to look at the stones, but came back with two guns and a hand grenade.

away from resuming war with Israel.

Comments by Egyptian officials close to Sadat last week indicated that his secret trip to Saudi Arabia just before the Libyan merger was consummated reflected a firm option for a long-term political strategy based on Saudi Arabia's ability to pressure the United States into peace moves through oil production and revenue.

Faisal reportedly indicated to Sadat that he felt Qatar and Abu Dhabi would follow a Saudi decision to limit production rather than approve the more than 20 per cent annual increase U.S. oil companies say will be needed to cope with the energy crisis.

Saudi Arabia is currently the world's largest exporter of crude petroleum.

Sadat visited Qatar last week, and the Emir of Kuwait, the other major oil producer on the Arabian peninsula, arrived here Sunday. Kuwait has already frozen its oil production at 1971 levels for conservation and economic reasons.

At the same time, Sadat has taken another giant step away from the legacy of Gamal Abdel Nasser, whose shadow Sadat has lived in since the late Egyptian president died three years ago.

Sadat has invited Saudi Arabia and other traditionally ruled oil-producing states of the Arabian peninsula to finance the complete overhaul of Egypt's faltering socialist economy.

Restrictions on foreign capital and on local businessmen are being rapidly discarded in an "economic opening up" clearly designed to attract the Arab and foreign investors who feared Nasser's large scale nationalization a decade ago.

Oil Sands Extension

EDMONTON (CP) — The deadline by which Syncrude Canada Ltd. has to decide on its proposed extraction plant for the Athabasca oil sands has been extended to Sept. 17.

Bill Dickie, Alberta minister of mines and minerals, said the extension was by mutual agreement of the province and the company.

Syncrude's $800 million plant would be the largest capital project undertaken in the province. It would produce 125,000 barrels a day of synthetic crude oil from the sands, near Fort McMurray, about 225 miles northeast of Edmonton.

The deadline was originally set at Aug. 31 when the province informed Syncrude 18 months ago that several criteria had to be met before plant could be started.

These included royalties, investment opportunities for Albertans, maximum use of local and Alberta labor, environmental safeguards and use of Canadian materials.

Dickie refused to indicate what points were still unsettled. It was better to wait until "we have the signed agreement" before making disclosures.

He cautioned against making inferences from his words and declined to speculate on chances the project would proceed.

Premier Peter Lougheed earlier scheduled a television appearance for Sept. 18, the day after the Syncrude deadline, apparently to announce a new policy covering oil sands developments. However, the province has indicated the policy will not apply to Syncrude.

Syncrude is the operating company formed in 1964 by Imperial Oil Limited, Cities Service Ltd., Atlantic Richfield Canada Ltd. and Gulf Oil Canada Limited. The four are all controlled by United States-based parent firms.

A LONG COFFEE BREAK

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's opposition Labor Party has signed a new pay agreement with its headquarters staff that includes a free cup of coffee every morning and a free cup of tea every afternoon.

But the agreement is retroactive to May 1, which means the 100 staff members have more than 18,000 cups of coffee or tea coming.

Officials have ruled out ordering every employee to drink doubles for the next four months, making the award good in cash or not awarding the back coffee or tea at all.

"We think the best thing is to leave it to the staff to sort out among themselves," said a headquarters spokesman.

OILERS EYE TWINS

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Oilers of the World Hockey Association are seeking affiliation with Winston Salem Polar Twins of the Southern League.

5c MORE FOR BREAD?

TORONTO (CP) — Consumers face a further five-cent increase in bread prices next month, a spokesman for the bakery industry said Monday.

This follows a six-cent hike in Victoria and other areas in the price of bread in the last few days.

"If the government doesn't take action to hold down the price of wheat to its Aug. 1 levels, there will be a further increase on Oct. 1." said Peter Wygant of the Bakery Council of Canada.

Wygant urged a freeze of wheat prices "at least as a temporary measure to give the government time to work out some system."

IRA Rift Widens, Says U.K.

B.C. TEL PICKETS

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Members of the British Columbia Federation of Telephone Workers, who are on strike against the Okanagan Telephone Company, today threw up a picket line around B.C. Tel facilities here.

Union members employed by B.C. Tel refused to cross the picket line and supervisory personnel took over here. Some 500 members of the telephone workers union are on strike against Okanagan telephones in Vernon, Penticton and Kelowna.

Times News Services

BELFAST — British army intelligence sources said today it is "only a matter of time" before rival factions of the outlawed Irish Republican Army turn their guns on each other.

The feud, they said, has turned the IRA into the army's best informer.

IRA sources said that the militant Provisional Wing of the organization and the more moderate Official Wing held fence-mending meetings over the weekend and arranged a truce to end their recent spat.

But army intelligence sources today predicted the truce won't last long.

"If there really has been any truce, it won't last," said one source.

"Certainly for the moment the IRA's guns have been turned away from us. It seems only a matter of time before they start using them in earnest against each other."

A British army spokesman said the Provisional-Official feud had turned the IRA into the army's best informers.

He credited tip-offs from IRA informers to a sudden increase in arms cashes discovered by the army and the arrest of more than 100 IRA suspects in recent weeks.

During the same period, he said, IRA gunmen have assassinated two IRA men of rival factions and shot more than a dozen in the kneecaps — a traditional form of IRA punishment.

British intelligence sources attributed the feud to elements of the IRA using their positions to engage in common crime.

"This is particularly prevalent among the Provisionals, whose followers have been transforming their activities into straight protection rackets at a startling rate," he said.

"They are beginning to look more like the Mafia than Irish Republicans in Catholic areas."

Meanwhile, London police said today that criminals bent on "an act of revenge" were responsible for a bomb which exploded at a police station in West Ham, injuring three offices.

The police said the bomb did not appear to be part of a terror campaign, blamed on the IRA, which has turned up dozens of bombs here and abroad.

The incidents included the discovery or explosion of bombs in London and Birmingham and strikes at British embassies in Washington and Paris.

The latest IRA-type bomb was found by two boys in an office doorway on the outskirts of Birmingham early today.

It was defused by police after the youngsters carried it to a sandbox and called police.

Allende: A New Threat

SANTIAGO (Reuter) — President Salvador Allende of Chile celebrates the third anniversary today of his election victory amid the worst social and economic chaos since he took office.

A new challenge to his authority came Monday night when leaders of the country's 120,000 white-collar workers and professionals called an indefinite national strike.

Spokesmen said they are going on strike in support of truck owners who pulled their vehicles off the roads June 27, and until the government modifies its policies.

The professional workers are grouped in an organization called the Sole Confederation of Chilean Professionals.

This unites such groups as doctors, lawyers, engineers, architects and airline pilots.

Flights of Chile's international airline, Lan-Chile, are expected to be affected immediately.

The move by the professionals came just at a time when the government appeared confident it was breaking the back of the truck owners' stoppage.

Interior Minister Carlos Brione said recently that less than half the 48,000 vehicles originally involved were still strikebound and that the country could get along without them.

The new stoppage will further polarize a country bitterly divided between leftist workers and the bulk of the middle class and add extra tension to demonstrations planned to celebrate today's anniversary.

HARMAC MEN STILL OUT

NANAIMO (CP) — The MacMillan Bloedel pulp mill at Harmac near Nanaimo remained shut today as labor and management prepared to resume their battle in British Columbia Supreme Court.

A 72-hour strike notice by Local 8 of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada elapsed and about 1,000 men stayed away from work, although no picket lines went up.

The men have been striking since last Tuesday to protest the suspension of an employee. They remained off the job after a Friday ruling by the Labor Relations Board ordering them to halt disruptive job action.

The company sought a Supreme Court injunction Friday restraining the union from continuing the allegedly unlawful strike or picketing the mill, but the case was adjourned until today for completion of argument.

Mill manager Gordon Woram said today the strike is illegal because the union hasn't given proper notice of contract termination.

He said the contract stipulates the union must give 10 days' notice of contract termination and that it was given only on Friday.

Although the contract ends June 30 it is still a legal document until properly terminated, he said.

Home Work But No Homework

Lonely expanse of an empty home economics room greeted Grade 12 student Penny Du Temple, 2158 Mt. Newton Crossroad, when she came to register today at the new Parkland secondary school in Sidney. School still lacks much-needed equipment because rail strikes have delayed deliveries, so students will work at home this week.

WINES, BRANDIES INCREASE AT LCB

Price increases for 18 varieties of imported wines and brandies went into effect today at liquor outlets throughout the province.

One of the largest increases was for a bottle of imported Cabernet Merlot, a still red wine, which took a jump of $1.95 per bottle frrom $2.45 to $4.40.

There was also a $14 increase in the price of the already-expensive Remy Martin cognac, formerly priced at $54.70 per bottle, but now priced at $68.70.

Another brandy to shoot up was Denis Mounie cognac, which sells now for $11.85 per bottle, $2.60 more than its former price.

Other increases took effect for three types of Gonzalez sherry and for assorted varieties of vermouth, still red wines, still whites and sparkling whites.

Price increases are attributed by Liquor Board spokesmen to higher prices charged by manufacturers and less advantageous rates of exchange for the Canadian dollar on the international money market.

Now to Find a Better Way

Although most of the railways are once more operating after nearly two weeks of coast-to-coast chaos, Parliament should not consider the job of settlement completed. The agreements, when finalized by an official arbitrator, will hold for only two years, when the same predicament could again be precipitated. Now is the time to begin work on a better system of negotiation than the "loggerheads" type of confrontation, when unions go into the talks with the strike weapon already poised and management looks to parliament and a subsidy to extricate it from trouble.

The parliamentary debate, aside from achieving a temporary compromise to halt the railway stalemate, had another promising aspect. Labor Minister Munro followed up various comments by members of Parliament by announcing that the government will co-operate with management and labor to conduct a special study with the object of working out new techniques which would reduce the propensity of rail workers to strike.

One easy way, of course, would be to give them everything they asked the first time round, but that would hardly be an economic settlement. Transportation costs are an integral part of almost everything produced in Canada, and a strong inflationary trend in railway operations would quickly be felt throughout the economy. But that, of course, is no valid argument for setting railway wages at a level unfair in comparison with similar jobs in other industries.

There surely must be a fair level which is identifiable, and it should be within the ability of man to find it without wrecking the country's industrial structure in the process. Governments are understandably loath to ban strikes, but with adequate safeguards this could well be made a condition of employment in government-managed essential services. An agreed formula for setting wage levels could be worked out which would protect workers in such jobs from injustice. Even without barring strikes, a recognizably fair wage settlement system could be devised — granted some intelligent co-operation by both sides.

The latest disruption has cost the country as a whole many millions of dollars. A new workable system of settlements for the future would be a worthwhile gain from a situation that had no rational excuse.

Multiple Votes Not Cricket

In any civic election there are three classes of voters. The owner-elector owns property in the municipality and is automatically on the voters' list. Next comes the resident elector who is usually a tenant and must register at his municipal hall or various registration centres throughout the city. And finally there is the tenant-elector—a person or firm renting or owning business premises in the municipality.

Under municipal election laws a corporation or a business is a legal "person." In the case of a business not owned by a single person, the company officers appoint an authorized voting agent to exercize the franchise. But doctors and lawyers who have offices in the same municipality where they are resident electors can only vote once, as resident electors. And a person who runs two or three businesses, all of the same name, in one municipality can cast only one company vote covering all three enterprises.

It's a complex system which ensures that everybody receives a piece of the voting action. In practice, however, a few persons receive a larger piece than others. A person might be a resident of Victoria, for example, and at the same time rent or own three business establishments in the city as well. If his companies are registered under different names, yet remain under sole ownership, the businessman can appoint himself authorized voting agent for each company and cast four ballots in a civic election. Nor is this hypothetical. There are a number of such cases in Victoria.

The fact that one person can have two, three, four and even more votes in one municipality negates the principle of one-man-one-vote which is enshrined in centuries of British Common law. It is like saying one person is more equal than others. And that isn't cricket, even in Victoria.

HAROLD GREER

Spending Money to Make It

TORONTO — To be a big developer like Gerhard Moog, you have to have heart. When you spend millions on chancy projects and lose, you take your losses and smile.

Mr. Moog is president of Canada Square Corporation, which is developing Ontario Hydro's new head office building in Toronto, and he is all heart. Since the contract was signed last year, all sorts of "extras" have been added which will cost Mr. Moog some millions of dollars and Hydro not a cent.

Some of these extras have even been suggested by Canada Square and the result will almost certainly be, Mr. Moog has smilingly admitted, that the project will run over anticipated cost and Canada Square will lose money.

But that's the way the ball bounces and Mr. Moog isn't complaining. Ontario Hydro was promised a quality building and, hang the expense, Hydro is going to get it.

Exciting Concept

That at least is what Mr. Moog has told the legislative committee which is investigating his contract with Hydro. The committee is investigating partly because Mr. Moog is a close personal friend of Premier William Davis and Hydro officials went out of their way to see that Canada Square received the contract. But to hear Mr. Moog tell it, the fun of participating in a "very exciting" architectural concept will just about atone for all the money he's going to lose on it.

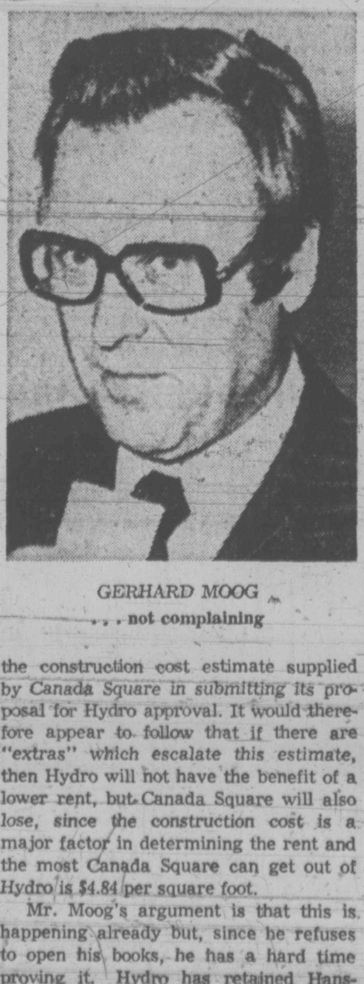
There will be, for example, extra substructure costs of $290,000 largely because of problems with a water storage tank. Site development is up $850,000 because of additional tunnelling. Exterior cladding has been improved to the extent of $389,000. Interior finishing will be almost $2 million instead of $1,609,000 largely because of a decision to put in three-dimensional ceilings, whatever that means. And so on.

None of this was in the contract specifications and none of it, Mr. Moog assured the committee, will be charged to Hydro. Canada Square will bear it all, and if that means losing money on the deal, the only thing Mr. Moog asks is that he be allowed to do so "quietly."

It was enough to make strong men weep — but not for long. Mr. Moog conceivably could lose money on his Hydro deal but his real problem at the moment is to convince the committee that he is not going to make a fortune. The committee is going to take some convincing because the contract between Canada Square and Hydro is such a complicated document that it appears, incredible though it may sound, that the more money Mr. Moog "loses," the more he makes.

Essentially the contract is a lease-purchase arrangement whereby Canada Square puts up the building and then leases it to Hydro for 30 years, after which Hydro owns it. A major provision of the contract is that Hydro's rent has a ceiling of $4.84 per square foot annually and this is reduced, according to a formula, if the project is found upon completion to have an appraised value of less than $44,400,000.

Now $44,400,000 is what you get by multiplying the square footage of the building by $34 a square foot, which is the construction cost estimate supplied by Canada Square in submitting its proposal for Hydro approval. It would therefore appear to follow that if there are "extras" which escalate this estimate, then Hydro will not have the benefit of a lower rent, but Canada Square will also lose, since the construction cost is a major factor in determining the rent and the most Canada Square can get out of Hydro is $4.84 per square foot.



GERHARD MOOG
. . . not complaining

Mr. Moog's argument is that this is happening already but, since he refuses to open his books, he has a hard time proving it. Hydro has retained Hanscomb Roy Associates, construction economists and quantity surveyors, to keep an eye on what's going into the building and their cost estimates to date suggest that Canada Square's original calculation of $34 per square foot for construction costs was, shall we say, grossly inflated.

Hanscomb Roy's latest estimate, which includes some $2,000,000 for "extras" since the contract was signed and $2,000,000 for "contingencies," is that the project will cost $37,499,000 to build, exclusive of interim financing costs and professional fees. Mr. Moog did not seriously dispute this figure and agreed that the total cost, once financing and professional fees are added in, would be of the order of $44.4 millions. This is Canada Square's original estimate, but the point is that it contains "extras" and "contingencies" not originally included, to the tune of some $4 millions.

But why would a developer be so willing to add improvements at his own expense? The answer lies in the "appraised value" which is to be made when the building is up. This, it may be noted, will not be the actual construction cost: indeed, there is considerable dispute as to just what the phrase does mean. From Mr. Moog's point of view, however, it means that if the appraiser concludes the building is worth at least $44.4 millions, he will not have to reduce Hydro's rent.

Cost No Concern

Within certain limits, it does not matter to Canada Square how high the cost soars. The cost will be covered by the mortgage, which will be included in Hydro's rent. But if the appraised value is less than anticipated, the rent will reduce and Mr. Moog will receive substantially less income over a 30-year lease than he otherwise would. There is a certain incentive for Mr. Moog, therefore, to make sure that his building hits $44.4 millions, or $34 a square foot.

Ironically, Canada Square's submission of $34 was considerably higher than the estimates of competing developers and the source of some embarrassment to Hydro officials who had to submit it to the Hydro Commission for approval. On the day before this happened, Mr. Moog met with Hydro architect K. H. Candy and then composed a memorandum. It read in part:

"It was agreed that we iron out the $34 per sq. ft. question in principle . . . but we would not finalize the language at this moment to avoid questioning by the Commission in tomorrow's meeting."

Mr. Candy has denied making any such agreement.

FRANK RUTTER

Can Canada Find a Place?

WASHINGTON—Although the phrasemakers call it "The Year of Europe" for U.S. foreign policy, Canada will be vitally concerned in the development and outcome of negotiations now being launched by the Nixon government.

President Richard Nixon and his newly nominated Secretary of State, Henry Kissinger, are giving top priority to a long-promised reassessment of relations with the Europeans. The preliminary manoeuvres in Washington and in European capitals are being closely watched by Canada.

There are two major reasons for speculating about what might turn into "the year of Europe plus Canada."

The first is the anticipated influence of Kissinger, whose tendency is to play global politics rather than restrict his view to bilateral specifics. The second is that Canada is very closely linked both to the U.S. and to Europe through security and economic ties.

As a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, Canada will be affected by any change on either side of the ocean in the terms or operation of NATO.

Effects on Us

The expansion of the Common Market in Europe and the domestic problems of the U.S. are already having a considerable effect on the Canadian economy. Canada has to reassess its traditional economic relationships with Britain and France as well as coping with the continuing difficulties of living next door to its number one trade customer.

There is already evidence that Europe itself is not reading the same calendar as Kissinger and Nixon.

The president has not changed plans to visit European capitals in October and Kissinger may be sent as an advance man at an earlier date. But it is being suggested that many European leaders would prefer their "year" to start in 1974 and that it would be better if Nixon postponed his grand tour.

One factor is the president's Watergate-stained image and some continuing uncertainty of the outcome of investigations into the scandal. But there is also some dismay about suggestions for a "new Atlantic charter" made by Kissinger last April and followed up with some tentative proposals on how to draft it.

According to reports from London, the proposals included a demand for greater financial contributions by Europe toward the maintenance of the U.S. military presence there and some commitments on trade and monetary policy.

But some diplomats here suggest that there are no specific proposals and that the U.S. has merely asked the Europeans what they would like to negotiate. They say that the European leaders have been unable to get together on some of the issues. The position may be clarified soon when Common Market foreign ministers meet in Copenhagen.

Canada is anxious to receive information from both sides and to be consulted on issues which are bound to affect its economic and defence policies.

HENRY KISSINGER
. . . does he know about us?

It is of importance to Canada to be counted in, so far as any proposals by the U.S. are concerned. It is also essential to know if the Europeans are prepared to recognize Canada's particular role, or whether they merely regard it as a hanger-on of the U.S.

There is a danger that if the U.S. comes up with a firm European package, the sort of neatly tied parcel that Nixon and Kissinger like to present wrapped up for posterity, that Canada could find itself prenegotiated—assigned a role that might be difficult to wriggle out of.

For instance, in order to offset the impact of the Common Market trade alliance, the U.S. could decide that Canada was to be part of a North American trade alliance.

The Europeans might heave a sigh of relief that their old friend was being "taken care of" and leave it at that. This would not go down very well with Canadian nationalists who are already extremely agitated about the extent of American control over Canada's economy. It would mean that Canada would become even more dependent on the enormous market pressures of the U.S. economy.

At the same time, there are pressures in Canada to reduce its NATO commitment which might aggravate the Americans more than the Europeans because there are signs in Washington of renewed concern about maintaining a security shield in the light of progress in Russian missile development.

Another possibility is that Canada could find itself left out altogether — its role ignored by both the Europeans and the U.S.

The avowed policy of the U.S. has been to consider international relationships multilaterally rather than bilaterally. This is fine so long as the multitude includes everyone. But it could have the effect of glossing over what Canadians certainly consider to be special relationships which they have previously counted on maintaining through bilateral approaches.

Remote Prospect

It is a remote prospect indeed that U.S. economic influences on Canada will be substantially lessened, whatever happens. But in order to protect itself, Canada may have to be somewhat more assertive during the reorganization-of-things that Nixon and Kissinger seek.

Economically, there are prospects for Canada to widen its interests beyond North America and Western Europe. It can look to the other members of the dwindling Commonwealth, to the Pacific and to eastern Europe.

In this connection it is significant that Canada has sharply increased its trade with Japan this summer.

One of the keys for Canada to ensure entry to the proceedings of the "year of Europe" will be the contact it is able to establish with Kissinger, or through lower levels to reach his office. In this respect the consolidation of command, with Kissinger running the state department as well as maintaining his position as White House adviser, should prove an advantage. Canada is more likely to know that its message is getting through where it counts and that its soundings of U.S. policy are accurate.

What is not yet known is how much attention, if any, Kissinger is prepared to devote to Canada's particular interests.

Editorial Correspondence

Arts Centre

I congratulate you for publishing the excellent article written by Mr. Paul Moss in your August 28 issue of the Times: "Regina Arts Centre Model For Victoria."

I wish that the subject would be kept alive by your excellent paper and staff so that we may hear positive reaction from the B.C. government and also from the mayor of our fair city. — R. Menzer, 360 Douglas St.

Campers

I would appreciate space in your paper to comment and give the other side in answer to a letter by Derrick Mallard, President, Citizens Assn. to Save the Environment.

Why single out campers and recreation vehicles? Re gas consumption — what about car racing, sports car clubs, small-plane clubs, pleasure boats, including water skiing and racing? Boats require very much more gas to operate than a camper does.

Re environment stresses — if he is referring to water, oil, electricity and pollution, well, an R.V. uses far less water and electricity and has less sewer disposal than either a motel room or a household. Also, it does not burn any oil, and huge quantities of furnace oil are consumed to heat large houses, often for only two people. Many R.V.s seen on the road are parked and lived in at a trailer park for most months out of a year, with one car in use. These people are saving water, oil, electricity and during a year I feel they consume less gas than a family that owns two cars and in many cases owns a boat too.

We have experienced both life styles: a family, owned our home and two cars, and now are full time trailerites, and there are many like us. So, when there is one rig on the road for a short time during a year, using less gas than some people with two cars and sometimes also a boat, and the camper is also saving water, oil, and electricity, please think again before saying we should be "prohibited." — Mrs. L. A. Tyler, 2300 Beacon Ave., Sidney, B.C.

From the Times of September 4, 1913

The last of the frame buildings on the south side of Fort Street between Douglas Street and Blanshard Street, remaining from a day when the street was narrow, is now to disappear. It belongs to the British America Trust company, which recently built adjacent, and is to be replaced by a building for the Western Lands Ltd., from the design of A. A. Cox of Vancouver. The cost will be $6,000. Other building permits issued include one for a dwelling on Bushby Street for James Atkins, at a cost of $1,800 and a dwelling on Metchosin Street for $3,000.

Whatever Became Of Bobby Fischer?

By PETER WORTHINGTON

Fischer and Spassky at Reykjavik

Almost a year has passed since Bobby Fischer "smashed the Russians" and became the first American to win the world championship —and the first "foreigner" to defeat the Soviets since World War II.

He also put chess on the map —made it popular among the masses. Ever since the Soviets have been fuming, determined to find a successor to Boris Spassky, the defeated champ who, by losing, became something of an unmentionable in the land where winning is a sign of ideological purity.

Before winning the title —and immediately after — Fischer had vowed he'd be a fighting champion, defending his title against any and all "providing the price is right." He wasn't going to be "like those lousy Commies," defending the championship once every three years.

And that — apart from a brief comedy act on Bob Hope's TV show — has been the last heard of Fischer.

He's rejected all offers to play and gone into apparent seclusion. He's not sought to profit from his fame. He's hardly the "money-grubbing capitalist" the Soviet propaganda loves to depict him as being.

* * *

In the esoteric world of international chess, the mystery of Fischer is intense: Will he compete again? Has he retired? How can he keep his game up without playing? Etc. For chess, contrary to prevailing myth, is a young man's game. It requires stamina, physical and mental fitness.

It was Spassky who pointed out after his defeat: "I had the feeling I lacked nerve, that I'd lost my stamina somewhere, that I was lacking in mental toughness." The Soviet press snidely agreed, saying that he was deficient in his "psychological" approach — that future Soviet chess grandmasters should exploit psychological warfare.

What Fischer did, however, was in a sense to crack the four minute mile. Since his victory other chess grandmasters have lost their awe of the Soviets. This year some surprises have occurred in international chess.

Two interzonal tournaments — one in Leningrad and the other in Brazil, have been held to determine challengers who will now play off to see who meets the champ in 1975.

The most exciting of these contenders is the winner of the recent interzonal tournament — Henrique Mecking of Brazil, a 21-year-old phenomenon who, mercy's above, seems like another Bobby Fischer. He exudes temperament and talent; he is a karate and judo expert; and he sounds like an echo of Fischer when he talks about "the cheating Commie players." Poor Soviet propaganda!

The big surprise of Leningrad was the third place finish of American champion Robert Byrne, qualifying him for the elimination tournament. Interestingly Byrne attended the same high school that Fischer dropped out of. Otherwise Byrne — a philosophy professor — has a demeanor quite the opposite of Fischer's. He is the essence of a gentleman — as is Spassky.

So the contenders for the challenge against Fischer are Spassky and Tigran Petrosian of the U.S.S.R. (former world champs; Viktor Korchnoi (winner in Leningrad); Anatoly Karpov (a young, super-sensation from Leningrad who is being groomed as the new Red Hope); Mecking, and then two of the threesome Ljubomir Ljubojevic (Yugoslavia), or Lev Polugaievski (U.S.S.R.), or Efim Geller (Spassky's "coach" in Iceland who naughty Bobby unkindly labeled as "stupid"). These three were tied for second place in Brazil.

* * *

One of these eight will be the challenger to Fischer. And, if Fischer were a normal grandmaster, the odds would favor the challenger over an inactive champion. No one can figure out Bobby. Most have given up trying. No one who knows him should bet against him. Whatever else he is an original. (Interestingly, and perhaps significantly, one of those who appreciates him as a person is Spassky, who calls him a "rare human being in a mundane age: I like him and I think I understand him. "Fischer also calls Spassky: "A fine chap."

Chess champions are traditionally slightly screwball. Paul Morphy (1858), the greatest American before Fischer, whom no else wanted to play, and who finally went mad and spent his last years in seclusion reportedly playing with women's shoes. Wilhelm Steinitz (champion from 1866 to 1894) once challenged God, offering him the advantage of first move and a pawn. Alexander Alekhine, first of the great Russian champs and an alcoholic who demonstrated his contempt for challengers by once urinating on the floor. Louis de la Bourdonnais dressed in rags and would argue politics with the audience while the game was in progress. And Poland's Akiba Rubenstein, who was so paranoic that he'd tell no one his address.

Misha Allen of Toronto, who covered the matches in Iceland, insists that it would be a grievous error to count Fischer out. As a student of the art, he thinks that a match between Fischer and Brazil's outspoken, individualistic Mecking could be an even greater attraction than Fischer and Spassky. It is a tantalizing thought.

Allen says an indication of how the Soviet attitude towards chess has changed since Fischer, is that underground balladeer Vladimir Vysotsky has written a couple of tongue-in-cheek songs about the Spassky-Fischer match. He suggests the Soviets should enter a weightlifter or wrestler next time, so if Fischer gets cheeky he can be clobbered physically. It's a rare, irreverent approach to the sacred game.

Anyway, it seems sure that the Soviet Union's domination of international chess is now ended: Perhaps for all time. And that is thanks to Fischer who has rejoiced in "rescuing" international chess from the Russians who, he says, were "killing the art with their dull methods and their dull matches in a dull country."

At least on that Henrique Mecking would agree.

Mozambique Reality Defies Fine Theories

By JAMES MACMANUS
Manchester Guardian

African member of anti-guerrilla army

MOZAMBIQUE — "Talk to me, boy. You deaf and dumb or something? You got ears and a mouth, haven't you? Talk to me."

The South African had risen to his feet over the breakfast table, shouting at the African waiter. The waiter, all white tunic and gold buttons, did not move a muscle or say a word. Raymond Chandler would have had him spit in the coffee while a lesser talent would have written the flicker of a smile across his face.

But he just stood there staring at the shouting South African. As the abuse moved into its second minute the waiter walked away.

The South African sat down red in the face. His wife let out a giggle. Nobody else in the dining room paid any attention. South Africans are always shouting and finger-snapping at the black staff in the Polana Hotel, the Ritz of Mozambique's capital city, Lourenco Marques.

"You see," said my Portuguese companion, "the South Africans on holiday or business here are always forgetting that what is a nigger to them in Jo'burg is a Portuguese citizen up here in Mozambique. That is not something the South Africans grasp very easily."

It is, however, something that the Portuguese believe they have grasped.

The ideal is that there are no blacks or whites or browns or yellows in Portuguese Africa — just Portuguese citizens. The view is sacrosanct and Portuguese officials here point to their multi-racial society with almost childish pride and repetition. In their eyes the achievement is all the greater for having happened in the shadow of South Africa.

The contempt that most Portuguese have for apartheid is genuine enough and so is the feeling that they are working in Mozambique for rather than against the African population.

The facts of multi-racialism in Mozambique are that discrimination is banned by law, the armed forces, churches, and schools are mixed and there appears to be an easy-going, relationship between the races.

This rapport exists in spite of the fact that there are only around 200,000 whites in a population of 8,233,000. The bulk of the rest are Africans with a sizable population of coloreds (mixed race) and Asians.

But, while there is no overt discrimination against this majority, it is a fact that the rich in Mozambique are white and the poor are black. Segregation is an economic fact of life in that it is the white settler stock from Portugal who control 98 per cent of the country's wealth.

There are exceptions to this but not many. One does not see Africans eating in the Polana Hotel, for which they should be very grateful, or in the smart restaurants and clubs of Lourenco Marques or Beira. One does not see them riding in cabs or sitting at the pavement cafes.

On the whole, the Africans make up the huge unskilled work force that keeps the country's wheels turning. An example of the difference in living conditions and income for the African in Mozambique can be seen from any of the shanty towns that sprawl around the major cities.

For the capital it is Canice — a huge slum collection of mud huts roofed with straw or corrugated iron that house an estimated 400,000 people. This is where the Lourenco Marques work force live and, looking at the teeming ghetto, one is acutely aware of how firmly the wealth and power in Mozambique lies in white hands.

Yes, say the Portuguese, that may be true now but look at Brazil. There comes a moment in most conversations with the Portuguese about Africa when one is invited to look at Brazil.

The argument goes that, given time and a chance, a moderate multi-racial Mozambique will emerge to steady the situation in southern Africa as Brazil did in South America. It is a plea for enlightened colonialism that rather ignores the fact that the Portuguese were kicked out of Brazil 150 years ago.

However, the image of a powerful, prosperous Mozambique bridging the gulf between black and white Africa is the target for the more moderate administrators in Portuguese East Africa. At long last money is being spent on improving the health, education, and economy of the African population.

But this idea, which is thrown about like confetti by the Portuguese PR people, loses some of its impact when you talk to the Europeans with a real stake in the country — the farmers, hotel owners, and property agents in Beira or Lourenco Marques.

These people laugh when the talk turns to an independent and predominantly black Mozambique. They say that things have polarized too much in Africa to allow any room for moderates. There can be no such thing as a bridge between black and white Africa. You have to make up your mind which side you are on and stick to it.

It is in the company of such people that unseen segregation in Mozambique becomes almost visible. It is here that you find that the desire to improve conditions for Africans stems only from the need to defeat the guerrillas. And maintain the status quo.

Making the Case for the Farmer

By MRS. E. KAUFMAN

(From a letter to the editor of The Province by a Williams Lake woman who describes herself as "a farmer of 25 years standing.")

The charge is leveled at farmers that prices were up last year, yet production was not increased, that farmers were deliberately underproducing to keep prices artificially high. Two facts that are ignored by this line of reasoning are that supply is down this year, first, not because farmers did not want to produce, but because it takes longer than a year to make any real increase in production.

For instance, it takes three years from the time you keep a heifer calf until you send one of her progeny to market. Increases in other products call for capital investment for machinery, clearing, irrigation systems, etc. This money isn't going to be invested unless the person can look forward to some return on his investment.

For the 25 years we've been farming our returns have averaged from a minus to three per cent on our investment. There hasn't been a year that we couldn't have made more return on our investment by putting it in the bank rather than working with it. In addition, we would have receivel more return per hour from our labor.

Then why do we keep on farming? The first reason is that we like farming. I recall a cartoon that appeared in a cattle magazine a few years ago. An old cowpoke was being interviewed. He was saying: "What would I do if I inherited a million dollars? Wal, I guess I'd just keep on raising cows 'til it ran out." That's the way many farmers feel. Another reason is that a person feels that his investment is secure and keeps pace with inflation when it is invested in land. And ever since we began farming, we've read that there are more and more people and less and less land, and one day the time will come when food will be in scarce enough supply to insure an equitable price for it. Perhaps that time has arrived.

If the government now interferes and tries to keep prices artificially low they surely inhibit production and a real shortage of food will result.

It's time consumers reconcile themselves to paying a fair price for the food they eat. Figures this spring indicated that Canadians and Americans paid 18 per cent of their income for food — lowest in the world. The simple fact is that people have had such cheap food for so long that they resent having to pay for it. They think all the food they can eat is a Godgiven right. Ask three quarters of the people of the world and they will tell you that isn't so.

Consider the amount of cost and effort that goes into producing a product compared to the cost for marketing it. We raise potatoes. We pay taxes and interest on the land. We work the ground, then plant the potatoes using an expensive piece of machinery and two men.

The costs for fertilizer, seed, weed killer and insecticide alone represent about one cent per pound cost for the marketed potato. We pay interest on an irrigation system and pack 30 foot lengths of irrigation pipe over rows and through thick vines three or four times a year. The potatoes must be hilled. Then, before harvest the vines must be killed — either by machine or chemical — another trip over the field.

We then dig the potatoes with a $7,000 machine and a crew of seven or eight. We must then store the potatoes for a month period in an insulated building. Then every potato is shoveled over a grading table, and every potato is individually inspected. Every sack is taken by hand from the machine, weighed, sewn and piled. We then haul these potatoes to town and deliver them for five cents a pound. (Last year we lost half our crop to an untimely frost — who stands that loss?) The wholesaler and retailer use a small portion of the building, and only the labor necessary to carry the potato in and out and bag it. If the farmer charged for every operation on the same scale you would have paid 20 cents a pound for potatoes last winter.

Let's look at the cattle industry. About the time the boycott was going on, the farmer was getting 90 per cent of parity for his product. (Parity is the price he would have to receive to be getting a just return for labor and investment. Beef has been about 70 per cent of parity for the past 20 years or so.)

As you say, things were never so good for the farmer. Do you know what he's doing with all that money? Talk to a machinery dealer and he'll tell you the farmer is buying machinery — reinvesting to increase production. He's "catching up," and he's got a lot of lean years to catch up from. If the law of supply and demand is allowed to function in times of shortage as well as in times of surplus, it will be the most effective guarantee of reasonable food prices.

You Can't Chicken Out

RUSSELL BAKER

On Sunday we had fried chicken for dinner.

Monday we had roast chicken.

Tuesday we had fricassee of chicken with a dumpling.

At lunch Wednesday we had chicken soup and at dinner, chicken marengo.

Thursday for dinner we had chicken cacciatore.

Friday, chicken tetrazzini.

"If Dad would get up in time to get to the supermarket before all the hamburger sells out," said Bernard, "we would not have to eat all this chicken."

That was Saturday at dinner when we were eating the chicken chasseur. "Hush, child," said mother, who knew that dad had indeed risen before the early morning hamburger sellout on two or three occasions.

In the struggle at the meat counter, though, dad had proven too timid to strike the women he would have had to knock down to reach the hamburger.

Mother feared that if this were noticed at the meat counter, somebody would say dad was chicken and he might be baked with mushrooms, slivered almonds, chopped parsley, paprika and two tablespoons of Grand Marnier, with none of us ever learning the truth.

Mother could not fight at the market because she always sat up all night thinking of fresh ways to cook chicken and was exhausted by sunrise.

Sunday we had fried chicken for dinner.

Monday we had roast chicken.

There were angry mutterings, as in "Mutiny on the Bounty" starring Clark Gable. Why was it always fried chicken on Sunday and roast chicken on Monday? people asked.

Why couldn't it be roast chicken on Sunday and fried chicken on Monday?

Did mother have to sit up all night to decide that fried chicken would be Sunday's dish and roast chicken Monday's?

On Wednesday mother shamed the malcontents into silence with a chopped chicken liver salad.

Thursday we had chicken with rice.

Friday, chicken curry.

Saturday, chicken hash.

Monday at lunch we were having an omelet with chicken livers when Clara noticed that tiny little chicken feathers had begun to grow along the backs of grandfather's hands.

Nobody said anything because we did not want to embarrass grandfather and because, with eggs costing a dollar a dozen and up, he might turn into a profitable enterprise if things developed as it appeared they might.

Tuesday, chicken rolls.

Wednesday, chicken loaf.

Thursday, chicken rolls.

There was a scene Friday night. "You know I can't stand chicken kiev!" Aunt Dora wept. "Chicken florentine, yes. Indian chicken, fine. Mexican chicken, all right. Even chicken tamale pie I can take," she cackled, flapping her wings angrily at mother.

The cat, who was sick and tired of chicken, threw a half eaten drumstick at her, because of his special loathing for chicken tamale pie. It missed Aunt Dora and hit the pineapple in mother's Hawaiian centrepiece, which gave her an idea, so that she did not have to sit up all that night.

Saturday we had chicken in a pineapple shell.

Sunday neither Aunt Dora nor grandfather could be persuaded to come down to dinner, which was fried chicken. They were both roosting in the attic beams.

That was when somebody suggested fish. Monday we had fried fish. Tuesday, roast fish. Wednesday, a fricassee of fish with a dumpling. At lunch Wednesday we had fish soup and at dinner, fish marengo. Thursday for dinner we had fish cacciatore. Friday, fish tetrazzini. By that time fish prices were higher than eggs. By Saturday, after a fish chasseur, we were priced out of the market.

On Sunday we had fried chicken.

Don't Cry, He Pleaded: Jean-Claude Is Dead!

MONTREAL (CP) — Ten-year-old Rejean Cote looked at his mother and pleaded: "Mommy, promise me you won't cry. Jean-Claude is dead."

Rejean spoke of what happened in the 15 hours when he said he and his friend, nine year-old Jean-Claude Pare, were held by a man in a downtown apartment.

The two boys were reported missing Saturday night when they did not return from a walk. Jean-Claude's nude, battered body was found later.

A man is being held on a coroner's warrant.

Yvette Cote, Rejean's mother, said her son told her he and Jean-Claude were walking down a street when a man called to them from a third-floor balcony and asked them to buy soft drinks for him at a store.

Rejean said the man threw $2 at the boys and, when they returned, invited them up for a drink.

A detective said Rejean told police the man gave them a bottle of beer and some white pills.

"He didn't appear to remember very much of what happened after he took the pills," Mrs. Cote said.

"He was in a state of shock when he talked to me. He didn't show any emotion."

The boy told his mother he was locked in a dark room and awakened twice by a man who beat him.

"His eyes and ears are swollen and bruised. His neck was scratched and bruised too, where he said the man tried to strangle him," Mrs. Cote said.

The man returned to the room at noon Sunday and told Rejean he was going to let him go.

"My boy asked about his friend and the man told him he wasn't to worry about him any more because Jesus came to get him at 4 a.m.

"When he left the room, Rejean said he saw Jean-Claude lying nude . . ."

Rejean then met Michel Pare, the dead boy's brother, on the street. Michel flagged a police car and took them to where the boys had been kept.

Police later found Jean-Claude lying on his back, horribly beaten, with a large piece of wood near the body. A morgue official said it looked as if the boy had been stabbed in the neck.

City Man To Attend Sandhurst

A 21-year-old Victoria man has been accepted for Sandhurst College, Britain's top military establishment.

Maurice Tellier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Tellier, of 3632 Doncaster, joined the British army's tank corps in January, starting a probationary training course for the college at the same time.

Of the 17 soldiers who started, five dropped out, 12 qualified and two were accepted.

Tellier was a communications officer with the Rainbow Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps.

He had served 12 years with the Admiral Rayner Navy League Cadet Corps and the Rainbow corps, both as officer and cadet.

Tellier went overseas with three ex-Rainbow cadets on Jan. 8. Their original intention was to join the Royal Navy.

The three were John Coldwell of 850 Coles, Russ Lazaruk of 1071 Beverley and Ron Brain of 923 Fairfield.

When the four reached Britain they found the RN was not taking recruits until later in the year.

Comox Fire, Two Accidents Kill Five During Weekend

At least five persons died accidentally on Vancouver Island during the Labor Day weekend, bringing to 16 the total fatality list for the province.

Two up-Island accidents near Gold River and Campbell River claimed the lives of four persons.

Reginald Jack and Randy Howard, both 15, of Gold River, were killed late Saturday when the car in which they were passengers left the Mill River Road seven miles west of Gold River.

The driver of the car, Andrew James, 30, of Gold River is in fair condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital.

A Campbell River couple, Kenneth Creelman, 65, and his wife Mary, 59, were killed Saturday when their car slammed into a 50-ton ore truck about 35 miles west of Campbell River.

Police said Mrs. Creelman was driving south on Western Mine Road. The accident occurred as she rounded a right hand curve.

In Comox, 44-year-old Kenneth Roy Jenkins, of Taylor Way, was burned to death when fire gutted his home Saturday.

Volunteer firemen battled the blaze for an hour. Cause of the fire and the amount of damage are not yet known.

On the mainland, seven persons were killed in traffic accidents, two in fires and two in falls.

Second Place In Piano Class

Victoria pianist Allen Reiser was a second-place winner over the weekend at the second national competitive festival of music at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Reiser, who won $500, was one of 15 scholarship winners at the competition organized by the Federation of Canadian Music Festivals in co-operation with the exhibition and the Canadian Bureau for the Advancement of Music.

The Giants Felled By a Ranger 29

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

A Ranger 29 sloop from the Royal Victoria Yacht Club toppled the giants at the Maple Bay Yacht Club's Labor Day regatta.

Ian Duncanson's Kim won the Lieutenant-Governor's Trophy for the top boat racing under the International Offshore Rule rating.

She beat out such giants as George O'Brien's converted 12-metre Endless Summer, a two-time winner of the trophy, and John Newton's Pachena of the West Vancouver Yacht Club, this wear's winner of the Strait of Georgia and the Great Equalizer classics.

This was Duncanson's first big win since he began racing Kim a year ago. Crewing with him were Henry Pejril, Dave Powell, Lou Boudreau and Norm Schweitz.

By winning first over-all in IOR competition, Kim set a record by being the first IOR division II boat ever to win the coveted trophy. J. Glass's Shimna was second boat in Division II.

Pachena was first Division I IOR boat and second spot was a three-way tie, Endless Summer sharing the honors with W. Van Leedwen's La Brisa of the West Vancouver Yacht Club and John Dunfield's Drummer Boy of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club.

Vic Palmer's Buchan 37 sloop Windwark Mark — launched in June — was the big winner in Pacific Handicap Racing Fleet competition. She won the Cowichan Bay Cup for first over-all and came first in Division I PHRF. Second boat in Division II was Peter Moore's Kestrel II.

Jean Pierre Le Dallic's Catalina 27 La Marquise made a good showing in Division II PHRF. Brand new and not yet equipped with spinnaker, she came second, narrowly losing out to Norm William's Gam. Le Dallic races with the Turkey Head Sailing Association.

Flukey wind conditions and light airs plagued the regatta, favoring the smaller boats of the 190-odd fleet.

Three RVYC boats cleaned up in Cal 20 competition, Mike Nixon's Aquarius coming first; Penny Hobson's Urchin, second, and Bruce Life's Semiramis, third.

D. Sibley won the Thunderbirds, easing out Peter Lowood's Spindrift of MBYC.

In Cal 25s it was T. Serr's Peaches, followed by Alf Fairhurst's Grey Goose of MBYC.

Dingy winners were:

Lasers — Mike Stibbs of the Royal Naval Sailing Association, Larry Scuter of the Quanta Bay Sailing Club and D. Dexter of the Kitsilano Yacht Club.

X Class — Andrew Jackson of MBYC and Mark Johnson, also of Maple Bay.

Sabots — M. Cannon of the Salt Spring Island Sailing Club, R. Neish of SSISC and D. McGreer of the Tsawwassen Sailing Association.

Mirrors — Alex Fox of he Canadian Forces Sailing Association, Comox; J. Davies of the Mirror Association and D. Courtemarche of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club.

Lightnings — George Blumel's No Time of MBYC and Doug Ridenour's Seaquaz of MBYC.

Fireballs — Sid Hall of Royal Victoria Yacht Club, D. Pickshore of TSA, B. Francis of Royal Vancouver Yacht Club and P. Stadevem of CFSA Comox.

Snipes — Jack Davie's Whiskey Jack of MBYC and Trevor Grippenburg's In the Wet of MBYC.

Flying Juniors — Michael Barker of the Captain Vancouver Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps, Murray Joyner of MBYC, Sana Ramsay of Captain Vancouver and B. McGregor of Captain Vancouver.

Enterprise — P. Miachika of KYC and Jeremy Eadon of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club.

Hemorrhoids can itch, burn, swell and hurt something awful.

That's why you'll welcome New Anusol Plus.

If you've ever really suffered from hemorrhoids, you know the kind of relief you'd like to be getting from the medication that you use.

Fast pain relief, for one thing. New Anusol Plus relieves your hemorrhoid pain almost as soon as you apply it.

And Anusol Plus numbs the maddening itch that so often comes with hemorrhoids.

For that burning sensation, it contains a soothing, cooling emollient.

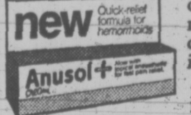
There's even a gentle decongestant that works to reduce the swelling and thus the inflammation.

And while New Anusol Plus works quickly to ease your discomfort, two soothing antiseptic agents are acting to curb infection—thus giving your hemorrhoids a better chance to heal.

One other thing. Since treating your hemorrhoids can sometimes be painful in itself, new Anusol Plus now comes in a silky-smooth cream. Even when spread on inflamed and tender areas, it goes on very easily. And, since the relief it gives lasts for hours, you don't have to apply it so often.

How do we know what you look for in a hemorrhoid medication? Because we've taken the time to find out the answers from hundreds of hemorrhoid sufferers just like you.

For relief from your hemorrhoid symptoms, use new Anusol Plus, in cream or suppository form.



Sold at pharmacies only, it's a hemorrhoid medication that does what you want it to do.

The future? No landlord to tell us "No kids. No pets!"

Why do some landlords have to be so difficult? They seem to think you're going to rent an apartment and then have it overrun with kids, dogs and cats... and that you'll even keep goldfish in the bathtub. Well, we're through with all that hassle, Nancy and I. We've traded in tough landlords for our very own home. If it hadn't been for my Metropolitan Life policy, a down payment would have been about as remote as climbing Mount Everest.

But the year I started working, a Met Life guy explained how you have to plan today for the things you want to enjoy tomorrow. "The future is now," is how he put it.

So Met Life arranged a program for me. No fancy policies. Just excellent insurance at a price I could afford. Then, some years later, when Nancy and I got married, we figured we'd like to have a place we could call our own. Where we could put up our pictures. And our feet. Paint the walls any colour we please. And raise a family our way.

When we'd finally found a place, we discovered that when you want to borrow a down payment, there's nothing stronger in a banker's eyes than a Metropolitan Life policy.

At the time I took out the policy, owning a house was the furthest thing from my mind.

Today, I'm a home owner, and there's no landlord in our future.

TODAY'S GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prices were firm to higher throughout most of the session, then turned sharply lower near the close in moderate trade today on the Winnipeg Commodity Exchange.

Flax declined more than 30 cents after registering similar gains earlier in the session. However, the closing prices represented some recovery from the day's lows.

Rapeseed was down the 20-cent limit in all Vancouver contracts, while losses were smaller in most months of the Thunder Bay futures.

Oats and barley were lower after spending most of the session at levels near Friday's closes.

Rye prices moved the entire limit, starting out 10 cents higher and moving down to as much as 10 lower at the close.

CHICAGO (AP) — Heavy selling, partially induced by the weather and by profit-taking longs, produced limit declines in most agricultural commodity futures on the Board of Trade today.

Wheat futures had some support in the nearby September option briefly after the opening, but as the momentum of selling increased all options weakened.

MOST FAVOR HEARINGS

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — A majority of Americans feel the Senate Watergate hearings are good for the country but another 41 per cent believe the hearings aren't.

The latest Gallup poll also indicates most Americans believe the hearings won't interfere with fair trials should Watergate witnesses be tried and that the Watergate committee is more interested in getting the facts than in discrediting the Nixon administration.

Responses in the latest survey, taken Aug. 17 to 19, were highly partisan. For example, while 52 per cent of those questioned said they thought the hearings were good for the country, only 36 per cent of those identifying themselves as Republicans gave that reply.

Among those calling themselves Democrats 59 per cent felt the hearings were good for the country. Of independents, who the polling organization notes usually fall roughly midway between the two parties, 58 per cent replied the hearings were good for the country.

U.S. CIVIL WAR IRONCLAD FOUND?

CAPE HATTERAS, N.C. (UPI) — Scientists say one of two sunken ships found 20 miles off the coast may be the remains of the lost Civil War Ironclad Monitor.

Duke University scientists, arriving in Beaufort after a two-week search with an array of underwater detection gear, said it may take up to three months to analyze video tapes and sonar tracings taken in 200 feet of water.

The team of experts located a large, apparently metal ship, badly broken up on the sea floor.

The team also located a previously uncharted wreck but identified it as a modern fishing trawler with a circular pilot house, similar to the turret on the Monitor which went down off the coast in a gale Dec. 31, 1862, while under tow to Charleston, S.C., where it was to assist in a blockade of that Confederate city.

Prices Up Sharply In Toronto Trading

Prices on the Toronto stock market closed sharply higher in moderate trading.

Volume by 2 p.m. was 1.66 million shares compared with 1.65 million Friday.

Advances led declines 218 to 165 with 225 issues unchanged.

Merchandising, oil refining, paper and forest and industrial mining stocks were among advancing market sectors while food processing, construction and material and chemical issues declined.

Anglo-Canadian Pulp rose 2⅛ to $17, Canadian Tire A 1½ to $49½, Domtar ⅞ to $22⅛, Chrysler ⅞ to $24⅞ and Gulf ⅞ to $38¼.

Victoria and Grey fell ⅞ to $27¼, John Labatt ¾ to $25¾ and Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas ¼ to $50¾.

Gibraltar was up ⅜ to $14¼, Agnico-Eagle 25 cents to $5.10 and Hudson Bay Mining ¼ to $26¼. Kerr Addison fell ¾ to $11⅝ and Placer ½ to $26¾.

Great Plains Development gained 1 to $31, United Canso ⅝ to $13⅝ and Sunningdale 30 cents to $ 8.25. Scurry-Rainbow slipped ⅓ to $20⅜.

New York

New York stocks today continued last week's trend of higher prices, evoking some optimism from analysts hoping this indicated a trend.

Advancing issues had a 984 to 372 lead over decliners, but trading was sluggish.

Minnesota Mineral and Mining, down 1 at 85, was the volume leader, followed by American Airlines, up ¼ at 10¾.

Champion Spark Plugs, up 1¼ at 18⅝; Texaco, down ⅛ at 29⅞; and Ramada Inns, up ⅛ at 10.

Oils generally ran against the upward trends because of uncertainties over their Middle East investments and in particular problems with Libya and its take-over of 51 per cent of the oil interests of outside companies.

Exxon was off 1¼ at 85⅝; Royal Dutch, down 1¾ at 43; and Standard Oil of California, down 1¼ at 64.

Montreal

All sectors except banks advanced in light trading on the Montreal stock market today.

Combined volume on the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges at 1 p.m. was 680,200 shares.

Chrysler rose ½ to $24¾, Abitibi Paper ⅜ to $12¼, Canadian Industries ¼ to $15¼ and Alcan ⅛ to $33¾ while Brinco fell ⅜ to $5½, Bank of Commerce ⅜ to $30½ and Bell Canada ⅛ to $40¾.

London

Light trading and lower prices on the London stock market pushed the Financial Times index to a low for the year today.

The index was off 3.1 points to 406.8 in mid-session trading.

Observers said the market declined despite news of an upturn in capital spending by manufacturing industries.

Sharp Drop in Price Seen As Calculators Flood Market

VANCOUVER (CP) — One of the latest electronic gadgets to find its way into the hands of the average consumer is the hand calculator and sales of the mathematical marvels are booming.

More than 4,000 hand-sized calculators are sold every month in Vancouver, to everyone from businessmen to housewives.

Prices for a calculator which adds, subtracts, divides and multiplies and has a floating decimal and eight-digit capacity, range from $70 to $90.

Prices go up to $500 for a specialized scientific or business calculator.

Allan Gardner, sales manager of Caltron Business Machines Ltd, in Vancouver, said the calculator boom can be compared with that of transistor radios in the early 60s. Like the transistor radio, prices have dropped, sometimes as much as $50 in the 18 months calculators have been on the market.

Gardner said by Christmas the price for a basic calculator will be as low as $50.

He said a recent study by a magazine showed that in the $70-$90 price range, 45 per cent of calculators sold are used by businessmen.

Students use 15 per cent of the calculators sold and the remaining 40 per cent is divided among other professions and people such as housewives.

Gardner said the hand calculator business has doubled in the last year and he expects it to triple in the next few years.

Jeff Shook, calculator specialist at Hewlett-Packard Co., said about 12 companies produce calculators and each one is cutting prices.

Calculator manfuacturers now are selling a calculator with a retail value of $60 to stores for $42, cutting their margin of profit to almost nothing, Shook said.

The novelty seems to be wearing off at the retail level, Gardner said, as customers are asking for specific features, such as rechargeable batteries.

He said people are willing to pay an extra $10 for an added feature.

Shook said the most important parts of the calculators are the chips. One of them, about a quarter-inch square, can replace hundreds or even thousands of transistors.

The chips that Hewlett-Packard manufacture and use are equivalent to 6,000 transistors each.

Before the chips, he said, an equivalent to his company's hand business model would have weighed 35 pounds and been the size of a typewriter. It would have cost $5,000.

That was less than three years ago.

IU Share Offer Details Given

TORONTO (CP) — IU International Corp. of Philadelphia released details of a share exchange offer designed to increase Canadian ownership participation in Canadian Utilities Ltd. of Edmonton, now 87-per-cent owned by IU International.

IU is offering to exchange $1.25 convertible second preferred shares of Canadian Utilities it owns for shares of IU common stock owned by Canadian residents.

The proposal is to exchange 1.1 shares of Canadian Utilities preferred, plus $2, for each share of IU common up to a total of 500,000 shares.

If all shares being offered are accepted and other conversions exercised, Canadian ownership of Canadian Utilities common shares would almost double from its current 13 per cent.

Canadian Utilities operates a gas and electric utility, mainly Alberta, and has about 2,400 employees.

Interest Rate: Higher Still

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

Finance spokesmen are almost unanimous in predicting another round of interest rate increases in Canada, pushing the prime bank rate to 8.75 per cent and the mortgage rate to 10.5 per cent.

That would be an increase of .5 per cent in each case.

The 9.75 per cent U.S. prime bank rate is 1.5 percentage points higher than the Canadian rate, "a differential that cannot endure," says Parfor Investments Ltd. of Toronto.

Richardson Securities says a .5 per cent increase "seems inevitable in the very near future, simply because the extraordinary differential in favor of the United States now is beginning to attract a flow of funds from Canada."

Over a longer term, Canadian rates could be expected to rise a full one per cent to counter the U.S. offerings, the company says.

Interest rates can be expected to rise until the economy cools off and the demand for funds subsides.

Some levelling off is already evident and many expect a small recession in 1974. This could coincide with the peak in interest rates, Richardson says.

Parfor Investments also expects the peak to come near year's end or early in 1974.

Real estate spokesmen agree there is upward pressure on the mortgage rate and a likelihood it will hit 10.5 per cent soon.

In Victoria the rate is 10 per cent with some money going out at 10.25 per cent.

While the generally high interest rates were putting a damper on the industrial stocks, the speculative market continues briskly.

In Vancouver, the short sellers hit high-flying Bathurst Norse Mines Ltd., unloading 51,900 shares in two weeks in expectations that the price will fall.

It closed at 99 cents on Friday on 236,300 shares after having been $1.06 earlier in the day.

Short sellers are generally professional traders who sell more shares than they have in the belief the price will fall and they can buy the shares they owe at much lower prices and claim the profit.

If the price continues to rise, they lose.

The top oil trader, Seneca Developments Ltd., was only moderately hit to the tune of 9,600 in short sales, bringing its outstanding short position to 82,900. It closed at $2.10 on Friday.

High flying Silver Standard had a relatively minor short position of 18,200 shares, up 7,500 in a two-week period. It closed Friday at $2.55, down 5 cents on the week in very heavy trading.

A large part of Northair Mines Ltd.'s short position was covered by traders during August, reducing the total by 32,000 to 6,000.

A total of 19,900 shares of Gunn Mines were covered in August, reducing the outstanding short position to 103,500. Gunn has had a very heavy short position for several months. It closed Friday at $1.25, up 5 cents on the week.

Because of delays of reporting, short positions represent the situation of 14 days ago.

Consumers' Gas

Consumers' Gas Co. reports basic earnings before special items for the nine months to June 30 of $25,013,000 or $1.39 a share, a 10-per-cent increase over $22,810,000 and $1.26 in the corresponding period a year ago.

A gain in special items raised the company's net income to $26,634,000 or $1.48 a share.

Revenue from natural gas sales for the nine months rose nine per cent to $184,077,000 from $168,196,000.

Effective last June 1, a rate increase of 2.3 cents for 1,000 cubic feet was passed on to customers. It resulted from higher costs of Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd., Consumers'supplier.

President J. C. McCarthy says in a report to shareholders that if a rate increase application by Trans Canada to the National Energy Board is approved, Consumers' Gas will immediately apply to the Ontario board to pass on the new charges to customers.

Equity in earnings of Home Oil Co. Ltd. increased $1.2 million in the nine-month period to $1,671,000.

Kenting

Kenting Ltd. reports unaudited net earnings of $26,000 for the six-month period ended June 30, 1973, compared with net earnings of $61,000 for the same period last year.

After provision for preferred share dividends, common shareholdders are assessed a loss of three cents per share for the first six months of 1973, compared with a gain of seven cents per share for the same period of 1972.

Overhauls To Cut Production

EDMONTON (CP) — Overhaul and expansion of facilities in Alberta oil fields are expected to reduce crude oil production by almost three million barrels in September compared with October.

However, production compared with September, 1972, is expected to be up almost 20 per cent.

The Alberta Energy Resources Conservation Board has approved production of 48,101,980 barrels of crude oil and condensate for September or about 1,600,000 barrels a day.

One year ago, authorized production was 40,399,710 barrels while during August it was 50,841,904.

The Redwater field north of Edmonton is to be closed for seven days this month while the annual check of gas plant, scheduled for September at many facilities, would reduce production of condensate, the light oil obtained from gas.

Assoc. Foundry

Associated Foundry Ltd. has purchased three foundries in Edmonton, Winnipeg and St. Jean, Que., from subsidiaries of Anthes Imperial Ltd.

Price was not disclosed. Associated Foundry is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Dundee Palliser Resources Ltd. of Toronto and already operates a soil pipe and castings foundry in British Columbia.

$ EXCHANGE

In Victoria today, purchase of U.S. funds in terms of Canadian dollar was .9985 by the Royal Bank at .9995 cheques and .9885 silver. Selling rates were 1.01 for cheques and 1.012 for cash.

MONTREAL (CP) — U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds at noon Tuesday was up 3-50 at $1.00 3-5. Pound sterling was down 43-50 at $2.46 37-100.

In New York, the Canadian dollar was down 3-50 at $0.99 2-5. Pound sterling was down 1 at $2.44 9-10.

RASH OF UFO SIGHTINGS

ATHENS, Ga. (UPI) — A frightened man dashed into police headquarters Monday night and said a strange "bright-flashing object" had swooped toward his car on a north Georgia highway.

It was the fourth consecutive night of unidentified flying object sightings in Georgia and Tennessee. The Air Force said it was not looking into the reports because the UFO investigation program has been discontinued.

Athens police said the unidentified motorist reported that the object, with "one bright light and four flashing lights," came within 15 feet of the ground before swerving off into the sky.

Socreds Out to Win the West

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Social Credit party has turned its attention to making major gains in Western Canada, the area which elected the country's first Socred government 38 years ago.

Delegates to the party's national council meeting here on the weekend were enthusiastic about their party's prospects in the next federal election, but agreed that great efforts were needed to increase support outside Quebec.

More than half of the 200 delegates and observers to the two-day meeting were from the west, and party leader Real Caouette said the large western delegations were a good sign for the party.

"I think that the Winnipeg meeting is a real start, or a re-start, of a genuine Social Credit movement across the country," he said in an interview Sunday. "I think that western people do realize that Social Credit constitutes a real alternative to what is taking place in Ottawa today."

Several highlights of the convention had a distinct western flavor. Martin J. Hattersley of Edmonton was elected party president, and a council committee recommended that a full-time federal office be created in the west during the next election and that national socred figures make more appearances there during the campaign.

The council meeting was the first of its kind since the reconciliation two years ago of Western Socreds with Quebec Creditistes in a new Social Credit party.

Retiring party president Gilbert Rondeau, MP for the Quebec riding of Shefford, reminded delegates that party members in Quebec are still waiting for their colleagues to win more support in the West.

By the time the meeting ended, however, he announced that the party would have at least 26 federal candidates in the West and eight more in Ontario before the first of the year.

The party had its first base of support in Alberta and British Columbia, but its western representation later fell off sharply.

Newsprint Rolling Soon

TORONTO (CP) — A spokesman for Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd. said Monday he expects newsprint shipments to resume this week, while negotiations continue with representatives of 6,000 company employees.

Peter Izzard, a public relations officer for the company, said the interruption of newsprint deliveries has been caused solely by the Canada-wide strike of railway employees.

Three newsprint plants owned by Abitibi, one of the largest producers, have shut down because materials could not be moved in or out by rail.

Izzard said the company has a backlog of orders to fill and will resume shipments as soon as railway cars become available, likely this week.

The railway strike forced the closing of plants in Smooth Rock Falls and Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and in Pine Falls, Man., he said, but they will resume production as soon as deliveries begin.

"We anticipate no strike action by our employees," Mr. Izzard said. "All I can say now is that negotiations are continuing."

Four other Abitibi newsprint plants, two in Thunder Bay, one in Iroquois Falls, Ont., and another in Beaupre, Que., still are producing, and shipments from those plants also are scheduled to resume as soon as rail service is back to normal.

Striking railway workers were ordered back to work by special legislation passed Saturday morning at an emergency session of Parliament. Rail service began a slow return to normal Sunday.

But one of the eight unions involved in the dispute, the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, instructed its 18,000 members not to return to work until the legislation could be studied carefully.

While the Abitibi negotiations continue here, no new negotiations were scheduled to end strikes elsewhere in the industry.

Three newsprint plants of Canadian International Paper Co., have been shut down by strikes since late July. Negotiators have not met since Aug. 2 when the union turned down a company offer.

The plants are closed at Gatineau and Trois Rivieres, Que., and at Dalhousie, N.B.

ROCK FESTIVAL FINANCIAL FLOP

HOLLAND, Vt. (AP) — The townspeople here surveyed their farmlands Monday and found that a rock-music festival which attracted 35,000 young people had left little apparent damage.

The landowners in the tiny Canadian-border community failed in attempts to block the festival but obtained a court order for damages to be covered by the gate receipts from the three-day festival.

Town attorney Andrew Pepin said it appears little of the damage money will be needed.

"Other than a few raids on vegetable gardens, I haven't heard of any problems," he said. "We can afford to lose a few tomatoes if that's all it's confined to."

It was a different story for the promoters, Ronald Mac Worth and Bovert Abbott.

The crown was reluctant to buy the $10 tickets and late Saturday a large-scale effort to break down the fences led to fights with security guards and a shooting incident in which at least four persons were wounded.

Worth was forced to cut the music short at 4 a.m. Sunday, a full day ahead of schedule, when he could no longer pay the rock groups to play.

The result, Worth said, was a financial nightmare. He said gate receipts were only about $10,000, against expenses which reached $70,000.

Several wooden buildings were set afire Sunday night on the festival grounds, a rolling pasture belonging to Abbott.

State police said no fire damage was caused to any neighboring property.

Pepin said he will meet Tuesday with town officials to determine just how much money will be needed from the promoters.

Lawrence Judd, chairman of the Holland selectmen, said local legislators plan to introduce legislation to block future rock festivals.

Gunman Sliced and Belted After Boy Shot to Death

NEW YORK (AP) — "They were hitting him with tire jacks and slicing him with straight-edge razors," said a policeman who helped rescue a gunman from an enraged Harlem crowd after a four-year-old boy was shot to death.

Police officer George Hohenstein described as "total chaos" the scene of Monday's shooting, which resulted from a traffic dispute. A 17-year-old youth and an off-duty policeman were wounded.

Hohenstein's partner, patrolman Lyman Gerrish, said the crowd attacked the alleged gunman, Robert Mayfield, 37, after the dead boy's mother screamed: "He killed my baby! He killed my baby!"

The boy, William Johnson, was shot in the head as he sat in a stroller drinking apple juice from a baby bottle.

Police gave this account of the incident:

Mayfield stopped for a traffic light at 127th Street and Convent Avenue and got into an argument with a cab driver who had honked his horn. Both men left their vehicles and started scuffling.

A crowd collected and sided with the cab driver, who lives nearby. Someone attacked Mayfield's woman companion, who had jumped out of his customized gold Cadillac brandishing a wrench.

Mayfield drove the woman to a hospital and returned a few minutes later.

Police said Mayfield opened fire at random with a .38-calibre pistol, hitting the Johnson boy and Clyde King, the cab driver's cousin. The boy died soon afterward in hospital.

Before Gerrish and Hohenstein arrived, the mob wrestled Mayfield away from the off-duty officer, Earl Robinson, 28, who had overpowered the gunman despite a bullet wound in his chest and shoulder.

Robinson, who had been chatting with a friend on a doorstoop a block away, rushed to the scene after hearing the initial shots.

Patrolman Gerrish said that, when he and Hohenstein arrived: "I pushed Mayfield into a crevice in the building. I held myself between the crowd and Mayfield. Me and my partner were absorbing the impact of the blows of the crowd."

Hohenstein suffered a minor hand injury.

Mayfield was given 40 stitches for his wounds in hospital and then was taken to a police station where he was charged with homicide, attempted murder, assault and possession of a dangerous weapon.

Robinson was reported in fair condition in hospital.

Europe Beef Crisis Now Over

BRUSSELS (UPI) — The European Common Market has proclaimed Europe's beef crisis officially over and announced it will resume charging duties on imports of beef.

The duties were suspended 15 months ago after beef shortages sent wholesale prices soaring 20 per cent or more above the common market's guideline price — itself an artificially high level.

Common market spokesmen said wholesale prices have fallen back to less than three per cent above the guideline price. Therefore the duties will be reintroduced on Monday, in line with a decision taken in July to make the three per cent level the cutoff line.

Firemen Ascend Throne

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—A goal by Louis Trischuck after 50 minutes of play broke a scoreless deadlock between Vancouver and West Indies United of Toronto and sent Vancouver on to a 2-0 victory in the championship match of the Canadian challenge cup soccer tournament here Monday.

Seven minutes later John Harr scored the insurance marker for Vancouver, his eighth of the three-day event. Mike Gilmore blocked all Toronto shots successfully to pick up the shutout.

In a playoff for third place, St. Viateur of Montreal, representing Quebec, edged Holy Cross of St. John's, the Newfoundland representatives, 1-0 on a goal in the 29th minute by Aurelio Maiorano. Tony Leo got the shutout for Quebec.

Vancouver finished with a 3-0. won-lost record after blanking New Brunswick, represented by Saint John Moosehead, 9-0, and tripping St. Viateur 2-1 in earlier games.

North Island Clips Oak Bay

Brian Fiesen, scored two touchdowns Sunday to lead North Island Warriors to a 35-7 victory over Oak Bay Invaders in a Vancouver Island Bantam Football League game at Royal Athletic Park.

Other Warrior majors were scored by Norm Taylor, Mike Rutherford and Dave Lee, who also kicked three conversions.

Cole Kirby went across the line for the lone Invader TD and Lars Fenske supplied the conversion.

In another League game at Duncan, Saanich Vampires clipped Duncan Chiefs, 25-12.

Tennis Classes Will Carry On

Due to a heavy demand Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Victoria recreation departments will be holding a fall adult tennis instruction program from Sept. 15 through to Christmas.

Instruction will be held Saturdays at Beacon Hill Park and Sundays at the Gordon Head Recreation Centre (Lambrick Park.)

Classes will be divided into beginners and advanced students and registrations will be accepted between 8 and 9:30 p.m. Sept 12 at the Recreation Centre.

Richmond's Nice and Neat

Richmond Roadrunners have "cleaned house" quite nicely, thank you, and are ready to welcome Peterborough and the 1973 Minto Cup series.

The Ron Phillips-coached Roadrunners capped a great, late-season comeback Sunday by defeating Victoria McDonalds 8-3 to claim the Pacific Coast Junior "A" Lacrosse League championship for a third straight year.

For a time, it looked like Richmond might have to forget about post-season playoffs. They started poorly, then claimed the league's fourth and final playoff spot in their last game of the season.

"We had some internal problems," said Phillips of his early-season difficulties, "but we squared things around . . . just in time."

They did just that. Runners knocked off second-place Burnaby 3-1 in the best-of-five semi-finals for the right to play Macs, the regular-season champions. It took Runners only five games to show Victoria that all's well in Richmond.

Roadrunners wrapped up the best-of-seven final 4-1 in the same manner they won eight of their last 10 games —with hustle and solid checking.

"Our checking won this series," Phillips said Sunday after the Memorial Arena triumph. "Victoria has one of the best-passing junior teams I've ever seen. No, they didn't pass too well . . . that's because they were hit hard."

Victoria's sharp passing was almost non-existent in the decider before 1,727 fans.

Penalties also played a telling part. The frustrated Macs took 17 minors and one major for 39 minutes while Richmond served only 27 minutes. Richmond counted three power-play goals and two while shorthanded.

More important, some of Victoria's ill-timed penalties prevented Macs from mounting any comeback.

Rico Bellusci scored two goals for Richmond with Tom Penway, Brian Tasker, Bob Tasker, Gerry Pinder, Cliff Tomko and Doug May supplying the singles. Glen Neuman, Rick Lapointe and Mike Walsh scored Victoria's goals.

Victoria's standout was goalie John Hamilton. He kept the Macs in contention with a superb display as Richmond out-shot Victoria 47-31.

Phillips said Richmond, entitled to recruit three players for the national final which opens in Richmond next Sunday, "hasn't thought about any pickups."

He conceded, however, that Hamilton would be an excellent addition.

A decision on replacements will be made later this week.

VANCOUVER GIRL FIFTH

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) — Gillian West of Vancouver finished fifth in an eight-race series for the North American women's soling class sailing championship, won by Tomothea Larr of New York.

LATE ENTRY CAPTURES WORLD'S RICHEST RACE

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. (AP) — Timeto Thinkrich won Monday's All-American Quarter Horse Futurity at Ruidoso Downs, running the 440 yards in 21.58 seconds and winning $330,000 in the world's richest horse race.

The two-year-old colt was one of four late entries in the trials, the supplemental entry cost owner Frank Vessels of Los Alamitos, Calif., $15,000 to go for the big money in the 15th running of the All-American. The race-day purse was $766,000.

Flaming Jet, owned by Joe Kirk Fulton of Lubbock, Tex., won $138,000 for second and pre-race favorite Coca's Kid, owned by Edward Allred of Los Angeles, was third and won $64,000.

If you were in Canada by November 30, 1972, and have remained here since, as a visitor or without legal status, these are the things you gain if you make our country your country.

1 You won't be penalized because you entered or remained in Canada illegally.

2 You gain the opportunity to apply during a period of relaxed rules. You could qualify to become a landed immigrant if you meet any one of the following criteria—if you have a job or the prospect of a job—if you have close family relationships in Canada—if you have made an effort to improve your qualifications—or, if you can present any other evidence that you can adapt to life in Canada.

3 If you don't make it, even under the easy rules, you retain your important right to appeal the decision to an independent appeal board.

4 If you make it, you will eventually have the right to apply for Canadian citizenship, which gives you the vote.

5 Once you become a citizen, you may travel throughout the world on a Canadian passport.

6 As soon as you are landed, you may claim all the rights of a permanent Canadian resident, and will have every chance to work towards better job opportunities.

7 You gain freedom from the constant fear of discovery, and need no longer look over your shoulder everywhere you go, or think twice about everything you do.

8 You gain the opportunity to participate fully in the life of the country.

These are the things you lose if you don't apply for landed immigrant status before midnight, October 15, 1973.

1 You will lose forever the opportunity to become a landed immigrant by applying from within Canada.

2 You lose the right to appeal a future deportation order to an independent appeal board.

3 You may lose the chance of coming back to Canada if you visit your homeland again. Which means that you might have seen your friends and relatives in Canada for the last time.

4 You will never have the right to vote in Canada.

5 You may lose chances for job advancement, because you can't take the risk that someone will find out about you.

6 You may be exploited by unscrupulous employers, and kept at an unfair wage level because you can't afford to complain.

7 You lose your peace of mind, because after midnight, October 15, 1973, you will again be subject to prosecution if you entered or remained in Canada illegally.

8 You lose the opportunities that should be open to all in this rich and growing country.

We want you to have all these things. Until midnight, October 15, we're going to make it easy for you to make our country your country.

Cricket Series Drawn

A man who "didn't quite" play for the West Indies, got to play for the United States instead on the weekend and destroyed Canada's hopes of victory in the three-day cricket test match at Beacon Hill Park.

Although the International Series—as the historic tests between the countries are known—was extended from two days this year to try to ensure a decision, the match ended in a draw. And the U.S. retained the K. A. Auty Trophy it won last year in Louisville, Ky.

And the man who played a giant part in keeping Canada from victory was classy batsman Oscar Durity, a former West Indian now living in Los Angeles.

Upset when he felt the West Indian selectors overlooked him in choosing the test side, Durity went out and hit an aggressive century last season for Barbados against the touring Australian national team.

And Durity brought that touch of class to Victoria, masterfully stroking the ball all round the field as he made 90 in America's first innings and then hit a solid 104 not out in the second innings.

In both innings, Durity was partnered in great stands by Anil Lashkari, also of Los Angeles.

Lashkari's 39 runs helped the U.S. reach 206 all out in a rather slow five hours and nine minutes in the first innings and then, after Canada had been dismissedfor only 164 Sunday, Lashkari hit 50 not out as he and Durity enabled the Americans to declare at 216 for one.

Fast bowlers Kortwright Richards of Victoria and Sefton Wallace of Calgary shared the spotlight on attack when Canada sent the U.S. in to open the batting.

Richards took three wickets for 33 runs and Wallace finished with three for 36. Rick Stevens of Toronto took three for 25 and captain Tony Clarke of Toronto had one for 29.

Tony Clarke, with 88 runs, was the only Canadian batsman to withstand the U.S. attack in the first innings. Stevens scored 17, Tim Lord of Cowichan made 13 and Dave Clarke of Victoria 12.

Left-arm medium-pace bowler Wes Hurde took five Canadian wickets for 42 runs and B. D. Ramnanan got three for 32.

Jay Manzoor of St. Louis supported Durity and Lashkari Sunday with a fine 51 as the U.S. declared at 216 for one, leaving Canada to make 259 in three hours and 20 minutes for victory.

Canada made a bad second-innings start with the openers going cheaply.

Dave Clarke made a crisp 18 before he hit his wicket and then Charlie Baksh of Winnipeg, who hit a forceful 92 not out, and Ellis Jorssen of Vancouver, who made 33, got together to stop the Canadian slump. Hasib Khan took four for 66 to lead the U.S. attack.

When time ran out, Canada had scored 160 for the loss of six wickets—99 runs short of victory.

The match, held in B.C. for the first time in the series' 178-year history, drew between 800 and 1,000 fans each day.

Queen Billie Jean Wilts In Sun—And Abdicates

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — The abdication of Billie Jean King as queen of the United States Open tennis championship has taken some of the lustre off her $100,000 women's lib matchup scheduled later this month in Houston.

Promoters of the Houston match had hoped that Bobby Riggs's biggest hustle ever would be not only the Wimbledon winner, but also the U.S. Open champion.

But it won't be that way.

Mrs. King succumbed to the flu, fatigue and furnace-like weather, and defaulted her fourth-round match to Julie Heldman after the fifth game of the third set Monday.

After Mrs. King took the first set with seeming ease and was leading 4-1 in the second, she began to falter. Miss Heldman reeled off six straight games and took nine of the last 10.

Down 4-1 in the third set, Mrs. King seemed immobilized and failed to take the court after a 60-second break.

Miss Heldman approached the umpire.

"Is the minute up?" she asked, referring to international rules that permit no more rest in changing courts.

"It's more than up," the umpire replied.

Julie then turned to her opponent and said:

"We must continue or stop the match."

"Okay," replied the wilted Billie Jean, "if you want it that much, you can have it."

Then she took the few steps from the clubhouse court to the dressing room and it was over.

In other women's play, West Germany's Helga Masthoff defeated No. 8 seed Olga Morozova of the Soviet Union 5-7, 6-4, 7-2; Rosemary Casals of San Francisco stopped Kristy Kemmer of Los Angeles 6-3, 6-4; and Evonne Goolagong of Australia downed Jeanne Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., 6-2, 6-1.

In men's play, Ken Rosewall, the 38-year-old Australian who won the men's crown here in 1962 and 1969 and is seeded No. 5, beat 16th-seeded Cliff Richey of Sarasota, Fla. 6-3, 6-4, 6-3.

Jimmy Connors, the 21-year-old star from Belleville, Ill., ousted Dutchman Tom Okker, seeded No. 7, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4.

John Newcombe, another Aussie who is seeded 10th, defeated Andre Pattison of Rhodesia 6-7, 6-1, 7-5, 6-4, and Vijay Amritraj, the sensation from India, overwhelmed Alan Stone of Australia 6-2, 6-2, 6-2.

On Saturday, a crowd of 10,868 watched the teenage Amritraj, one of three tennis-playing brothers from Madras, upset Australian veteran Rod Laver, the one-time king of the game, 7-6, 2-6, 6-4, 2-6, 6-4.

"I was lucky," Amritraj said after scoring his second victory of the summer over the player who ruled tennis for almost a decade.

But Laver said it wasn't luck. "He is very good — he plays solid tennis," Laver acknowledged.

Canadian Squad Posts First Win

BOLOGNA, Italy (CP) — Canada picked up its first win in the Intercontinental Baseball Tournament Monday, beating winless Nationalist China 7-6.

The win pushed the Canadians' record to 1-2. They play Puerto Rico today.

Wayne Martin of Vancouver stroked a two-run homer in the first inning to start things off for the Canadians. After China scored twice in their half of the first, the winners pushed home four runs in the second and one in the fifth to put the game away.

Rod Taylor of Lethbridge, Alta., and Doug Simon from Regina, each had three singles to spark the Canadians' hitting attack while Garth Neville of Brandon, Man., came on in the second inning and held the Chinese to only six hits the rest of the way in a strong relief performance.

Neville replaced starter Mike Finlayson of Victoria who gave up four hits.

Canada lost 6-1 to the United States Saturday and fell 10-9 to Nicaragua Sunday by virtue of an unearned run in the top of the 10th inning.

A total of eight errors and a bench-clearing brawl in the seventh inning marred Canada's game Saturday.

The action turned from baseball into a brawl with the Americans batting in the seventh. It began after Canadian pitcher Glennis Scott who relieved starter George Brice of Victoria, was warming up on the mound. Art Fischetti of Elmont, N.Y., the next batter, was standing near the plate during the warmups and Scott threw two pitches by his ear.

Fischetti raced to the mound and both benches emptied amid a flurry of punches. Fischetti and Richard Cerone of Newark, N.Y., were ejected.

McQuay Released

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Stampeders Sunday released Leon McQuay, adding another chapter to the Canadian Football League career of the controversial running back.

McQuay was placed on waivers without right of recall.

His release was announced following a meeting between general manager Roger Lehew and coach Jim Duncan. It was a dispute with Duncan during the weekend that led to McQuay's release.

McQuay, who played poorly in his only two Stampeder appearances after Calgary obtained him in a trade with Toronto Argonauts, spoke harshly to Duncan after he was asked to run a pass pattern during practice.

McQuay already had run the pattern poorly three times.

Lehew announced Sunday that McQuay either would be released outright or allowed to continue with a clean slate.

There was no prospect he would be suspended briefly and then reactivated.

McQuay already has been suspended once. The Argos suspended him after he argued with a team-mate and an assistant coach, then Toronto traded him to Calgary for lineman Granville Liggins.

Ticats Cool Lions

By The Canadian Press

Hamilton Tiger-Cats have been slow starters in some Canadian Football League games this summer, but once they get rolling, look out!

The Ticats, who scored 28 points in the fourth quarter of their previous outing, scored 27 in their final period Monday night to route British Columbia Lions 44-24 at Hamilton.

British Columbia made the Tiger-Cats look foolish while they built up a 21-0 lead early in the second quarter, but the heat and Garney Henley did them in.

At Montreal, the Alouettes and Toronto Argonauts traded field goals in the last 28 seconds and settled for a 23-23 tie.

REST ONE DAY

"No way we're used to this kind of heat," said B.C. general manager Jackie Parker, whose Lions have only one day's rest and no sign of cooler weather before they play the Rough Riders in Ottawa Wednesday night.

The temperature in Hamilton at game timewas 90, with a humidity reading of 99.

It was Henley whose touchdowns brought Hamilton back from that 21-0 deficit. He caught passes from quarterback Chuck Ealey for the first two Ticat touchdowns in the second quarter, then caught a third touchdown pass from Ealey at 2:15 of the fourth quarter to put his team in the lead for the first time, 27-24.

Dave Fleming's return to the running back position revived a running game that frequently sputtered in earlier Hamilton games.

Fleming carried 11 times for 97 yards, Andy Hopkins 12 times for 176 yards and Ealey nine times for 55 yards as the Cats finished with 333 yards rushing.

READY TO SHOOT

Hamilton coach Jerry Williams said he was ready to shoot a few of his defenders after the first quarter when the Lions had eight first downs and a pair of touchdowns by Lou Harris, a rookie from Southern California.

"They ran us down, they humiliated us," said Williams.

Harris scored again early in the second quarter, but then the Cats took over, turning the game into a romp in the last quarter, just as they did in their last game when their fourth-quarter scoring spree gave them a 38-4 win over the first-place Argonauts.

Besides Henley's three touchdowns, there were one each by Hopkins and Fleming and three field goals and five converts by Ian Sunter. Ted Gerela converted the B.C. touchdowns and kicked a field goal.

Williams blamed a too-long, 11-day layoff for his team's stumbling start, but at Montreal, Toronto quarterback Joe Theismann was complaining about a too-short, five-day rest for his team.

"The officials are not thinking of the players when they schedule games the way they do," he said. "I don't think the scheduling is fair to the players or the fans."

Zenon Andrusyshyn saved the game for the Argos when he kicked a 50-yard field goal, the longest of his career, with time out on the clock.

Theismann moved the ball to the 50 with short passes to Eric Allen, Peter Muller and Mike Eben in the last 28 seconds after Don Sweet's field goal gave Montreal a short-lived 23-20 lead.

In turn, that field goal was scored just 49 seconds after a Bill Symons touchdown put Toronto in front. Symons ran three yards for the touchdown after Theismann marched the Argos 104 yards in 11 plays.

Johnny Rodgers set up Sweet's field goal when he ran Andrusyshyn's subsequent kickoff back 66 yards to the Toronto 39.

Stamps Got a Kick Out of Big Finish

By The Canadian Press

Peter Liske returned Monday to the brilliant passing form that made him a Canadian Football League all-star in the glory days before he defected to the National Football League.

The veteran quarterback connected for three touchdown passes and sparked Calgary Stampeders to a last-play 25-24 triumph over staggering Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Guard Herb Schumm kicked the winning point after time had expired, booting the ball while running at close to full speed. Calgary punter Don Moulton started the play by kicking into the end zone from Winnipeg's 40-yard line.

Doug Strong of Winnipeg returned the kick and Schumm controlled the ball at the Winnipeg 20. Schumm's kick trickled through the end zone and boosted Calgary into a second place tie with Edmonton Eskimos and British Columbia Lions, four points behind Saskatchewan Roughriders in the Western Football Conference.

Equally exciting was Saskatchewan's 28-27 victory over the Eskimos at Regina.

MISSES KEY TRY

Dave Cutler, who holds a big lead in the Western Football Conference scoring race, missed on a decisive field goal attempt as time ran out.

Success by Cutler would have left Edmonton in a tie for first place with the Roughriders. It also would have been his fifth field goal of the game as Edmonton's offence failed to generate touchdowns.

George Reed ran three yards for a touchdown in the final minute to spark Saskatchewan's comeback. Jack Abendschan's convert gave the Roughriders a two-point lead, enough to withstand Cutler's closing single.

Bob Pearce and Rick Eber took touchdown tosses from Ron Lancaster for the Roughriders and Abendschan scored on two field goals, three converts, and a single.

Edmonton led 13-4 at halftime and held a 23-14 lead early in the fourth quarter.

George McGowan had two touchdowns for the Eskimos, both on passes from Bruce Lemmerman. Cutler booted the remaining 15 Edmonton points. He also had one field goal attempt blocked from about 50 yards out.

A record Saskatchewan crowd of 22,265 watched the thriller, which gave the Roughriders six wins in seven starts.

Calgary's 21,445 fans, some of whom came primarily to watch the Stampeders operate without halfback Leon McQuay, watched Liske complete 21 of 37 passes for 339 yards—easily his best performance of the season.

Rick Galbos, Gerry Shaw and Tom Forzani took scoring passes from Liske. Galbos and Forzani also caught five passes each. It was Galbos' first game for Calgary.

The Stampeders had not scored a touchdown in the two games McQuay played before being suspended during the weekend.

Veteran Larry Robinson completed Calgary's scoring with a 40-yard field goal and three converts.

Chenier's Catch Tops In Derby

Ray Chenier boated a 26-pound chinook around noon Monday at Pedder Bay to collect first prize of $50 in the Esquimalt and District Angler's Association three-day 21st annual Cerebral Palsy salmon derby.

Chenier's catch, landed on the final day of the derby, also brought him approximately $50 worth of fishing gear.

H. Perestam had held the lead for the first two days after landing a 14:14-pounder Saturday afternoon. He won second prize of $40.

Following, in order, were: H. Heier (10:07—$30), G. Sheridan (10:07—$20), and Harold Joseph (10:02—$10).

Eleanor Dalrymple won the draw prize of a boat, motor and trailer.

Gilbert Dore's 52-pound two-ounce tyee proved more than ample to win the $5,000 first prize in the two-day Port Alberni salmon festival. He caught the winner early Saturday.

Aaron Bags a Pair, Expos Three

By The Associated Press

Hank Aaron of Atlanta Braves hit the 707th and 708th home runs of his major league career Monday and moved within six of tying Babe Ruth's all-time record of 714.

Aaron's two homers helped the Braves beat San Diego Padres 7-3 in a National League baseball game and extend the Padres' losing streak to seven games.

Meanwhile, Cincinnati Reds moved into a first-place tie with Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League West, edging Houston Astros 4-3 while the Dodgers were losing to San Francisco Giants 11-8.

St. Louis Cardinals maintained a one-game lead over Pittsburgh Pirates in the tight Eastern Division by splitting a doubleheader with the Pirates. Pittsburgh won the first game 5-4 in 13 innings, then lost the second 8-3.

In Monday's other National League games, Philadelphia Phillies and New York Mets split, the Phils losing the opener 5-0 and winning the nightcap 6-3, and Montreal Expos defeated Chicago Cubs 5-2. Montreal's third straight pushed the Expos into sole possession of third place in the Eastern Division, three games behind the Cardinals.

In the American League, Boston Red Sox outslugged Baltimore Orioles 9-8 in a night game after losing the afternoon half of their doubleheader 13-8.

California Angels defeated Oakland A's 3-1, Minnesota Twins walloped Kansas City Royals 11-5, Chicago White Sox swept Texas Rangers 8-7 in 11 innings and 5-2, Milwaukee Brewers dropped Cleveland Indians 13-5 in their opener, then lost the nightcap 10-5 and New York Yankees edged Detroit Tigers 4-3.

Aaron equalled another record held by Ruth — most home runs in one league. Ruth hit his first 708 in the American League and his last six in the National.

Aaron hit his 34th homer of the season in the third inning for the Braves off the Padres' Clay Kirby, then added his 35th in the fifth off Vicente Romo.

Bobby Bonds hit a grand slam homer in the bottom of the ninth to climax the Giants' comeback from an 8-1 deficit.

The amazing Expos, finding themselves in the thick of the pennant scramble, surpassed the million mark in attendance for a fifth straight season when 20,165 turned out to witness the victory over Chicago.

The attendance Monday raised the year's mark to 1,016,252 spectators at the tiny 28,456-seat stadium, smallest in the major leagues.

Total attendance for the club is 6,086,651 since it joined the league in 1969.

The largest single attendance year so far was 1970 when 1,424,683 fans passed through the turnstiles. The 1972 mark of 1,142,145 was the smallest. Montreal has 16 home games remaining.

Driving Honors Shared After Hectic Weekend

Larry Pollard, Steve Kennedy and Bill Sheldrake shared the winner's circle Monday after a special three-part Labor Day Jamboree before 3,334 car-racing fans at Western Speedway.

Drivers in each of the three local racing classes — super-stocks, stocks and claimers — ran through time trials, a trophy dash and two main events, with starters in the second main being lined up in the reverse order of their finish in the first feature.

Pollard emerged as the over-all super-stock winner with a victory in the second 35-lap main and a third-place finish in the earlier feature.

Gary Kershaw, who won the first main after breaking his own track record for the second time in as many meets, had transmission problems after his win and was unable to continue.

Kershaw's new mark of 17.899 seconds for one circuit of the four-tenths of a mile oval works out to an average speed of slightly over 80 miles per hour.

Pollard gained the lead on the 25th lap of the main by passing Rick O'Dell on the backstretch. Terry Forsyth also managed to get by the early leader to finish second but O'Dell managed to place third.

Kennedy's better run during time trials provided the three-point edge over Tony Johnson in the over-all stocker standings for the evening. Johnson won the first 25-lap main and Kennedy won the second.

Orton Ker was thanking Western's rigid safety regulations after flipping hard six times coming out of the final turn on the first lap of the first main. The battering tore the body right off the car but the roll-bar cage remained intact and Kery came out uninjured.

Sheldrake picked up over-all claimer laurels despite not winning either of the 15-lap mains. He finished second to Ray Birtwhistle in the first event and third to Wayne Sidorko in the second.

On Saturday, Roy Smith of Victoria retained the Billy Foster modified trophy for the third straight year before approximately 2,200 fans.

Smith won the seventh annual running of the event by five lengths after setting fast time and winning the "A" trophy dash.

But a good deal of credit for the win in the 50-lap feature goes to his pit crew. Winning the dash left his vehicle with a blown head gasket, usually a two and one-half hour repair job. But his crew managed tyo get everything back together in an hour in time for the main.

Smith, who had to start at the rear of the 13-car field, needed only eight laps to get through the pack and pass leader John Carrol of Stanwood, Wash.

However, Smith's luck didn't extend to his super-stock and engine problems forced him out of the main event of a NASCAR Western Grand National event Sunday at Monroe, Wash.

The WGN series appears at Western on Wednesday with time trials at 7 p.m.

Track Steward Dies

Samuel "Pat" Pattison, a 42-year-old track steward from Long Beach, Calif., was pronounced dead on arrival at a Monroe, Wash., hospital Sunday after being struck by a super-stock in the 125-mile NASCAR Western Grand National race at Evergreen Speedway.

In a separate mishap seconds earlier, George Jefferson of Naches, Wash., was hit by a different car and admitted to hospital with a broken leg.

Elsewhere in the world of motor sports, Cale Yarborough bagged his first major victory in three years and David Pearson became auto racing's fifth $1 million career winner in the 24th running of the Southern 500 stock car race at Darlington, S.C.

Yarborough beat Pearson across the finish line by about eight seconds in a torrid late-race duel that kept a near-record crowd of 70,000 standing much of the final 100 miles.

Yarborough collected $21,165 for the win and Pearson's $10,605 second-place money boosted his career earnings to $1,005,895.

At Indianapolis, Gary Beck of Edmonton set new national records Monday to top fuel class at the U.S. Nationals drag race.

Beck, 32, collected the win while eliminating Carl Olson of Los Angeles in the final round.

On the way to his win, Beck set new records of 5.96 seconds elapsed time and 243.90 miles per hour to win the 19th annual event.

Beck, a full-time racer, defeated Olson with a 6.08-second run in the final despite an oil leak which caused him to lose traction at the starting line. Beck was second getting off the line, but managed to pull past the Californian at the half-way point.

His victory was worth $18,000 of the total purse of $360,000.

Wally Dallenbach, frustrated for six years as a pro driver, won $80,000 for his Monday victory in the California 500 before 110,830 fans at Ontario Speedway.

Mario Andretti finished runner-up just five seconds behind Dallenbach after Al Unser dropped out of contention with a faulty gearbox on the 191st lap.

In Mt. Pocono, Pa., Brian Redman finished first in the Formula 500 championship race Monday but Jody Scheckter, a South African who escaped injury when his car hit a guard rail during a practice run Saturday, finished third to claim the series title.

Norm Lellitt of Toronto won the Stock Car Series of Champions with a sixth-place finish in the final event at Nelles Corners, Ont., Monday while Cal Wall of Calgary won the cross-country event Saturday in the inaugural Cariboo four-wheel-drive club rally.

Quiet Casper Wins Another

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — There was something of a wistful quality in Billy Casper's voice as he surveyed the vast throng of some 30,000 around the 18th green.

"I just wish," said golf's quiet man, "there were a few more of Billy's Buffaloes around."

Casper, as usual, was virtually ignored until the final few holes when he emerged as the winner of the $40,000 first prize Monday in the Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open.

It was the 50th professional victory for the portly, 42-year-old veteran, and his fourth in this tournament. His victory total is exceeded by only four men.

But, as has been the case through his entire career, the cheers and accolades were reserved for others.

Arnold Palmer received a standing ovation, a cheering, foot-stomping tribute as he came to the 18th, already out of contention. The crowds roared and laughed when Lee Trevino, also out of it, birdied the final hole and threw his cap to the gallery.

But when it was over, it was the greying Casper who stood alone at the top, the author of an errorless 64, seven under par in the steaming heat of the Wethersfield Country Club course.

He had a course record score of 264. And his 20-under-par total was the second-best on the tour this season. But he won by only one stroke over Australian Bruce Devlin.

Devlin had two eagles in a five-hole stretch on the back nine, put together a 66 and took second at 265.

George Knudson of Toronto, only four strokes behind after three rounds, soared to a 72 in the fourth round and finished with a 273 total. He picked up $1,244.

Hometown Triumph For Sandra Haynie

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Sandra Haynie scuttled her challengers with a three-under-par 69 Sunday en route to a five-shot victory in the inaugural $30,000 Charity Golf Classic.

With a hometown crowd urging her on, the blonde ace posted a 54-hole total of 208, eight under par and blitzed runners-up Judy Rankin, Kathy Whitworth, Murle Breer and Carole Jo Skala to collect the $4,500 first prize and her second Ladies Professional Golf Association title of the year.

The quartet in second place wound up at 213 and earned $2,480 each for three tours of the sultry 6,243-yard Woodhaven Country Club course which plays to a par of 72 for women.

The triumph propelled Miss Haynie from ninth to sixth on the LGPA money-winning list with $39,867 and hiked her career record to 27 victories.

Sandra Post of Oakville, Ont., shot a 71 for a 223 total, good for $206 in prize money. Jocelyne Bourassa of Shawinigan, Que., who had a 154 total for the first 36 holes, withdrew.

Century, Electronics Grab Provincial Titles

Victoria squads managed to bat two-for-three in B.C. senior softball tournaments staged over the holiday weekend.

Century Inn defeated Rutland Rovers 4-2 Monday for the men's "B" crown and CAV Electronics picked up the women's "C" championship Sunday with a 4-2 win over Almo at Prince George.

Port Alberni Spa won men's "C" laurels Monday in Port Alberni with a 1-0 nod over New Westminster Molsons after Victoria's Royal Oak Sporting Goods had been eliminated.

Century was undefeated until Monday, beating Vancouver Lougheed 10-2 and Kamloops Steinke Hotel 4-3 Saturday before topping North Vancouver Molsons 3-2 and Nanaimo Tally-Ho 8-1 on Sunday.

Rovers, who had fought back through the losers bracket and gained a berth in the final with a 6-5 victory over Nanaimo earlier Monday, handed Century a 2-0 defeat in their first meeting.

Gordie Rutherford of Victoria was chosen top batter in the tournament after compiling a .500 average and Mel Nelson, who hurled the final victory, was selected as the top-pitcher.

CAV went through the women's tourney in undefeated fashion but Salmo had to fight back through the losers' bracket to gain the final after absorbing a 6-4 defeat at the hands of the Victoria team earlier in the day.

Victoria tripped Prince George Oldstylers 10-4 and downed Abbotsford 7-4 on Saturday.

Royal Oak dropped their opener 5-1 to Molsons on Saturday but ran through Sunday's play in the losers' bracket by beating North Vancouver RCMP 4-3, McKenzie Ready Mix 6-0 and Penticton 5-0.

Molsons ousted Royal Oak with an 8-1 decision in five innings early Monday.

Record and New Caddy Pay Off for Wakeham

BILL WAKEHAM . . . pockets $1,000

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

Bill Wakeham figures he's found an unbeatable caddy, but establishing course records are the sort of rounds that also produce winning golf.

The Cowichan professional had both—the caddy and the course record—en route to a smashing victory in the second annual CFAX-Metro Toyota Open at Cedar Hill at the weekend.

Wakeham opened with his record effort Saturday, a six-under-par 59, then added a one-under 64 on Sunday to cruise home four shots ahead of a tough field that included 37 professionals.

It was the first time Wakeham has ever won a tournament on the municipal-owned Saanich course, and he didn't mind looking at Bruce Ogg as his good-luck omen.

A 12-year-old Cowichan junior who plays to a 22 handicap, Ogg has caddied for Wakeham in three tournaments. The Chopper has won all three.

The record round really told the story. Wakeham achieved it with 12 pars and six birdies, five of which came on the back nine for a torrid 28.

"That's quite a greeting," said Bob Panasiuk, the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association champion from Windsor, Ont., who entered the tournament at Wakeham's invitation. "He invited me out, then flings a round like that in my face."

Wakeham won $1,000 while Panasiuk, picked up $512, along with Vancouver's Terry Weins, as his share of second money.

Cec Ferguson of Gregarah was the leading amateur with 64-67—131.

Six players tied for low net honors, but Bob Labinksy of Peace Portal won the trophy on a count-back.

Also a winner was Oak Bay assistant Mike Parker. Parker just missed the prize money with a three-over 133 total, but won the services of a new car for a year by coming closest to holing out on the par-three 17th.

SAANICH UCT CAPTURES MIDGET LACROSSE TITLE

Saanich United Commercial Travellers retained the Canadian midget lacrosse championship Monday with a 17-11 victory over East Vancouver Bluebirds in the final of the Keith Tackaberry Memorial tournament in Calgary.

Wayne Lawson led UCT with four goals as Saanich scored seven goals in the second period to overcome a 5-4 deficit after the first 20 minutes of play. Steve Pears had four goals for East Vancouver.

Calgary Braves edged West Edmonton Canadians 12-11 in the consolation final.

Elsewhere in boxla playoffs, Nanaimo City captured the B.C. senior "C" title by sweeping a best-of-three series against host Vernon Blues.

A goal by Alex Duggan with only three seconds remaining in regulation time gave Nanaimo an 11-10 nod in the first game Saturday but the Hub City crew came back Sunday for a decisive 13-9 decision to take the title.

Harry Ruitenbeek, picked up from Victoria, led Nanaimo with four goals in the first game.

Burnaby Cablevision wrapped up the B.C. junior "B" title Sunday with a 17-10 win over Prince George Northern Sabres. The Sunday victory combined with a 25-7 triumph Saturday, gave Burnaby a 42-17 margin in the two-game, total-goal series.

Strong Defence Key To Dolphins' Victory

Victoria Dolphins pulled themselves out of the B.C. Big Four Junior Football League cellar Sunday by tripping Vancouver Blue Bombers 15-7 at Royal Athletic Park.

Dolphins and Bombers had both been winless and tied for last place in the five-team loop before the game.

A 90-yard kickoff return by Barry Stewart accounted for the first Dolphin touchdown at the start of the second half after Blue Bombers had taken a 7-0 lead on Bill Robinson's major.

Dolphin quarterback Ron Taylor connected late in the fourth quarter on a pass to wide receiver Rob Lowe, who rampled 20 yards for Victoria's second touchdown.

Stewart supplied the balance of Dolphin points by kicking three singles.

"It was our defence that pulled us through," said Dolphin head coach Roy Vollinger.

In particular, Vollinger singled out the front four of Hans DeGoede, Rick Denman, Max Edison and George Roberts as well as middle linebacker Steve Ludvigson for excellent play on defence.

Another factor in the victory was the Victoria punting, which gained about 10 yards on each turnover.

Vancouver Meralomas trounced North Shore Cougars 28-5 Monday in Vancouver to score their fifth straight victory.

League-leading scorer Rick Price gathered in touchdown passes of 75 and 20 yards from Lomas quarterback Dan Smith to lead the win.

Meralomas	5	5	0	205	53	10
North Shore	4	2	2	61	61	4
Burnaby	4	2	2	78	65	4
VICTORIA	3	1	2	29	128	2

Ram Veteran Ends Career

By The Associated Press

Middle-linebacker Marlin McKeever has announced his retirement after 12 years in the National Football League.

McKeever, 33, was defensive signal caller for Los Angeles Rams the last two years, capping a career in which he also played tight end, catching 133 passes in five seasons.

He had minor knee surgery during the last off-season and had been competing with Jack Reynolds and rookie Jim Yougblood for the middle linebacking job.

Match-Play Troubles Over for New Champ

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Sometimes the best laid plans of men go astray and that's what happened to Craig Stadler.

"I didn't plan on making the finals when I came here," said Stadler, a Southern California junior, who beat Dave Strawn of Concord, N.C., six and five Sunday in the 36-hole windup of the U.S. amateur golf championships.

"I've played so poorly in match play all of my life," Stadler said, "I think I won one match-play tournament when I was in high school. Since then I've won only one or two rounds."

However, once the 20-year-old La Jolla, Calif., golfer started moving on the Inverness Club course, he couldn't be stopped.

To make it to the finals, he knocked off British Amateur champion Dick Siderowf and defending champion Marvin (Vinny) Giles on the same day—Saturday.

Stadler plans on turning pro, but not until 1976.

"I want to play on the Walker Cup team and I'll be playing school golf until then."

Senior Golf Champ

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — W. F. Colm of Pebble Beach, Calif., defeated Florida rival Truman Connell 3 and 2 to win the world amateur seniors' golf championship in a five-day tournament involving 64 players from 24 countries.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Switch by Kirzinger Has Hornets Buzzing

DUNCAN — Saanich Chew Excavating Hornets, led by the outstanding play by quarterback Dave Kirzinger, hammered Cowichan Timbermen 45-13 in a Vancouver Island Juvenile Football League game Sunday.

Kirzinger. who played defensive end last season, threw touchdown passes to Sean Flynn and Ed Murray and also ran five and 56 yards for two other majors.

Halfback Kerry Lacroix flipped the ball to Jeff Herold to set up a 90-yard pass-and-run play which produced another Hornet TD.

The only other Hornet major came on a pass interception by defensive back Al Finlayson, who ran 35 yards to cross the line.

Murray opened scoring by kicking a 47-yard field goal and converted five of the six TDs. Ernst Benischek provided Hornets with a single point by blocking a punt.

Cowichan touchdowns were scored by Mark Bulcock and Alan Garside while Dan Longfield booted one convert.

Next league game is Wednesday when Hornets meet Oak Bay Farmer Construction at 8 p.m. in Royal Athletic Park in Victoria.

Dynes Wrap Up Softball Crown

HULL, Que. (CP) — Richmond Hill Dynes, representing Ontario, won the Canadian men's softball championship Saturday, defeating Dartmouth, N.S., 8-0.

Richmond Hill, last year's world champions and the favorites going into the week-long tournament, overwhelmed Dartmouth with one run in each of the first and fourth innings and three runs in each of the third and sixth innings.

Richmond Hill scoring was led by Derek Kinnersly who scored runs in the fourth and sixth innings.

Ontario pitcher Barry Timbers allowed only two hits during the game played in hot, muggy weather.

Thirteen provincial and territorial teams and the host Hull Volants played a total of 35 games in the modified, round-robin tournament. Victoria Bate Construction bowed 2-0 to Dynes in Friday's semifinals.

LLANELLI COMPLETES SWEEP BY CLIPPING TIDE

Keeping their opponents pinned down with well-placed kicks, Llanelli of Wales defeated Victoria Crimson Tide 17-6 Saturday in an international exhibition rugby match before about 1,000 fans at Centennial Stadium.

Victory gave the Welsh a sweep of their seven-game Canadian tour.

Llanelli proved especially strong handling the ball in the back line, dominated the line-outs and rucks but didn't seem to carry the attack as much as in their first match here last Tuesday, when they defeated a Victoria Union President's XV, 40-9.

Bernard Thomas led the visitors with two penalty goals while Andy Hill booteed another. Selwyn Williams and Roger Davies each scored a try for the Welshmen.

Alan Rees, who scored all nine Victoria points in the first match, again was the lone scorer for the host side with two penalty goals.

Williams opened scoring halfway through the first half with a burst up the side but Rees brought Victoria within one point seven minutes later by booting a 40-yarder.

Ten minutes from the break, Thomas boosted the margin back to four points (7-3) with a 45-yard kick.

In the first minute of the second half, Rees again clipped the gap with a 30-yard penalty goal from an extreme angle.

But from that point on, the match belonged to Llanelli.

Next Crimson Tide match will be Sept. 27 against Fiji.

Population Has Shrunk in City's Core Despite Encouragement From City Hall

They're not called townhouses

By WAYNE HARDING
Times Staff

When the tourists get back on the boats, when the long-haired youths wander away from the squares, when the workers drive off to the suburbs, a community of 3,600 citizens remains in downtown Victoria.

Most of them are old people.

Many of them are poor people.

For all but a few, downtown living is not a fashionable new lifestyle. They cannot describe their rooms as townhouses.

For at least the past five years, official policy has been to encourage people to make their homes downtown.

Planners have envisaged redevelopments that would turn old buildings into fine apartment blocks occupied by working and middle-class people.

City council has responded to that vision — seeing benefits in having a community living close to work and shopping. Among the encouragements has been an amendment to the traffic bylaw in September 1972 to waive residential parking requirements for buildings built before 1910 in the downtown core.

But developers have been slow to respond to the encouragement and the visions of affluent urbanites replacing the indigent residents of the walk-up rooms.

Of course, there have been a few imaginative efforts such as the conversion of the London Flats at Broad and Johnson Streets and the conversion of the Albany Hotel on Government Street into a school of weaving with studios.

But on the larger scale, nothing much has happened except that the downtown community has become smaller. Between 1961 and 1971 it declined by 1,642 souls.

A declining population is natural for a community of old people — and downtown is just that.

Although many young people are evident during the day, in the core area (between Belleville and Chatham Streets and between Cook and the harbor), there are only 170 residents under the age of 20. The largest group of children living in the area, 75, live in Chinatown where there still are a relatively large number of families.

At the other end of the age scale, there are about 1,100 residents in the same area who are over the age of 65.

★

Apart from age and the modest incomes, the downtown community is not a very homogeneous society. It does not speak with any single voice. The Chinese community — about one-sixth of the total downtown population — is also made up mostly of elderly men whose numbers are declining but they live apart from the rest of the downtown population.

The age of the downtown residents is reflected in community facilities. There are no schools (other than dancing, craft and language schools whose students are attracted from throughout the region) and there are no playgrounds.

But for the elderly there is a pensioners hall, the Silver Threads Centre and many private clubs.

There also are nine beer parlors and 10 cocktail lounges in the area.

Indeed social life can be quite busy for those who can afford to share the public facilities of downtown Victoria with the suburbanites and tourists who visit.

Shopping facilities are plentiful, of course — but only during the day. When the suburbanites leave, there is no grocery store open between Yates and distant Niagara Street. There is also no laundromat open at nights downtown.

Will this quiet, often forgotten community that never lobbies city hall remain?

★

Probably not. While "people haven't been quick" to respond to the incentives of downtown living, says community development director Geoffrey Greennhalgh, the large "housing stock" in the downtown area suggests the visions of the planners and the politicians will soon be shared by developers and future residents.

The proposed Reid Centre apartment complex will make a major change to the composition of the community. There has been talk of building flats in the Dowell Building on Wharf Street. And there will probably be others.

In some cases, redevelopment itself will reduce the population as old buildings containing humble single-room residences are re-done into larger flats.

If it is now happening, the elderly indigent men who are being shifted out by the affluent urbanites have not complained. But they will.

"Elderly people want downtown accommodation and they can't get it now." says Mrs. Pauline Barker of the Silver Threads organization. "Prices are going up everywhere, including downtown, making it hard on them."

Three Drivers Jailed, First Time Impaired

Three people were jailed today when stiffer penalties for first-time impaired drivers were brought into effect in Victoria traffic court.

A six-day jail sentence, to be served on weekends, was ordered by Judge Harold Alder for a 63-year-old man who admitted impaired driving in the 700-block Discovery on Monday.

Leonard Arendell, 714 Discovery, was also fined $100 for failing to remain at the scene of an accident earlier the same evening. Three months' probation was ordered.

The sentence, said Alder, was imposed "in view of the policy declared in the area."

The policy which provides for sentences of up to seven days in jail began Sept. 1.

Alder said earlier that fines of up to $350 and six-month suspensions were not having the desired effect.

He said then the new imprisonment policy could become "pretty general."

The Criminal Code allows a judge to impose up to three months imprisonment for a first offender and a fine of up to $500.

Also facing the stiffer penalty for impaired driving on Douglas St. Saturday was Ava Urquart, 23, of 860 Carrie, who was sentenced to two days in jail.

"There's no provision for different sentencing for women," said Alder, adding the woman was prohibited from driving in Canada for one year.

Court was told she reached speeds of up to 80 mph along Douglas and failed to stop when police started to follow.

Another six-day jail sentence was ordered for a 19-year-old youth charged with impaired driving July 21. David Allan Jeffrey, 128 Michigan, was stopped in the 500-block Fort St.

Judge Alder also imposed fines of up to $500 and driving suspensions for up to 10 months for persons charged with having a blood-alcohol content over .08.

Kathleen Collins, 23, of 3902 Cadboro Bay Road, was fined $500 for having a reading over .08 when stopped by police Saturday in the 1000-block Wharf.

THINKING DRIVERS END UP SMARTING

Travellers trying to dodge ferry line-ups Labor Day apparently outsmarted themselves on the Swartz Bay - Tsawwassen run because traffic was light Monday but there were delays today.

A spokesman at Swartz Bay said ferries had only three-quarter loads to mid-afternoon Monday and there was virtually no waiting. Line-ups this morning produced one to two-hour waits.

At Tsawwassen, traffic was described as light Monday but there were waits of about an hour this morning.

No one was left waiting at Departure Bay overnight, a spokesman at Nanaimo said today. Traffic there was light Monday morning, building to waits of about two hours later in the day.

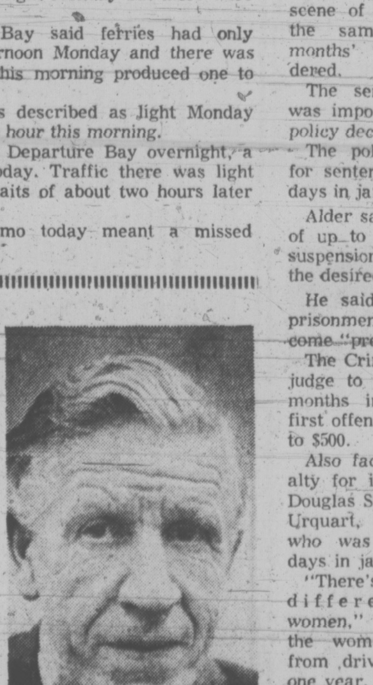
Moderate traffic at Nanaimo today meant a missed sailing for a few vehicles.

Sooke Logger Reigns Again

Ron Hartill of Sooke won the Panicky Bell trophy for top logger for the second year in a row Saturday in world logging championships at the Pacific National Exhibition in Vancouver.

Hartill compiled a total of 14 points by winning the single bucking event, coming second in the chokerman's race and in the obstacle pole event, and in the top five in the standing block and springboard chop.

Supermarket Apple Hike Criticized



LITTER
"... no reason"

Provincial horticulturist Alan Littler said today supermarkets should give consumers "a break" by reducing the price of locally grown apples.

"There's too great a mark-up between producer price and retail price," he said.

He said producers are getting 16 cents a pound for red Tydemans and the same apples are selling in supermarkets at 37 cents.

"It would be more reasonable to sell these apples at about 29 cents a pound," he said.

Littler said Vancouver Island produces about 850,000 pounds of apples a year, adding that California apples are selling between 33 and 45 cents, depending on the variety.

"This is no reason for the price of locally produced apples to be so high," he said.

He said he was amazed at the large amount of imported vegetables in local stores.

"I'm investigating the matter now."

Ask The Times

Q. How did the phrase, "God Bless You," after someone sneezes, originate? J.W.F.

A. The phrase was originally used as a blessing to someone near death. At the dying person's last breath, usually a wheezing type of sound, the gathered relatives would issue their blessing. The phrase eventually came to be used after a person sneezed, presumably because a sneeze produced a similar sound to a death wheeze.

Scene of Trail Fatality Long-Standing Concern

Outdoorsmen have been pressing the federal parks department to improve a section of the west coast trail near Port Renfrew where a man drowned Saturday.

The man was identified as Donald Arthur Matheson, 23, of London, Ont.

RCMP believe he is the trail's first fatality.

He was walking on the rocks near Logan Creek, about 10 miles west of Port Renfrew, when he fell into a sea chasm.

Matheson was hiking the trail from Bamfield with his girl friend Mary McLellan, also from Ontario, when he fell, but she was unable to pull him out of the water, police said.

Jack Scrivener, executive director of the Victoria Boy Scout Association, said the condition of the trail around Logan Creek has been of some concern to hikers for some time.

"The trail in this area is in such a poor condition that people are tempted to walk along the seashore which is more dangerous," he said.

"At Logan Creek, for example, "if you don't want to walk along a trail full of debris and fallen trees, the only alternative is to walk along a tricky ledge," he said.

"The trail in this area obviously needs to be improved or there may be other accidents. The remainder of the trail between Bamfield and Logan creek is fairly safe."

The federal parks branch this summer started to repair the western section of the trail. Many hikers felt the department should have started improving the trail in the Port Renfrew area.

Police said people have suffered broken legs or sprained ankles in falls on the trail.

The trail in the last few years has been attracting visitors from all parts of North America because of its wilderness aspects.

Davis Invited to River

Indian demonstrators near the mouth of the Cowichan River, fishing with a weir which is alleged to be illegal, have invited Environment Minister Jack Davis to hear their grievances Thursday.

Gordon Elliott, spokesman for about 30 young Indians who are protesting fisheries department restrictions, said Monday their weir went into operation Saturday afternoon.

Fisheries officers from nearby Duncan, who said earlier that weirs are illegal, visited the site Monday but asked only for more information on the demonstrators' plans, said Elliott.

The invitation to Davis, whose portfolio includes fisheries, was to be sent Monday or today, said Elliott. The Indians will have a submission for him and if he fails to show up it will be given to reporters.

A weir is a way of fishing rivers used by Indians in the old days but discarded on the Cowichan about 40 years ago. A fence of stakes and branches across the river directs the spawning salmon into a trap where they can be easily harvested.

Indians may obtain special permits to spear, and in some cases net, spawning salmon but the demonstrators argue they are not able to harvest enough fish to feed their families this way.

Elliott had indicated the Indians want to co-operate with the fisheries department to ensure sufficient fish escape to produce a future run. But they also want to manage the fish in the river passing through reserve lands and to use the old ways of catching them

The council of the Cowichan Indian Band, while supporting in principle the aims of the demonstrators, has dissociated itself from the demonstration, hinting that outsiders taking part may lead to trouble.

All of the 30 or so demonstrators camped by an old barn about a mile from the river mouth are young and most are from the interior.

'Love Me . . . Love My Job'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nancy Kuni is from new Port Richey, Fla. Her husband Howard comes from Penns Park, Pa. They now live in Sparta, N.J.

The Kunis represent a growing trend in today's working world. Husband and wife share similar or the same occupations. The Kunis are airline flight personnel.

Kuni, a pilot for 17 years, is a captain with United Air Lines. Mrs. Kuni has been a stewardess with UAL for three and a half years. There also are two younger Kunis, Steve, 13, and Bruce, 12, who say that because their parents are away from home so much "we can cook better than Mom."

The Kunis no longer are a rarity in the airlines industry. Almost all carriers have husband-wife teams since they've dropped restrictions against the married stewardess.

United alone reports several hundred husband-wife teams among its pilot-stewardess contingent of 13,000. They also have one steward-stewardess pair, Gerald and Theresa Williams, who fly out of Washington's National Airport.

UAL says the Kunis are among the few couples who have children. The couple flies 75 to 80 hours each during the average month, often one airborne while the other is at home.

"Occasionally," said Mrs. Kuni, "we pass in Chicago."

Their main worry, she said, is that "we're not with the children enough. But the boys are quite capable and when both of us are away there are the lovely neighbors."

Occupation sharing, or "love me, love my line of work," includes both the famous and the non-newsmakers.

All of us hear of the Richard Burton-Elizabeth Taylor sharing in show business (well, they did share until they announced recently plans for divorce), of the Drs. William H. and Virginia Johnson Masters, the noted sex researchers, of Dewitt and Lila Acheson Wallace, co-chairmen of Reader's Digest.

The U.S. labor department says that more than one-fifth of all working couples around the country share the same occupation.

The statistics, from a 1971 report, showed the highest concentration was among clerical workers; some 43 per cent of wives and husbands sharing such jobs as typist, record-keeper, office personnel, secretary and stenographer.

The next most popular category was in the professional and technical field. Here, more than two-fifths of the wives have the same occupation as husbands.

Working couples in this group ranged from medical and other health workers to teachers (except college) and other professionals such as social workers and accountants.

Another category which has attracted many couples is in the service field — cooks, waitresses, bartenders, policemen and the like.

One factor in the sharing is that women increasingly are moving into jobs traditionally labelled male.

Bethlehem Steel, for instance, has Sam and Lena Hill, welders at its San Francisco yard. They do the same work, get the same pay, belong to the same union, says the company.

Does all this change mean that in the future we will have more women tending bar as their husbands serve at tables? The experts' crystal ball clouds a little here.

One thing is clear, though, reports the health insurance institute.

It says married couples enjoy more employee benefits than when only one spouse has a job.

And one fringe benefit might be added communication because of mutual interest.

As the saying goes, "next to love talk, shop talk is best."

Viet Orphans Make Hit

WASHINGTON (WP) — Jonathan is 5½. Sometime earlier in his life he touched off a land mine and lost a leg. He would likely be in an orphanage now or scouting around the streets of Danang had it not been for a young couple, who heard about Jonathan from a friend and, sight unseen, adopted him.

"For a while we couldn't take him out in public," said Debby Boroughs, the adoptive mother. "Everywhere we would go people would rush up to him and smother him with affection and ask questions. In restaurants waitresses would bring out free desserts for him, and our other children were a little jealous."

Randy and Debby Boroughs of Wayne, Pa., were among 100 adoptive parents and Vietnamese children who gathered at a Warrenton, Va., estate recently for what hosts George and Marion Szego said was "simple camaraderie" among people with a common bond.

Because many adoptive parents apparently don't like their children put on display, or thought of as some sort of self-serving badge of recognition for the parents, only gradually did they tell each other how they came to adopt Vietnamese children, why, and what it meant to them.

Jonathan arrived last year sick, full of parasites and splotched with scars. While his new parents hugged him at the airport, the Boroughs' two natural children, boys 3 and 4, looked up his empty pantleg in bewildered curiosity.

Since then, "the children have adjusted really well," said Mrs. Boroughs. "But some of the relatives are still adjusting to (1) The adoption of (2) a Vietnamese who (3) is handicapped."

"People say what a wonderful thing you've done," said George Allen, a television newsman who has adopted Vietnamese boys age 13 and 9. "Hell, we did it for ourselves for the satisfaction of watching them develop."

These days young people, even children, usually know more about drugs and the effects they produce than their parents and teachers.

The 20-page booklet "To Parents — about Drugs" discusses the hazards of drug abuse. With this knowledge, adults will be better equipped to help young people resist the strong pressure by their peers to experiment with them. According to estimates, one out of three youthful drug users eventually becomes an habitual.

The booklet also surveys the typical effects and potential dangers of drugs most widely abused today. It also stresses that when young people feel close enough to their parents or other adults to discuss their frustrations, many drug problems can be prevented.

You will also learn how to recognize the signs of drug abuse and where to find suitable rehabilitation programs. At the end of the booklet, information sources across Canada are given.

When parents do suspect that their child is taking drugs, they should not panic, but help him by showing love and concern.

Let Charlie Down But Do It Gently

DEAR ABBY: At my age, I should be giving advice, not asking for it, but I just don't know how to handle this.

My husband passed away two years ago of a terminal illness. While he was sick, his best friend Charlie (a divorced man) was wonderful to both of us, and he promised my husband he would "look after" me.

After my husband's death Charlie helped me in my grief and loneliness, and I transferred the love I had for my husband to him. He's pushing for marriage, but I just don't trust him. I have become suspicious, jealous, and resentful of Charlie. He says he loves me, but he is very often "unreachable," which upsets me. I have caught him in several lies, for which he always has explanations, but I am not convinced.

Every time I try to tell him I want to hold off marrying him, he gets a terrible attack of something. (Asthma or the shingles.) I am so afraid he will die, and I'll be responsible for it.

How can I get out of marrying him without making him sick? — In a Bind.

DEAR IN: Avoid a scene. Gently ease Charlie out of your life. See others and drop him gradually without telling him it's his swan song. It's your neck or his.

DEAR ABBY: What a coincidence! My husband also lost both legs in an accident.

After spending a year in the hospital, Gary went to law school, where he was elected president of the student bar association. His other honors are too numerous to mention here. He is a partner in a prominent law firm, and is very active in community affairs. He plays golf, dances, drives a car, and does everything every other normal, healthy man does. He's a good provider, and we have a lovely home and three healthy children. The youngest two were born after his accident.

Gary Formet is more "whole" than some men will ever be. — Gary's Wife, Orlando, Fla.

DEAR ABBY: I need help soon. My son is engaged to be married. I met his bride-to-be only once. She is a beautiful, rich society girl. I hear they are having a big church wedding. There will be all kinds of high-class people there. Abby, I have never been to a wedding like this let alone been IN one.

This is way out of my class. I wish I could say I have a headache at the last minute and ditch the whole thing. I don't know what to wear and I won't know how to act or what to say. I'm afraid I'll be a hick from the sticks and I'll embarrass my poor son.

I do janitor work in an of-or get out of it? — Groom's fice building at night, and I just won't fit in with these people.

How can I either learn fast
Mother.

DEAR MOTHER: Be yourself, and you'll do just fine. Ask your son to find out what kind of gown the bride's mother is wearing, and wear one that will go well with hers. (Perhaps your son and his fiance can help you purchase the dress and accessories.) You need not feel inadequate or embarrassed. After all, you are contributing something to the wedding that is of the utmost importance: The groom!

Baggie-Snaffled Bun Captured for Files

By MARY MOORE

Muffins have been popular in this column recently and I have yet another recipe to add to your file.

It came from an old and beloved source — our Sunday school teacher Irene Maxwell.

My sisters, Peady and Doris, went to visit her and she gave them a lovely dinner accompanied by muffins. Ever faithful Doris snaffled one in a baggie in her purse to bring to me. It was so good that I wrote to Irene and asked for the recipe.

My brother is my favorite muffin critic so I made them for him but it was his wife Wyn who raved about them. That was all I needed to decide to pass them on to you. They are uncharacteristically light for muffins and therein lies their charm.

IRENE MAXWELL'S OATMEAL MUFFINS

1 c. sour milk or buttermilk (or soured sweet milk — see below).
1 c. rolled oats.
1 egg
½ c. melted shortening or oil
1 c. sifted cake and pastry flour
½ c. wheat germ
½ c. raisins.
⅞ c. light brown sugar.
2 tsp. baking powder.
½ tsp. baking soda
½ tsp. salt.

In what I call a "wet" bowl (large) combine the sour milk, rolled oats, shortening and egg and let soak while you measure dry ingredients.

(Note: If you do not have sour or buttermilk put 1 tablespoon vinegar in bottom of measuring cup and fill to 1 cup line with sweet milk and let stand 10 minutes.) In another bowl mix flour, wheat germ, raisins, brown sugar, baking powder, soda and salt.

Turn all at once into milk-oats mixture and stir to barely blend. Muffin batter should be a little lumpy. Spoon into buttered teflon muffin (2½") pan. (The three extra muffins I had I baked in buttered pyrex custard cups.)

Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 15 to 20 minutes but watch them for this is a light batter and might burn easily. Let rest in pan a few minutes then gently turn out into lined muffin basket.

JELLY SIDE DOWN

Saga of the Poseidon Crew Still Full Steam A-HEAD

Today I am continuing with the saga of our boat trip, which we have begun to refer to as "The Poseidon Adventure."

The children were delighted to find that there is a bathroom aboard. Upon being informed that it is known as the head, they began shrieking with laughter. For the past three days, whenever anyone has mentioned the head, they have collapsed helplessly onto the floor and begun punching each other hysterically on the arms.

Cooking meals aboard the "Poseidon" has been something of a challenge. The galley consists of a two-burner stove and a sink the size of a soup bowl with two spigots. One spigot draws directly from the river, the other from a tank of purified water installed somewhere in the bowels of the boat. We're a bit uncertain which spigot is which as both periodically disgorge clumps of seaweed and snail shells.

It has proved to be a bit difficult to prepare my usual culinary masterpieces with such limited facilities. The only one who hasn't complained is our son, who is still existing solely on Tums.

Last night I obtained a brief respite from my role as resident galley slave when my husband cooked the fish our son had caught, using a barbecue grill ashore. Unfortunately the mosquitos, driven insane by the heady aroma of frying sunfish, descended in great clouds. A small melee ensued, during which Captain Bligh pulled his windbreaker over his ears and flailed the air with a spatula. By sheer force of numbers, the mosquitos prevailed; Captain Bligh staged an ignominious retreat, clutching ten medium-rare sunfish to his chest.

"Well, crew," my husband announced this morning, "today is our last day on the "Poseidon." It's been a great trip, something we'll always remember." It was a truly touching moment until he concluded by saying "As we HEAD for home . . ." at which word the children nudged each other, collapsed helplessly onto the floor, and began punching each other hysterically on the arms.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Wed., Sept. 5

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Emphasis is on journeys, correspondence, recognition for what you have witten or created. You have chance to administer, direct, to put across special program. Capricorn, Cancer persons might figure in picture.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Be willing to moderate views. One who presented a problem wil show willingness to co-operate. Avoid eyestrain. You might be trying to do too much, too soon. Get sufficient rest. Rushing might mean that you eventuall retrace steps.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Lie low. Play waiting game. Time is on your side. Accent partnerships, joint efforts, special agreement with mate, partner. Give full play to creative drive. Imprint your own style. But no forcing, rushing or hiding. Take it easy and odds increase in your favor.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Trust hunch. Teach. Heed inner voice. Maintain steady pace. Obtain hint from Gemini message. Remember recent diet, health resolutions. Avoid actions based on impulse. Employment picture brightens.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Creative drive is accented. You successfully work with material at hand. Gemini, Saggittarius persons might be involved. Make changes. Get ideas committed on paper. Avoid spreading yourself too thin.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Practical approach now is most constructive. Line sights on facts. Draw conclusions based on analysis of information. Property, basic values are likely to be involved. Be thorough, specific. Get at meanings, not hints.

LIBRA Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Movement is featured. You become more active. There is opportunity for change, travel, variety. Gemini, Virgo persons figure prominently. Accent is on journey, visit, development of idea. Report and photograph.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Genuine bargain is available. Applies especially to items which beautify home and make life more comfortable. You are rewarded for efforts, product. Spotlight is on income potential. Don't sell yourself short.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec., 21): Take lead. Be independent. Put forth original concepts, ideas. Strive for greatest possible degree of individuality. Live your own life. By so doing, you also please those who feel the most for you. New start proves successful.

CARPICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): What might have previously been hidden is now likely to come into full view. Know it and accept responsibility. Your timing is on target. Pool resources with Sagittarian, if possible. Shake off secret fears and doubts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Relationship is put to test. Realize you probably cannot have verything your own way. Make intelligent concession. Aries, Libra persons could be in picture. Your desires can be fulfilled with aid of one who makes special effort.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You make significant advance by being a self-starter. Means don't wait for others to press button of green light. Get to heart of matters. Make appointment with one who holds authoritative position. Speak frankly. Your views are due to be vindicated.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are perceptive, active, bright enough to see through sham and you enjoy puncturing stuffed shirts. October could be one of your most significant months of this year. You draw to you persons born under your own sign and Gemini and Sagittarius. You are attractive, restless, somewhat of a dilemma to the opposite sex.

Odd Subculture Rooted in Our Past—and Present family

By VINCENT DEVITT

PORT ROYAL — A nervous Abe Gisbrecht, 49, used his sweaty polkadot hanky to swat the insects that swarmed up from the tall grass as he leaned into the car lights to read headlines telling of the exploitation of Mexican immigrant farm workers like him.

It was obvious he wasn't sure what the headlines meant or what this visit was all about. In a mixture of German and halting English, he kept offering to show his work permit or run into the sagging but neat little house that sheltered his family of seven children and get his wife's Canadian passport. Just to show they were honest, law-abiding people.

But he was unwilling to join Immigration Minister Robert Andras in his condemnation of working and living conditions down on the fruit and vegetable warms of Southwestern Ontario.

Andras said Wednesday a staff report showed immigrant labor, particularly Mexican Mennonites, are poorly paid, poorly housed and poorly fed. It said even young children are sent into the fields to increase the family income, which often amounts to no more than $50 to $60 a week.

"Sometimes you make money and it is good," said Gisbrecht, who has made the trip from Mexico to the cucumber and tomato fields south of Simcoe four times. "Sometimes the money is a little smaller and that is not so good."

He expects to go back to his 20-acre corn farm in Mexico with between $2,000 and $3,000. His permit runs until Nov. 15 which means he will be here for about four months. At that rate the entire family of nine — the youngest is 14 — will be working for about $125 a week, a sum that would make a Canadian family groan. But not Gisbrecht.

"I think that is pretty good. You know $1,000 is worth 12,000 pesos and that is a lot of money," he said.

Gisbrecht and his family travelled day and night on a bus for four days to get here. Now they spend long, hard days in the field.

"I go out when the clock says seven and when it says six, I come back in," he said.

Gisbrecht and men like him seem to differ from touring Ottawa bureaucrats on just how bad things are. So do many of the men who do the hiring, as well as the people who come into contact with the immigrants.

The farm laborers are to be found in units ranging from neat little cabins and motel-like block buildings to the tumbled-down family homestead adjacent to the smart new ranch bungalow of the owner. What is good or bad in the mix depends on whose cultural values are being used to size up the situation.

For that matter, the Mexican Mennonite farm worker forms part of a subculture with deep roots in Canada's past. Contrary to what many believe, they are of German-Russian origin and not the dark-skinned Latins who leave Mexico in droves each year to work on California farms.

"We all really came from Manitoba originally," says Margaret Klaussen, 16, who translated for her father, Peter, 52, a Mennonite farmer who just finished welcoming two Mexican families to pick his 40 acres of tomatoes.

CHILDHOOD IS SHORT for immigrant pickers' offspring, as older children care for sisters and brothers while parents eke out an existence. Because dollar is worth more in Mexico, many families deprive themselves of basic staples in Canada in order to hang on to their money.

"About 50 years ago many of the Mennonites left Manitoba for Mexico because of the religious question and the schools," she said. "But the farming there is poor and many have come back here to settle, and many others come each year to make money."

Some still have Canadian citizenship, a fact which makes an accurate count or control of their working conditions difficult, according to G. R. Williamson, manager of the Simcoe Manpower office.

He said his office issued about 15 permits covering 90 Mexican workers under the department's new program of licensing the use of off-shore farm labor. Under the permit system, the departmment is able to get certain living standards and inspect facilities.

But he said the department has no ways of knowing how many Mexicans with citizenship papers are arriving as visitors have been hired by the farmers. As well, it has no way of checking the numbers of large Quebec families, another favored source of labor on the farms because they do not have to be hired through Manpower.

Williamson said 90 per cent of the immigrant labor is destined for the Kent-Essex area close to Windsor, so the problems around Simcoe are less severe.

He said he was with the Ottawa team that toured the area for part of the trip "and I can tell you that Andras was speaking pretty accurate information."

Williamson said the majority of farmers treat the workers fairly decently, but others are less concerned with their welfare.

"Even those guys are really pretty nice fellows," he said. "They feel that whatever they are offering the Mexicans is better than what they can get in Mexico. They don't see it as exploiting."

The Klaussen family fits the description somewhat. They are rugged, hard-working family who wear well-worn clothes and live in a rambling old house in Clear Creek that is almost as poorly furnished as some the immigrants live in.

Margaret said the family formed part of the Mexican exodus from Manitoba. But her father, still a Canadian citizen, came to the area, which already was settled by Mennonites, about 12 years ago for a summer's work and never went back.

Now he rents the 40 acres they farm. His story is similar to many, she says. Others, who come back every year even own their own homes here, he said.

The Mennonites themselves sometimes seem to be the harshest critics of their fellows, and out of their criticism comes a mixed picture of the immigrant.

While Margaret said most of them have better houses up here and live better than they do in Mexico, her brother, Jake disagreed.

He reminded them of an aunt who was willing to live in a hovel here to save money while she owned a new home in Mexico.

"Some of them are real stingy," he said. "They know the dollar is worth more in Mexico so they save it for there."

Both agreed with reports that some families deprive themselves of basic staples in order to hang on to the money.

A similar view, only with grumbling overtones, was given by Martin Barkman and his wife Justina. Barkman was born in Manitoba, went to Mexico in 1948 and returned here seven years later. He has worked as a trucker while his wife and five children spend the summers in the fields.

He objects to the preferences given Mexicans, claiming they sometimes take the jobs from families such as his. He said they also do not have to pay income tax or any of the other levies required of Canadian families.

"I know that they hate Canada bad and they only come here so they can get the money and go," he said. "That hurts to see tre money go out of the country."

Both said a large family can earn a lot of money in the two or three months they are here. They told of one family from Paraguay, another Mennonite haven, that started picking cucumbers, then moved to tomatoes and left with more than $7,000.

They told of another family that picked 500 hapers of tomatoes a day at 23 cents a hamper ... "they made a fair amount of money."

They sneered at the Ottawa officials reports that some of the families, including very young children, are undernourished, lacking meat and other protein food.

"This is because they are greedy ... they don't want to spend the money here," he said. "I know of one family only bought two packages of baloney the whole time they were here. That is ridiculous, if children have to work they should be properly fed."

But Lavern Parkin, 53, and Bernie Jones, partners in the Clear Creek general store, disagree with the views of both the government officials and fellow Mennonites on the immigrants' eating and spending habits.

"There is no sense having anything on the shelves that is second-rate or cheap," says Mrs. Jones. "They just won't buy it, no matter whether it's shampoo or what."

"They even buy the most expensive washing soap," chirps in her daughter, Judy, 11. "And they buy lots of cookies and ice cream."

"When they buy fish, they buy the best," says Mrs. Jones. "See . . . they have left the pink salmon on the shelf."

Ambivalence Fills Life In a Royal Fish Bowl

LONDON (Reuter) — Princess Anne, fourth in line to the throne, has learned to live in the fish-bowl world of royal life since the first photographer was permitted a glimpse of the regal infant.

She has endured, if not always enjoyed, the public fascination even if she occasionally uses the salty language of her ex-sailor father and lacks the ever-smiling endurance of her mother, Queen Elizabeth, on public occasions.

This year, as she prepares for a November wedding in Westminster Abbey and represents her country in equestrian championships in the Soviet Union, the focus of attention has never been keener.

The ambivalent personality of the tall, brown-haired princess was well illustrated on her 21st birthday Aug. 15, 1971. Some photographers displayed her as a royal beauty, while others showed the princess in battlejacket or gaucho pants with wide-brimmed sombrero hat.

Like her aunt, Princess Margaret, Anne likes to imitate people, especially politicians, with the appropriate accent. But unlike her brother, Prince Charles, her sense of humor is more barbed than his gentle type of wit.

Miss Elizabeth Clarke, principal of her former exclusive boarding school, Beneden, says: "Anne will never react tamely to anything."

News photographers have suffered at times. One asked her: "Can you turn this way, love?" Her reply sizzled back: "I am not your love. I am your royal highness."

At the same time, the princess can be extremely informal. Returning from a horse ride in Windsor Park, she found a motorist whose car had broken down and helped to push it to the nearest service station.

One of her close friends, trying to describe Anne's dilemma of being human without destroying the royal mystique, said:

"She likes informality but shows a touch of royal hauteur at times. She tries to live in two worlds at once — that is her problem."

Weather Was Perfect And 30,000 Jam Fair

FAIR WEATHER

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

At 6 p.m. Sunday a small, blonde, five-year-old girl stood beside the cow barn at the Saanichton fairgrounds, a cob of corn in one hand, a stick of candy floss in the other.

She was dusty, tired and hungry and she had been at the fair since Friday afternoon with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Hofstand of Duncan. She still had another day to go.

"She's tireder than she's ever been, but I guess she's happier too," said her mother.

The girl was one of an estimated 30,000 who crowded into the small fairgrounds of East Saanich Road for the 105th annual Saanich Fall Fair Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

* * *

The sun shone most of the time, it didn't rain and, as always, the fair was an unqualified success.

Events and competitions at the fair ranged from the biggest pumpkin anyone had ever seen to highland dancing to horse jumping.

Visitors crowded into the main hall on all three days of the fair, oohing and ahhing over the flower displays and the painting exhibitions and drooling over the three-layer frosted chocolate cakes.

The theme of the exhibitions was "What's New on the Farm," and displays ranged from innovative farm machinery to good, old-fashioned apple pie.

The working display of old-time farm machinery drew the biggest crowds, as both young and old gathered around the machines to watch the operators coax the threshers, combines, plows and tractors into life.

"Hey, old timer. Are these old horses better than the farm machinery you can buy new," yelled one of the watchers, as the operator worked up a head of steam on an old tractor.

"Well," said the old-timer, tugging on his beard, "We used to curse and scream at these things day in and day out when we were using them.

"They broke down if you looked at them the wrong way and it seemed liked they had a mind of their own. One day you had to push one way and pull the other and the next day you had to do just the opposite. They got stuck in the muddy fields and it was hell just getting them out.

"But I guess for all that you got used to them and they were a damn sight more fun than just turning the key like you do the new tractors."

In another part of the fairgrounds, a large crowd gathered Sunday afternoon for a look at the sexiest beauties the cow world had to offer.

* * *

The Beastly Beauty Contest was a new addition to the fair and will probably become a regular feature.

The event was won by a Jersey beauty named Vimy, shown by Mrs. R. L. Mutrie. Vimy was dressed in a lace petticoat and covered from head to hoof in bright-colored flowers.

The runner-up prize went to a "bride" shown by Dana Trimble. The cow, dressed in a white sheet bridal gown with veil and bouquet to match was escorted into the show ring by her groom, Dana.

Some of the busiest people on the fairgrounds were the St. John Ambulance women, kept going steady by hordes of wasps.

They treated hundreds for stings by rubbing on a mixture of baning soda and water. The stings produced some tears from children and made some of their adult victims uncomfortable, but no one was allergic to the stings.

* * *

Wayne and Jacqui Coulson, of 3255 Cook Street, were the best egg-throwers at the fair. The husband-and-wife team defeated more than 20 other contestants throwing a fresh egg back and forth at a distance of 25 feet.

Mrs. Dorothy Phillips, of 1133 Mount Newton Cross Road, received hearty congratulations and many pats on the back as she took first prize in the heaviest pumpkin at the fair contest.

Mrs. Phillips' giant weighed in at 83 pounds, eight ounces. The second prize winner was Otto Higgins with his pumpkin weighing 64 pounds, eight ounces.

A prize for the most beautiful pumpkin at the fair went to Wally Card.

UAW Seeks New Terms

DETROIT (AP) — Health and safety standards were to join voluntary overtime as main issues in contract talks today between the United Auto Workers and Chrysler Corp.

UAW negotiators made it clear Labor Day they consider the establishment of new health and safety safeguards among their top contract priorities and refuse to discount a strike on that issue if some significant changes are not made.

Chrysler production was interrupted twice in August by wildcat strikes in two older Detroit-area plants by workers who condemned working conditions and safety programs.

★

Big 3 Admit Secret Talks

DETROIT (AP) — The fate of this year's auto industry negotiations could be determined by a group of powerful corporate executives meeting far from the public eye.

Widely believed to exist in past contract years, the formal meetings between board chairmen, presidents and other officers of the Big Three auto-makers were acknowledged this year for the first time.

When they sit down at the same table, as they have done at least twice in 1973, the executives bring to the room a combination of industrial might that produced more than $60 billion in products last year—roughly equal to the gross national product of Africa.

In addition to these so-called "summit" meetings, top negotiators for General Motors, Ford and Chrysler say they are in contact about three or four times a week, mostly by telephone.

"They'd be fools if they weren't," said one company spokesman of the meetings via telephone.

Speculation about both types of contacts among the automakers long has drawn complaints from the United Auto Workers that the firms were taking a "lock-step" approach to the triennial bargaining rounds.

This year, however, UAW hasn't made that much of the makers' new admission, except for a few scattered complaints that Chrysler, the union's target firm, may be getting some pressure from the bigger firms to hold out for a lean settlement.

Although secrecy has surrounded them until this year, the meetings are legal. They are similar to consultations among vice-presidents of the different divisions of the UAW, which represents more than 700,000 workers at the three firms.

"The meetings are really held for an exchange of information vis-a-vis the talks with the various companies and where the whole negotiation process seems to be going," says Chrysler chairman Lynn Townsend.

Townsend, whose firm faces a strike if there is no agreement by Sept. 14, says he sees nothing conspiratorial in the inter-firm talks.

The existence of summit meetings as a regular industry practice was revealed earlier this year in documents filed in a federal suit over alleged efforts to monopolize the lucrative fleet-sales market.

There was no evidence that anything solid came of the meetings, however, and the makers say the same thing probably will be true this year.

Jews Back Expansion

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli Premier Golda Meir's governing Labor party has approved a plan by Defence Minister Moshe Dayan to build more Jewish settlements and industry in captured Arab land, and permit Jewish public organizations to buy land from Arabs.

The plan aims partly to raise the living standard of Arabs under Israeli military occupation, but in effect it would also tighten Israel's grip on some of the 26,000 square miles of Arab land captured in the 1967 Mideast war.

The plan was approved unanimously at a Monday meeting of the party secretariat.

ARABS STAY AWAY

TOULON, France (AP) — A majority of this Mediterranean port city's 20,000 Arab workers stayed off the job today to protest alleged racial discrimination.

The one-day walkout followed a similar work stoppage in the Marseilles area Monday in which thousands of Arab laborers did not report for work.

The strikes came after a week of violence in which a Marseilles bus driver was killed by an Algerian and seven North African workers suffered violent deaths in mysterious circumstances.

About 250 workers paraded through Toulon, home port of the French navy's Mediterranean fleet, carrying signs that said "Halt racism" and "Same rights for French and immigrant workers."

Thousands of workers from Morocco, Algeria and Tunisia come to France every year. They are employed largely in menial jobs for salaries which, though low by European standards, permit them to send home money to their families.

Their presence is often resented by French workers and French residents of the worker neighborhoods where they congregate.

China Halts Import

TOKYO (UPI) — China ordered the Toyota Motor Sales Co. to halt shipment of 756 cars and trucks to China in a dispute over a Toyota advertisement the Chinese said was favorable to Formosa, industry sources said today.

The China Machinery Import-Export Corp., which ordered the vehicles, stopped shipment of the $3.17 million order pending outcome of the dispute.

A high-level Chinese economic mission scheduled to visit Japan soon plans to visit the factories of Toyota's rivals, the Nissan and Isuzu motor companies, but so far is ignoring Toyota.

The disputed advertisement appeared in early July in the Central Daily News and other papers in Taiwan.

The advertisement referred to Taiwan as the Republic of China, the named used by Chiang Kai-shek for his regime.

A protest to Toyota by the China Machinery Export-Import Corp. followed shortly. Industry sources said Toyota, Japan's largest auto maker, indicated a willingness to apologize, but that the matter has not yet been settled.

Boy, 5, in Court on Traffic Charge

MISLIMOV

DES MOINES, Iowa — A five-year-old boy has been ordered to appear in court on a traffic charge.

Patrolman Max Street said Monday he issued a ticket to Craig Johnson after the boy's bicycle collided with a pickup truck Sunday night.

The youngster is charged with failure to yield the right of way and is to appear in court Sept. 27.

He was treated at a hospital for shock and released.

Street said he issued the ticket because the Johnson boy caused the accident.

"It's my job to issue tickets for traffic violations," he said.

MOSCOW — The Soviet news agency Tass reported Sunday that Shirali Mislimov, said to be the oldest man in the world, died at the age of 168 in his home village of Barzavu in the Azerbaijan region following a severe illness.

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — A $10,000 cash donation from a group calling itself the Gainesville Marijuana Dealers Association has enriched muscular dystrophy fund-raising efforts and left police puzzled.

Volunteers here had raised $5,000 Monday during the Jerry Lewis telethon when a bag containing 10 packs of $1,000 arrived, officials said.

An accompanying note read: "From the Gainesville Marijuana Dealers Association. Right on."

Police said they had never heard of the organization.

TORONTO — Stompin' Tom Connors plans to get married Nov. 2, and fans can watch the wedding without an invitation.

A television set is all that will be required to watch the ceremony.

A spokesman for Connors, one of Canada's most popular country music performers, said Sunday the wedding will take place on the CBC television program Luncheon Date which stars Elwood Glover.

Connors' marriage to Lena Welsh, his long-time steady girl, would be North America's first televised celebrity wedding since Tiny Tim married Miss Vicky on NBC's Tonight Show in December, 1969.

TORONTO (CP) — David Archer, president of the 750,000-member Ontario Federation of Labor, urged the provincial government Monday to outlaw professional strikebreakers, "thugs, goons and gangsters."

In a Labor Day message, Archer said the CFL "will continue to nag our legislators at Queen's Park until they see that their duty is to Ontario's citizens and taxpayers, not to mendicant mobsters who feed off such disputes."

JERUSALEM — The Jerusalem Post said Monday it has not received any money from a Canadian mayor to pay for the legal defence of Libyan hijacker Mahmoud Toumi.

Mayor Harry Veiner of Medicine Hat told reporters he sent an undisclosed sum for Toumi and arranged with the Jerusallem Post to hire a lawyer for the hijacker.

The Post said it has received "no money or requests" from Veiner.

Toumi is accused of hijacking a Lebanese plane to Israel Aug. 16 in what he called a gesture of friendship for the Israeli people. He is in an Israeli jail awaiting trial.

LONDON — The British Army has decided to ask every soldier to contribute to a wedding present for Princess Anne and her army officer fiance, Capt. Mark Phillips.

News reports said a secret notice has been posted in army units asking officers to donate 75 cents each and other ranks to give about 12 cents each.

If every man paid up the collection would net about $42,500.

AMMAN, Jordan — UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim completed his first tour of the Middle East today and said he feels the United Nations can help the Arabs and Israel reach a settlement.

"I am in a much better position now to decide on the next move," Waldheim said in a statement as he left the Jordanian capital to attend the summit conference of non-aligned countries opening Wednesday in Algiers.

ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE

BUTCHART GARDENS. OPEN EVERY DAY 9 A.M.-11 P.M. Many pleasing features combine to add to your pleasure. Regular admission at the International Entrance covers them all: Entertainment . . . Puppet and minstrel shows . . . Ross Fountains in their majestic "Ballet to the Stars" . . . romantic after-dark illumination . . . 6 gardens — fabulous Sunken Garden, English Rose, stately Italian, quaint Japanese, Lake and Stage Show Gardens . . . plus the Begonia Bower, Show Greenhouse, fascinating Seed and Gift Shop. Restaurant and coffee bar service available.

BUTCHART GARDENS. KNOWN THROUGHOUT THE WORLD FOR THEIR INCREDIBLE BEAUTY . . . EVER CHANGING, ALWAYS LOVELY! Skilful planning, constant replanting, dedicated gardeners pooling their ideas and knowledge, keep them that way week after week, season after season. Developed from an old abandoned limestone quarry over half a century ago, they have grown to become one of the world's most unusual, written about, talked about, admired attractions.

BUTCHART GARDENS ROMANTIC NIGHT LIGHTING. As darkness takes over, a thousand hidden lights combine with the moon and stars, the hills, trees and shrubs, lakes, lily ponds and fountains, to create a fairyland, softly scented by the flowers — a spectacle so unusual, so grand it's indescribable! Featuring the Sunken Garden and the spectacular Ross Fountains in their majestic "Ballet to the Stars." This alone is worth coming to see.

BUTCHART GARDENS FLORAL RESTAURANT. Open every day 11 a.m. to 7:30 p.m., serving delicious lunches, afternoon teas, and delightful buffet suppers in the evening. Continuous Snack and Coffee Bar service.

BUTCHART GARDENS SPARKLING ENTERTAINMENT. Adding a touch of hilarity in a musical way the "Butchart Gardeners" will entertain you Mon.-Fri. inclusive in the afternoon, and evenings, 1:30 - 3:30 p.m. and 6:00 - 8:00 p.m. On Saturday and Sunday afternoon 1:00 - 3:00 p.m. a group of zany but very talented musicians "The Butchart Buskers" with John Dunbar, will provide the fun. Plus colour films every evening of the week at dusk. "Helicopter Canada" or "Mountains of the Sea."

BUTCHART GARDENS SUGGESTS: Combine it all into one grand, thrifty outing — the Gardens by daylight . . . entertainment . . . romantic night lighting . . . featuring the Sunken Gardens . . . and the Ross Fountains in their majestic "Ballet to the Stars". Regular admission covers it all. For added pleasure, dine in the Floral Restaurant.

Soviet Music Men Condemn Sakharov

MOSCOW (WP) — The Soviet Union's best-known musical composers have joined the chorus of public condemnation of physicist Andrei Sakharov.

Dmitrity Shostakovich, who was personally persecuted in Stalin's time, Aram Khachaturyan and Rodion Schchedrin (the husband of ballerina Maya Plisetskaya) were among 12 musical personalities who signed a bitter attack on Sakharov published in Monday's Pravda.

Their letter said Sakharov's recently published criticisms of the Soviet Union and his warnings to the west that detente must be accompanied by democratization in the Soviet Union "are a slur upon the honor and dignity of the Soviet intelligentsia."

This was the first group letter from prominent cultural figures in the organized campaign against Sakharov, which has now continued for six days.

There is no precedent for this campaign in recent Soviet history. After six days, the authorities still have not hinted what (if any) action they will take against Sakharov, a member of the prestigious Soviet academy of sciences and the principle developer of the Soviet hydrogen bomb.

Some intellectuals here speculate that the campaign was begun in haste, in response to a press conference Sakharov gave to western correspondents, and that its organizers still don't know how it should end.

The letters appearing each day in the press are all similar, and none recommends any specific steps against Sakharov. Typically, the letters say that Sakharov's activities "are incompatible with the lofty title of Soviet citizen and Soviet scientist," as the musicans' letter put it.

Most of the letters also accuse Sakharov of opposing "the Soviet Union's policy of reducing international tensions," again to quote the musicians. In fact, Sakharov has not said anything critical of Soviet policy or of detente, though he has warned that if detente is to be meaningful, it must proceed in tandem with some opening up of Soviet society.

The letters are signed by scientists, engineers and workers — and now, by musicians.

In another article Monday, Pravda, the organ of the Soviet Communist party, obliquely informed its readers that there had been widespread criticism in the west of Soviet internal policy.

Pravda reprinted an article which it attributed to an Austrian Communist party official, Hans Kalt. The article said that "in recent days the bourgeois press has launched another campaign of hysteria spearheaded against . . . the Soviet Union."

According to the article, the real reason for this campaign was fear in the west that "the ideas of socialism" are becoming more popular.

British Author, Scholar Dies

TOLKIEN

LONDON (AP) — A new book by J. R. R. Tolkien, the British scholar and author who died Sunday, may be published soon from an unfinished manuscript he left, his publishers said Monday.

The Allen and Unwin publishing house said the manuscript, entitled The Silmarillion, consists of a series of legendary tales.

"The manuscript is enormous," a spokesman said, "as large as Lord of the Rings."

Lord of the Rings was the trilogy of legends Tolkien published 19 years ago. Tolkien recently described The Silmarillion as a sequel to that trilogy.

"At the moment the legends are all unconnected," the spokesman said. "We hope and anticipate that Tolkien's son, Christopher, will thread them together.

"In the meantime, we hope to bring out a play written in verse and some other material handed over to us about two months ago."

Tolkien, who died from the effects of a perforated ulcer, will be buried at Oxford on Thursday. He was 81.

Tolkien was a severe and solitary scholar, an Oxford don not a little annoyed by the hysterical success of Lord of the Rings, a trilogy published in 1954-55.

To his colleagues at Oxford, he was a genius, an authority on Norse legend and the author of works in Early English. In his own words, he was a "persnickety old academic." To his youthful readers he was a literary superstar.

To avoid adulation, Tolkien fled Oxford. In 1959 he moved to a country hideout known only to his immediate family and a few friends. There he began work on the Silmarillion, which he called a "prequel" to the Rings.

Early in 1972, a few months after the death of his wife, Tolkien returned to Oxford to take up honorary residence. He never had time to finish the Silmarillion.

Tuesday Movies and Specials

Movies

Please Sir! (xx), on 2 and 6 at 8. The faces are all familiar in this 1971 movie version of the English TV series about the students in class 5C at East London's Fenn Street School.

In Old Chicago (xxx), on 13 at 8. Tyrone Power, Alice Faye and Don Ameche star in this fictional story of the O'Leary family whose cow is credited with starting the great Chicago fire . . . filmed in 1938.

The Six Million Dollar Man (xx), on 4 at 8:30. This 1973 pilot film sold a new fall series to ABC. It stars Lee Majors as an injured test pilot-turned-superman by means of powerful artificial limbs. His new job is working for the U.S. as the ultimate weapon.

Murdock's Gang, on 7 at 9:30. No rating available on this unsold 1973 pilot film starring ex-newscaster Alex Dreier as a disbarred lawyer-turned-private eye who uses his staff of ex-cons to track down a millionaire's missing accountant. Janet Leigh co-stars.

Desert Fury (xx), on 11 at 11. A good cast (Burt Lancaster, Lizebth Scott and John Hodiak) are the only attributes of this confusing 1947 melodrama about gambling. Everybody in the film has a shady past, and the result is a shady motion picture.

Payment on Demand (xxx), on 7 and 12 at 11:30. Bette Davis is at her melodramatic best in this 1951 drama about a marriage on the rocks. Barry Sullivan and Frances Dee co-star. For Miss Davis fans only.

High Infidelity (xxx), on 6 and 8 at midnight. Four short stories reflecting various sexual attitudes comprise the plot of this 1964 Italian-made comedy with a good international cast that includes Claire Bloom, Monica Vitti and Charles Aznavour.

A Bell for Adano (xxx), on 13 at midnight. John Hersey's story of the American occupation of a small Italian town is beautifully brought to the screen in this 1945 drama starring John Hodiak, William Bendix and Gene Tierney. It's about the efforts of an American major who tries to restore democratic dignity and decency to the captured town, without hurting its people's pride and sensitivity.

Specials

Billy Graham Crusade, on 7 at 7 and 12 at 9:30. "What's Bugging Youth Now?", is Dr. Graham's topic for youth in the first of two crusades from Atlanta. (60 mins.)

A Collection of Short Stories by Al Wallace, on 5 at 7:30. A series of vignettes of people, places and events that veteran Channel 5 newsmen have found especially interesting. (30 mins.)

The Violin, on 8 at 7:30. An unusually sensitive film which combines nostalgia, warmth, sadness and laugher with excellent photography and beautiful music. It's a touching story of an old man and two young boys brought together by their love for the violin. Music arranged and played by Maurice Solway, who also portrays the young man. (30 mins.)

NBC Reports, on 5 at 8. Filmed in the U.S., Europe and the Middle East, this special 3-hour report focuses on the current energy crisis in America. (3 hrs.)

The Outsiders, on 9 at 9. A salute to the unorthodox ideas of two 20th-century composers . . . Charles Ives (1874-1954), known for his use of dissonant harmonies, and Edgar Varese (1885-1965), a pioneer of electronic music. (60 mins.)

CBC Radio Highlights

Tuesday
September 4

6:30 (FM) Classical Guitar — Michel Dintrich and Patric Fontanarosa will play Arietta by Antonio Soler; Suite of Dances by Loeillet; La Folia (Corelli); and Concerto by Vivaldi.

7:03 (FM) Music Alive — Cellist Peter Schenkman and pianist John Hawkins will play Chaconne by Martin, and Sonata by Carter. Host: Karen Keiser.

8:03 (AM) CBC Tuesday Night — Part 1: Concert — A recreation of a concert given in New York in 1850 by Jenny Lind, the Swedish soprano and Ole Bull, the Norwegian violinist. Riki Turofsky, soprano, and Andrew Dawes, violin, with accompanist John Avison perform a number of works by Berg, Bull, Kjerulf, Wieniawski, Greig, Svendsen, Benedict and Mendelssohn. Recorded at the CBC Music Festival in Vancouver, 1971.

Part 2: Perr Gynt — By Henrik Ibsen, an abridged version by Merv Campone and Don Mowatt. First presented in 1867, this satiric fantasy concerns a young Norweigian farmer with penchant for laziness and bragging who idles away his hours in brawling and dreaming. Neil Bainard and Doris Chilcott star. Electronic background score by Lloyd Burritt is based on music by Greig and Ole Bull.

10:03 (FM) Ideas — The Ganges is a symbol of Hinduism. No other river in the world has had such a tremendous impact in forming the religious and social life of a people as this cradle of eastern civilization.

10:30 (AM) Pick of the Goons — "The Great Tuscan Salami Scandal." As a goodwill token the Italians have presented Great Britain with a pair of Tuscan Salami sandwiches. But Gina, the female sandwich, is stolen by wicked foreign spies. A search for Gina is conducted by former gypsy saxophonist Grytpype-Thynne and his friend Count Serge Moriarty.

THE VIOLIN — a touching story of a chance encounter and subsequent friendship between two young boys and an old, itinerant, retired concert violinist tonight on Channel 8 at 7:30 p.m. Recommended for the whole family.

Early Wednesday Movies

Fantomas (xx), on 4 at 9:30. A 1964 French-made adventure about the fantastic exploits of a marked Parisian super-crook.

A Matter of Innocence (xx), on 6 and 8 at 12:45. A sentimental 1968 British-made tale based on Noel Coward's short story (Pretty Polly) about a young English girl who has an affair with a dashing Indian gigolo. Cast includes Haley Mills, Trevor Howard and Shashi Kapoor.

How to Murder a Rich Uncle (xx), on 13 a 1:30. Charles Coburn, Nigel Patrick and Wendy Hiller star in this amusing 1958 British-made comedy whose title explains the plot.

Man on a Tightrope (xxx), on 5 at 3:30. A well-directed 1953 drama about a European circus troupe's attempt to flee Communist-occupied Czechoslovakia. Filmed in Europe and starring Fredric March, Glora Graham and Cameron Mitchell.

A Man Could Get Killed (xx), on 7 at 3:30. Melina Mercouri, James Garner, Tony Franciosa and Sandra Dee star in this 1966 spy spoof.

The Royal Alexandra

Announcing the beginning of the end

The last self-owned apartments on Beach Drive in Oak Bay

Frankly, when we started we never expected to be able to build such an exceptional apartment featuring such spacious and luxuriously appointed rooms throughout, still provide a planned recreation complex that has it's own sauna room, exercise pavilion, therapeutic pool, hobby room, recreation lounge and underground electronically secured parking.

Naturally, the location and setting here on Beach Drive can never be replaced. This is your year 'round view.

Close by the world-famous Oak Bay Marina and Restaurant, a constant parade of graceful yachts and cruisers, lovely Windsor Park rose gardens and just about anything else you would want at the Oak Bay Village.

As we say . . . each apartment is larger and more luxuriously appointed than you would expect at these prices.

If you've ever wanted a place on Oak Bay now is the time to get it before they're all gone.

Clematis Blossoms Ideal For Artistic Displays

Garden flowers for use in the house no longer are required to have long straight stems to qualify as suitable, for we know how to make the most of stemless flowers, bent stems or even twisted stems.

The climbing clematis has examples of all these types and just now many varieties are flowering. If you are blessed with two different varieties in bloom at the same time you have opportunity for artistic expression in color blending.

Suppose you want a supper table, or dinner table, arrangement. You must have it quite low and not too large in its dimensions.

A glass plate or a shallow glass baking dish is to be used as this won't detract from the blossoms.

They are of such simplicity of outline that any contrast of color, fussy shape, or design on a tablecloth will spoil the effect of your efforts.

* * *

On your clematis vine, look for an end growth first. If it has several well developed buds, a stem drooped and curled almost in a circle and one or two newly opened flowers, you have a perfect piece to cut. Just see that you have an inch or so of stem, below the bottom leaves or buds, to go into water.

There will normally be some foliage on this piece of clematis. Now, if you have another color, preferably of the same size flower, cut a piece with one open flower and a bud or two.

Take into the house and crush the stem ends. Have the water as deep in the shallow glass dish as can easily be moved without spilling. Lay the clematis pieces in a group in the dish, being sure the crushed stem ends are under water.

As you examine the effect, you notice that some leaves obscure a flower or a bud. Snip them away and use them as fillers where required. It may be to raise a blossom or a bud into view, or to mask the edge of the container to make it less apparent.

* * *

Long trailing clematis sprays are beautiful when firmly anchored in wall pocket vases on plain colored walls; or they may be used as a loose upright arrangement draped on a leafless woody twig or branch of another shrub.

Anchor the woody branch firmly on a pinholder in a rather bulgy container to correspond to the looseness of the clematis, and to give weight to the ascending line of the whole design. Be sure to have at least the cut clematis ends in water.

One flower and a bud of the huge varieties like the white Henreyi is complete in itself on a green or yellow plate. It needs only a tendril of leaves to mask its stem end which may need wrapping in a piece of wet paper towelling to keep it constantly wet on a flat plate.

One flower but much beauty.

SOLUTION WEDNESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Once upon a time (so goes the fairy tale) there was a defensive slogan that proclaimed: "never lead away from a king." This slogan was demonstrated to be unworkable on that day when a defender found himself on lead against a game contract — and he was looking at four kings, one in each suit.

Since he had been weaned on the doctrine of never leading away from a king, he got up and went home. There being no fourth player available, the game broke up (horror of horrors!). To prevent a similar occurrence from ever happening again, the better players of the world got together (telepathically), and ruled that the slogan was to be made null and void. And so it became.

In this deal, the fallacy of the once-revered, now-outlawed slogan of "never lead away from a king" is demonstrated. The hand came up in a rubber-bridge game.

Neither side vulnerable.

Opening lead: King of ♡.

After West had made his opening lead, and the dummy came into view, the sight of the dummy was most unappetizing to him. It was rather apparent to West, as he surveyed his hand and the dummy, that the defenders would get no tricks in either spades or clubs; and that his king of hearts had just become the only trick the defenders would get in that suit.

And so, by a process of elimination, West was "forced" to lead a diamond, away from his king, at trick two. It turned out to be the only winning lead. East took the trick with his ace and played back a diamond, West's king winning. West then returned a third diamond, which East ruffed, for the setting trick.

It goes without saying that West was lucky in finding East with the doubleton A-x of diamonds. But West had no logical choice, at trick two, except to lead a diamond and hope for the best.

It might well have been, in theory, that South possessed the diamond ace. If he did, then West's lead of a low diamond at trick two would have given South an extra trick. But from West's point of view, his prime concern was not the prevention of an overtrick by South, but the defeat of South's contract. The only hope for the latter to materialize lay in the diamond suit.

Dragway Drivers Burned

Three persons, including this man, were in good condition in Mission Memorial Hospital Monday with leg burns following freak accident with a rocket-powered dragster at Mission Raceways Sunday.

About 20 others were given treatment for minor burns after being sprayed with a volatile hydrogen peroxide pressurized fuel mixture when a valve apparently malfunctioned.

The dragster, owned and driven by John Paxon, of Arcadia, Calif., was the feature attraction at the meet, drawing some 3,900 spectators.

BEER AD SLIPS IN

VANCOUVER (CP) — A missed signal during the Hamilton-British Columbia Canadian Football League game in Hamilton Monday allowed a beer commercial to slip past CBC monitors and appear on B.C. television screens instead of a replacement milk advertisement.

The CBC said a number of people phoned to complain of a violation of B.C.'s liquor laws.

Man Locked in Car Trunk

SURREY (CP) — A 20-year-old Surrey man said Monday he spent four hours in the trunk of his car before he was able to escape when the couple who locked him in stopped for gas at Haney.

Paul Jason Revell said he picked up the couple in the Fraser Canyon after a woman stopped him by waving as if she were in trouble. "They seemed like a nice couple, but two miles below Spuzzum I drove down a side road when the man said he had to go to the washroom," said Revell.

"There the man came around to the driver's side, flipped open the door and put the blade of a switch knife at my throat and took over."

Revell said he was able to free himself of a pair of pants the woman had tied him with and jemmy the trunk latch.

Two suspects were arrested after Revell made his escape. They were to appear in court in Hope today for a formal laying of charges.

PALESTINIANS SHOT

BEIRUT (UPI) — A Lebanese army officer killed three members of a pro-Palestinian organization and was wounded himself in a shooting incident early today. The Lebanese cabinet met in emergency session to discuss measures to "contain the incident and keep it to the size it merits."

The incident was the most serious since the fighting in May between Palestinian guerrillas and the Lebanese army which left several hundred casualties.

The Palestinian news agency WAFA said the shooting was "a criminal act that cannot be the result of an error." It said it was an attempt by the army "to provoke the masses and spread an atmosphere of terror in preparation for renewing the attempts to strike at the Palestinian revolution and Lebanese national forces."

The shooting took place within a few yards of the home of Ibrahim Kleilat, leader of a Nasserite pro-Palestinian party of which the three dead men were members.

No Pact, No Work, Say B.C. Rail Men

Times News Services

The majority of some 7,000 British Columbia railway workers defied a parliamentary order for the third straight day today by remaining off the job.

In other parts of Canada trains rolled and East Coast ferries went back into service during the weekend as 11 Canadian railways moved to clear a backlog of passengers and freight after a month of regional strike action and the nine-day national shutdown.

The order providing a minimum 8.25 per cent wage increase went into effect at 12:01 a.m. Sunday but the two national railways reported their B.C. operations were still tied up.

"You don't hear any train whistle, do you?" railway union leaders remarked early today.

Instead of going to work, members of the running trades and the shop crafts were scheduled to attend mass meetings today at Nanaimo, New Westminster, Revelstoke and Cranbrook.

In Victoria today, Roy Head, spokesman for one of the unions, said members were giving negotiators 30 days to come up with a decent contract "or there will be another strike."

About 100 members locally of the Brotherhood of Rail and Airline Clerks went back to work at midnight Monday "but they're very, very unhappy. It wouldn't take much to get them off work again."

Head said members are at the point now of saying, "to hell with it, we'll go to jail."

Some of his union members are only earning $12 more now than they would collect from unemployment insurance.

Resistance of members of the non-operating unions broke down at Prince Rupert where workers returned to the job Monday night but trains still were unable to operate without the running trades, including the enginemen, or the shop crafts who include machinists.

CP Rail reported some rail centres were partly back in operation and some local freight traffic had moved but the major bulk exports cargoes were still tied up.

Crews were back at Kamloops but none at Nelson, Cranbrook or Revelstoke, CP Rail reported.

There was no yard staff at CP Rail's big Coquitlam yard but almost 50 per cent of the yard staff was back in Vancouver waiting to move trains that could not move without enginemen.

A CNR spokesman said passenger service has resumed operations on the northern line to Prince Rupert.

There was no other passenger service anyhere in B.C.

The regular eastbound train was scheduled to leave Prince Rupert today, and a westbound passenger train left Jasper for Prince Rupert.

Angry yardmen in Calgary have also defied the back-to-work legislation and their union leader says he cannot say when they will return.

"The men were absolutely adamant they weren't going back at midnight Labor Day — of all bloody days to order us back, Phil Burke local chairman of the United Transportation Workers, said today.

In New Westminster about 1,000 non-ops unanimously approved a resolution Monday that unions in the Greater Vancouver area remain off the job until a new contract is negotiated and approved.

Roger Butler, president of a joint council of non-ops in New Westminster, told reporters after the vote the resolution ordered national negotiators to bargain for better contracts or resign.

"We didn't get anything that we were promised by our union officials. They sat back and let Parliament take over and it took the onus off them."

Frank Mazur, a former strike co-ordinator, said Thunder Bay non-ops decided Monday night to remain out.

"The pickets are up and will stay up in Thunder Bay for an indefinite period. There's nothing moving in or out of Thunder Bay."

Winnipeg remains a roadblock to transcontinental freight and passenger service.

No trains moved in the area Monday and, Monday night, the non-ops decided to go back at midnight only if they did not have to cross picket lines.

DOPE CHECK AT BLAINE CAUSES JAM

BLAINE, Wash. (AP) — A line of vehicles estimated at several miles long jammed the United States-Canada boder crossing here Sunday and Monday as Labor Day travellers returned home.

U.S. customs and immigrations agents said they were checking from 300 to 400 cars an hour for liquor, marijuana and other items. Traffic heading for Washington was badly jammed.

Authorities said they were finding some illegal items in the searches framed by the International Peace Arch, the border-straddling symbol of friendship between the two nations.

PM Plans Talk

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau was to make a major policy statement on inflation and the cost-of-living today after the close of Canadian stock markets.

The statement was expected to detail government plans for easing the impact of soaring prices and short supplies of commodities.

It is to be followed by debate on two government bills introduced today on pension increases — a move designed to increase the strain of persons living on fixed incomes.

In Toronto radio station CFTR says the federal government several weeks ago ordered the printing of millions of ration stamps from a large Toronto firm.

The station says the firm's employees were given the job of running off material on three-colored paper. Then the firm's supervisors were called in to add the printing.

The station says what finally developed were Canadian ration stamps to be used in conjunction with possible introduction of wage and price controls.

Trudeau announced three weeks ago the government was going to escalate old-age pensions and the guaranteed income supplement on a quarterly basis according to the increase in the Consumer Price Index, instead of basing it on the annual rate of increase.

Both the Conservative and New Democratic Party opposition have been pressing for a full debate on inflation and particularly on rising food costs.

New Democrats, following a two-day caucus two weeks ago, once again threatened to withdraw support from the minority government if the Liberals failed to take steps in four living cost areas.

They included moves to toughen the food prices review board, subsidize basic food products, force down interest rates and help people on fixed incomes.

Observers suggest, however, that the New Democrats will be sufficiently placated if the government moves to act on pensions and allowances. NDP Leader David Lewis has maintained throughout that the party is more interested in working for progressive social legislation than in toppling the government.

As a result, the government may move shortly afer the pension and allowance debates to suspended discussion on a bill that would extend a partial ban on capital punishment for another five years.

Government House Leader Allan MacEachen has denied that the government has set any time limits on the probably inflation debate, describing as false reports that the government would once again recess Parliament if such a debate ended within two weeks. If not, the reports said, the government would move on to other subjects, thus preventing another recess until the normal Christmas break or an election call.

Cholera Ravages Spread

Times News Services

ROME — Cholera tightened its grip on Italy today, taking its 15th victim and spreading to northern Italy.

Various countries have taken precautionary measures to prevent its spread as one case has already been reported in West Germany.

The outbreak began in Naples and spread to Rome and Sardinia before reaching northern Italy.

Naples hospital authorities announced the death of a 51-year-old man, bringing the city's death toll to 10.

In Rome, the health authorities announced a second cholera case Monday night.

Health authorities in Piacenza, southeast of Milan, reported that a 31-year-old woman, who had recently travelled in the Middle East, has contracted cholera.

She was the first reported case in northern Italy.

So far 15 countries including Canada have announced that vaccination certificates must be carried by travellers from Italy.

Many countries have also urged people visiting Italy to be inoculated against cholera.

Cancellations are pouring in from foreigners who had planned holidays in Italy.

The Italian health ministry has blamed infected shellfish imported illicitly to Naples from North Africa for the cholera.

There now is a virtual country-wide ban on the sale of mussels and other shellfish.

Italians, meanwhile, continued to line up at vaccination centres, particularly in the south, but there were no panic scenes like those of last week.

Joint Oil Strategy Pledge

CAIRO (WP) — King Faisal of Saudi Arabia has delivered a pledge to Egypt's President Anwar Sadat to restrict oil production increases to the level of 10 per cent annually by the end of the year, if U.S. policy in the Middle east does not change, according to responsible Egyptian and foreign sources.

The pledge, given to Sadat during his secret trip to Saudi Arabia last weekend, evidently signals fundamental policy changes for both Sadat and Faisal, and is part of a significant shift in political alignments within the Arab world now taking place.

The realignment, with Egypt looking toward the oil-producing lands of the Arabian Peninsula for help with a long-term strategy that will emphasize Arab political and economic pressure against Israel rather than war, was underscored by the limited steps taken to implement the merger between Libya and Egypt which came into effect Sunday.

Sadat's normally outspoken partner in the proposed merger, Col. Muammar Khadafy, has been silent since returning to Tripoli Wednesday night after reluctantly agreeing to a declaration of unity that fell far short of the instant total fusion of the two Arab states that the stridently-hawkish young Libyan wanted.

Libya nationalized 51 per cent of the holdings of all foreign oil companies Saturday.

The deeree affects the Amoseas Oil Co., jointly owned by Texaco and Standard Oil of California, as well as all other companies operating in Libya, including Esso Standard and Royal Dutch-Shell.

Sadat's turn to the oil-rich king instead of to the oil-rich colonel suddenly makes Faisal the key figure in the Arab confrontation with Israel, and moves Egypt still further

Up-Island Prison Hit By Riot

Two prison guards were overpowered at knife-point early Monday at the Snowden prison camp near Campbell River.

In the following 80 minutes, before RCMP were notified, four prisoners escaped and the others rioted causing extensive damage to buildings and property.

Two of the inmates are still at large and two were apprehended soon after the riot.

Police are seeking Brian George Angus, 25, and John Arthur Heffernen, 29, who escaped in a car stolen from one of the camp guards.

Prison guards said the disturbance began at about 1 a.m. when they were forced at knife point into a solitary confinement unit by a group of prisoners.

While the guards were confined, extensive damage took place at the camp.

Offices, kitchen cupboards, storehouses and files were broken into. The camp flag pole was cut down. A fire extinguisher was turned on in the kitchen.

Car tires were slashed.

The main office of the camp was knocked off its foundation and the gate of the camp was run down by a fleeing truck.

Campbell River RCMP were called to the camp at 2:20 a.m. by prison officials. On the way to the camp, police stopped a prison truck allegedly stolen by Robert Clifford, Sherlock, 20, and Daniel Michael Wright, 20, who were prisoners at the camp. Sherlock and Wright have been charged with being unlawfully at large and with possession of a stolen vehicle.

Arriving at the camp, RCMP found all prisoners in their living quarters but at a 4 a.m. roll call Angus and Heffernen were missing.

Police said Angus and Heffernen probably left the area before the RCMP were alerted. The car in which they left was a 1971 gold Plymouth, with licence number RGE 490.

There are 52 prisoners at the camp, part of the provincial corrections system. Police said they did not know how many of the prisoners in all took part in the disturbance.

When asked about the situation, an RCMP spokesman said: "I'd call it a disturbance rather than a riot."

Meanwhile, Colwood RCMP and officials of William Head prison are baffled by the disappearance of inmate Reginald Alexander Genereaux, 41, who was reported missing Sunday following a prisoner count at 6:30 p.m.

He had been seen four hours earlier walking towards the end of the William Head spit and carrying a fishing rod and radio.

Institution director Gamaliel Milner said a search was made Monday of the shoreline. The search continued today.

Colwood RCMP Sgt. Ted Foster said there are no clues as to where Genereaux might have gone. He said there have been no reports of stolen vehicles in the area and assumed the man either walked away or hitched a ride.

According to police, Genereaux, who was serving an indeterminate sentence as a dangerous sexual offender since 1965, was recently refused an application for parole. Foster speculated this may have had some bearing on his disappearance.

Tokyo: A City on the Verge of Total Collapse

TOKYO (Reuter) — A total collapse of city life is predicted for Japan if current migration to urban areas continues unabated for another decade.

The government's economic planning agency has urged emergency measures to prevent further population concentration.

And, with Tokyo nearing bursting point, it has strongly recommended the government consider moving the national capital elsewhere.

Unless something is done, the agency said, living conditions in 1985 are "likely to be very miserable."

The housing shortage will become more acute, pollution will get worse, traffic jams will be monumental, garbage will pile up in the streets with no way of disposal, and water will be in short supply, as it is now due to a prolonged drought.

The Tokyo sprawl has reached out from the original 23 wards of the metropolitan area into three surrounding prefectures, swallowing up former satellite towns.

The agency said this Tokyo monster will probably have a population of 38 million by 1985 — 31 per cent of the national total — if the present rate of urban migration continues.

It studied three urban conglomerations Tokyo and the two western Japanese concentrations around Nagoya and Osaka, now virtually joined.

The agency found 43.9 per cent of Japan's estimated 105 million people are concentrated in the three areas.

It expects this percentage to increase to 56 per cent — about 68.6 million people — by 1985.

The demand for public utilities, housing, schools and transportation imposed by that mass of people would exceed capability and contribute to the collapse of city life.

The agency said a decent living standard could only be guaranteed if the population inflow to the three areas is not only stopped but reversed.

One suggestion is to transfer institutions of higher learning to the countryside to draw away the young people who are the main migrants from rural areas.

Another is a revival of the idea that the government move to a new location.

The economic planning agency study is part of a review of an over-all national development plan formulated in 1969.

Some experts say this ambitious plan to turn Japan in the world's most closely-knit economic society has run into trouble because the government seriously underestimated the growth rate.

It also ran into problems from a public suddenly aware of the deteriorating environment, and opposed as a result to some of the industrial expansion plans.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prices were firm to higher throughout most of the session, then turned sharply lower near the close in moderate trade today on the Winnipeg Commodity Exchange.

Flax declined more than 30 cents after registering similar gains earlier in the session. However, the closing prices represented some recovery from the day's lows.

Rapeseed was down the 20-cent limit in all Vancouver contracts, while losses were smaller in most months of the Thunder Bay futures.

Oats and barley were lower after spending most of the session at levels near Friday's closes.

Rye prices moved the entire limit, starting out 10 cents higher and moving down to as much as 10 lower at the close.

MOST FAVOR HEARINGS

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — A majority of Americans feel the Senate Watergate hearings are good for the country but another 41 per cent believe the hearings aren't.

The latest Gallup poll also indicates most Americans believe the hearings won't interfere with fair trials should Watergate witnesses be tried and that the Watergate committee is more interested in getting the facts than in discrediting the Nixon administration.

Responses in the latest survey, taken Aug. 17 to 19, were highly partisan. For example, while 52 per cent of those questioned said they thought the hearings were good for the country, only 36 per cent of those identifying themselves as Republicans gave that reply.

Among those calling themselves Democrats 59 per cent felt the hearings were good for the country. Of independents, who the polling organization notes usually fall roughly midway between the two parties, 58 per cent replied the hearings were good for the country.

U.S. CIVIL WAR IRONCLAD FOUND?

CAPE HATTERAS, N.C. (UPI) — Scientists say one of two sunken ships found 20 miles off the coast may be the remains of the lost Civil War Ironclad Monitor.

Duke University scientists, arriving in Beaufort after a two-week search with an array of underwater detection gear, said it may take up to three months to analyze video tapes and sonar tracings taken in 200 feet of water.

The team of experts located a large, apparently metal ship, badly broken up on the sea floor.

The team also located a previously uncharted wreck but identified it as a modern fishing trawler with a circular pilot house, similar to the turret on the Monitor which went down off the coast in a gale Dec. 31, 1862, while under tow to Charleston, S.C., where it was to assist in a blockade of that Confederate city.

Escaping Police, Man Jumps To Death

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — A 28-year-old New Westminster man being chased on foot by two policemen during the weekend was killed in a 40-foot plunge as he attempted to elude pursuers.

The victim's name was not released.

A police spokesman said police had followed the man's car during a high-speed chase through the city about 1:30 a.m.

When the man swung up a steep hill off Columbia Street and found the road blocked by a police car, he fled on foot back down the hill.

Police said the man ran across Columbia and leaped a retaining wall. There was bush below the wall, but police said the man's head struck a concrete abutment at the base of the wall and he was killed instantly.

Run-Aways Now Take Church Vows

KOKOMO, Ind. (UPI) — Two Kokomo teen-agers who ran away two weeks ago in an effort to get married will be finally wed on the weekend at the Forest Park Nazarene Church.

Sheryl McDonald, 17, who suffers from a serious blood disease and required frequent blood transfusions, and Kevin Dodd, 16, were to be married in a traditional ceremony surrounded by their parents, relatives and friends.

The two high school students became objects of a nationwide search last week as they fled to Georgia in an attempt to get married when their parents initially rejected marriage plans because of their youth.

They headed back home Sunday following long distance telephone conversations with their parents, who agreed to let them get married.

Price Curbs Hurt Probe For Gas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American Petroleum Institute says there is a serious U.S. shortage of natural gas "because of 20 years of government price-fixing."

Frank Ikard, the institute's president, said it was "imperative Congress take action now to provide adequate incentive to draw the gas-producing industry back into the business of exploring for natural gas."

The industry group has complained that price controls imposed by the Federal Power Commission at the wellhead, or the production source, have held natural gas prices artificially low and have discouraged exploration for new gas fields.

Envoy Arrives

Prices Up Sharply In Toronto Trading

Prices on the Toronto stock market closed sharply higher in moderate trading.

Volume by 2 p.m. was 1.66 million shares compared with 1.65 million Friday.

Advances led declines 218 to 165 with 225 issues unchanged.

Merchandising, oil refining, paper and forest and industrial mining stocks were among advancing market sectors while food processing, construction and material and chemical issues declined.

Anglo-Canadian Pulp rose 2⅛ to $17, Canadian Tire A 1½ to $49½, Domtar ⅞ to $22⅛, Chrysler ⅞ to $24⅞ and Gulf ⅞ to $38¼.

Victoria and Grey fell ⅞ to $27¼, John Labatt ¾ to $25¾ and Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas ¼ to $50¾.

Gibraltar was up ⅜ to $14¼, Agnico-Eagle 25 cents to $5.10 and Hudson Bay Mining ¼ to $26¼. Kerr Addison fell ¾ to $11⅝ and Placer ½ to $26¾.

Great Plains Development gained 1 to $31, United Canso ⅝ to $13⅝ and Sunningdale 30 cents to $ 8.25. Scurry-Rainbow slipped ½ to $20⅜.

New York

New York stocks today continued last week's trend of higher prices, evoking some optimism from analysts hoping this indicated a trend.

Advancing issues had a 984 to 372 lead over decliners, but trading was sluggish.

Minnesota Mineral and Mining, down 1 at 85, was the volume leader, followed by American Airlines, up ¼ at 10¾.

Champion Spark Plugs, up 1¼ at 18⅝; Texaco, down ⅛ at 29⅞; and Ramada Inns, up ⅛ at 10.

Oils generally ran against the upward trends because of uncertainties over their Middle East investments and in particular problems with Libya and its take-over of 51 per cent of the oil interests of outside companies.

Exxon was off 1¼ at 85⅝; Royal Dutch, down 1¾ at 43; and Standard Oil of California, down 1¼ at 64.

Montreal

All sectors except banks advanced in light trading on the Montreal stock market today.

Combined volume on the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges at 1 p.m. was 680,200 shares.

Chrysler rose ½ to $24¾, Abitibi-Paper ⅜ to $12¼, Canadian Industries ¼ to $15¼ and Alcan ⅛ to $33¾ while Brinco fell ⅜ to $5½, Bank of Commerce ⅜ to $30½ and Bell Canada ⅛ to $40¾.

London

Light trading and lower prices on the London stock market pushed the Financial Times index to a low for the year today.

The index was off 3.1 points to 406.8 in mid-session trading.

Observers said the market declined despite news of an upturn in capital spending by manufacturing industries.

Sharp Drop in Price Seen As Calculators Flood Market

VANCOUVER (CP) — One of the latest electronic gadgets to find its way into the hands of the average consumer is the hand calculator and sales of the mathematical marvels are booming.

More than 4,000 hand-sized calculators are sold every month in Vancouver, to everyone from businessmen to housewives.

Prices for a calculator which adds, subtracts, divides and multiplies and has a floating decimal and eight-digit capacity, range from $70 to $90.

Prices go up to $500 for a specialized scientific or business calculator.

Allan Gardner, sales manager of Caltron Business Machines Ltd. in Vancouver, said the calculator boom can be compared with that of transistor radios in the early 60s. Like the transistor radio, prices have dropped, sometimes as much as $50 in the 18 months calculators have been on the market.

Gardner said by Christmas the price for a basic calculator will be as low as $50.

He said a recent study by a magazine showed that in the $70-$90 price range, 45 per cent of calculators sold are used by businessmen.

Students use 15 per cent of the calculators sold and the remaining 40 per cent is divided among other professions and people such as housewives.

Gardner said the hand calculator business has doubled in the last year and he expects it to triple in the next few years.

Jeff Shook, calculator specialist at Hewlett-Packard Co., said about 12 companies produce calculators and each one is cutting prices.

Calculator manfuacturers now are selling a calculator with a retail value of $60 to stores for $42, cutting their margin of profit to almost nothing, Shook said.

The novelty seems to be wearing off at the retail level, Gardner said, as customers are asking for specific features, such as rechargeable batteries.

He said people are willing to pay an extra $10 for an added feature.

Shook said the most important parts of the calculators are the chips. One of them, about a quarter-inch square, can replace hundreds or even thousands of transistors.

The chips that Hewlett-Packard manufacture and use are equivalent to 6,000 transistors each.

Before the chips, he said, an equivalent to his company's hand business model would have weighed 35 pounds and been the size of a typewriter. It would have cost $5,000.

That was less than three years ago.

DOWNTOWN

Population Has Shrunk in City's Core Despite Encouragement From City Hall

They're not called townhouses

By WAYNE HARDING
Times Staff

When the tourists get back on the boats, when the long-haired youths wander away from the squares, when the workers drive off to the suburbs, a community of 3,600 citizens remains in downtown Victoria.

Most of them are old people.

Many of them are poor people.

For all but a few, downtown living is not a fashionable new lifestyle. They cannot describe their rooms as townhouses.

For at least the past five years, official policy has been to encourage people to make their homes downtown.

Planners have envisaged redevelopments that would turn old buildings into fine apartment blocks occupied by working and middle-class people.

City council has responded to that vision — seeing benefits in having a community living close to work and shopping. Among the encouragements has been an amendment to the traffic bylaw in September 1972 to waive residential parking requirements for buildings built before 1910 in the downtown core.

But developers have been slow to respond to the encouragement and the visions of affluent urbanites replacing the indigent residents of the walk-up rooms.

Of course, there have been a few imaginative efforts such as the conversion of the London Flats at Broad and Johnson Streets and the conversion of the Albany Hotel on Government Street into a school of weaving with studios.

But on the larger scale, nothing much has happened except that the downtown community has become smaller. Between 1961 and 1971 it declined by 1,642 souls.

A declining population is natural for a community of old people — and downtown is just that.

Although many young people are evident during the day, in the core area (between Belleville and Chatham Streets and between Cook and the harbor), there are only 170 residents under the age of 20. The largest group of children living in the area, 75, live in Chinatown where there still are a relatively large number of families.

At the other end of the age scale, there are about 1,100 residents in the same area who are over the age of 65.

★

Apart from age and the modest incomes, the downtown community is not a very homogeneous society. It does not speak with any single voice. The Chinese community — about one-sixth of the total downtown population — is also made up mostly of elderly men whose numbers are declining but they live apart from the rest of the downtown population.

The age of the downtown residents is reflected in community facilities. There are no schools (other than dancing, craft and language schools whose students are attracted from throughout the region) and there are no playgrounds.

But for the elderly there is a pensioners hall, the Silver Threads Centre and many private clubs.

There also are nine beer parlors and 10 cocktail lounges in the area.

Indeed social life can be quite busy for those who can afford to share the public facilities of downtown Victoria with the suburbanites and tourists who visit.

Shopping facilities are plentiful, of course — but only during the day. When the suburbanites leave, there is no grocery store open between Yates and distant Niagara Street. There is also no laundromat open at nights downtown.

Will this quiet, often forgotten community that never lobbies city hall remain?

★

Probably not. While "people haven't been quick" to respond to the incentives of downtown living, says community development director Geoffrey Greennhalgh, the large "housing stock" in the downtown area suggests the visions of the planners and the politicians will soon be shared by developers and future residents.

The proposed Reid Centre apartment complex will make a major change to the composition of the community. There has been talk of building flats in the Dowell Building on Wharf Street. And there will probably be others.

In some cases, redevelopment itself will reduce the population as old buildings containing humble single-room residences are re-done into larger flats.

If it is now happening, the elderly indigent men who are being shifted out by the affluent urbanites have not complained. But they will.

"Elderly people want downtown accommodation and they can't get it now," says Mrs. Pauline Barker of the Silver Threads organization. "Prices are going up everywhere, including downtown, making it hard on them."

Three Drivers Jailed, First Time Impaired

Three people were jailed today when stiffer penalties for first-time impaired drivers were brought into effect in Victoria traffic court.

A six-day jail sentence, to be served on weekends, was ordered by Judge Harold Alder for a 63-year-old man who admitted impaired driving in the 700-block Discovery on Monday.

Leonard Arendell, 714 Discovery, was also fined $100 for failing to remain at the scene of an accident earlier the same evening. Three months probation was ordered.

The sentence, said Alder, was imposed "in view of the policy declared in the area."

The policy which provides for sentences of up to seven days in jail began Sept. 1.

Alder said earlier that fines of up to $350 and six-months suspensions were not having the desired effect.

He said then the new imprisonment policy could become "pretty general."

The Criminal Code allows a judge to impose up to three months imprisonment for a first offender and a fine of up to $500.

Also facing the stiffer penalty for impaired driving on Douglas St. Saturday was Ava Urquart, 23, of 860 Carrie, who was sentenced to two days in jail.

"There's no provision for different sentencing for women," said Alder, adding the woman was prohibited from driving in Canada for one year.

Court was told she reached speeds of up to 80 mph along Douglas and failed to stop when police started to follow.

Another six-day jail sentence was ordered for a 19-year-old youth charged with impaired driving July 21. David Allan Jeffrey, 128 Michigan, was stopped in the 500-block Fort St.

Judge Alder also imposed fines of up to $500 and driving suspensions for up to 10 months for persons charged with having a blood-alcohol content over .08.

Kathleen Collins, 23, of 3902 Cadboro Bay Road, was fined $500 for having a reading over .08 when stopped by police Saturday in the 1000-block Wharf.

THINKING DRIVERS END UP SMARTING

Travellers trying to dodge ferry line-ups Labor Day apparently outsmarted themselves on the Swartz Bay - Tsawwassen run because traffic was light Monday but there were delays today.

A spokesman at Swartz Bay said ferries had only three-quarter loads to mid-afternoon Monday and there was virtually no waiting. Line-ups this morning produced one to two-hour waits.

At Tsawwassen, traffic was described as light Monday but there were waits of about an hour this morning.

No one was left waiting at Departure Bay overnight, a spokesman at Nanaimo said today. Traffic there was light Monday morning, building to waits of about two hours later in the day.

Moderate traffic at Nanaimo today meant a missed sailing for a few vehicles.

Supermarket Apple Hike Criticized

Provincial horticulturist Alan Littler said today supermarkets should give consumers "a break" by reducing the price of locally grown apples.

"There's too great a markup between producer price and retail price," he said.

He said producers are getting 16 cents a pound for red Tydeman and the same apples are selling in supermarkets at 37 cents.

"It would be more reasonable to sell these apples at about 29 cents a pound," he said.

Littler said Vancouver Island produces about 850,000 pounds of apples a year, adding that California apples are selling between 33 and 45 cents, depending on the variety.

"This is no reason for the price of locally produced apples to be so high," he said.

He said he was amazed at the large amount of imported vegetables in local stores.

LITTER

Sooke Logger Reigns Again

Ron Hartill of Sooke won the Panicky Bell trophy for top logger for the second year in a row Saturday in world logging championships at the Pacific National Exhibition in Vancouver.

Hartill compiled a total of 14 points by winning the single bucking event, coming second in the chokerman's race and in the obstacle pole event, and in the top five in the standing block and springboard chop.

Ask The Times

Q. How did the phrase, "God Bless You," after someone sneezes, originate? J.W.F.

A. The phrase was originally used as a blessing to someone near death. At the dying person's last breath, usually a wheezing type of sound, the gathered relatives would issue their blessing. The phrase eventually came to be used after a person sneezed, presumably because a sneeze produced a similar sound to a death wheeze.

Scene of Trail Fatality Long-Standing Concern

Outdoorsmen have been pressing the federal parks department to improve a section of the west coast trail near Port Renfrew where a man drowned Saturday.

The man was identified as Donald Arthur Matheson, 23, of London, Ont.

RCMP believe he is the trail's first fatality.

He was walking on the rocks near Logan Creek, about 10 miles west of Port Renfrew, when he fell into a sea chasm.

Matheson was hiking the trail from Bamfield with his girl friend Mary McLellan, also from Ontario, when he fell, but she was unable to pull him out of the water, police said.

Jack Scrivener, executive director of the Victoria Boy Scout Association, said the condition of the trail around Logan Creek has been of some concern to hikers for some time.

"The trail in this area is in such a poor condition that people are tempted to walk along the seashore which is more dangerous," he said.

"At Logan Creek, for example, "if you don't want to walk along a trail full of debris and fallen trees, the only alternative is to walk along a tricky ledge," he said.

"The trail in this area obviously needs to be improved or there may be other accidents. The remainder of the trail between Bamfield and Logan creek is fairly safe."

The federal parks branch this summer started to repair the western section of the trail. Many hikers felt the department should have started improving the trail in the Port Renfrew area.

Police said people have suffered broken legs or sprained ankles in falls on the trail.

The trail in the last few years has been attracting visitors from all parts of North America because of its wilderness aspects.

Davis Invited to River

Indian demonstrators near the mouth of the Cowichan River, fishing with a weir which is alleged to be illegal, have invited Environment Minister Jack Davis to hear their grievances Thursday.

Gordon Elliott, spokesman for about 30 young Indians who are protesting fisheries department restrictions, said Monday their weir went into operation Saturday afternoon.

Fisheries officers from nearby Duncan, who said earlier that weirs are illegal, visited the site Monday but asked only for more information on the demonstrators' plans, said Elliott.

The invitation to Davis, whose portfolio includes fisheries, was to be sent Monday or today, said Elliott. The Indians will have a submission for him and if he fails to show up it will be given to reporters.

A weir is a way of fishing rivers used by Indians in the old days but discarded on the Cowichan about 40 years ago. A fence of stakes and branches across the river directs the spawning salmon into a trap where they can be easily harvested.

Indians may obtain special permits to spear, and in some cases net, spawning salmon but the demonstrators argue they are not able to harvest enough fish to feed their families this way.

Elliott had indicated the indians want to co-operate with the fisheries department to ensure sufficient fish escape to produce a future run. But they also want to manage the fish in the river passing through reserve lands and to use the old ways of catching them

The council of the Cowichan Indian Band, while supporting in principle the aims of the demonstrators, has dissociated itself from the demonstration, hinting that outsiders taking part may lead to trouble.

All of the 30 or so demonstrators camped by an old barn about a mile from the river mouth are young and most are from the interior.

Boy, 5, in Court on Traffic Charge

MISLIMOV

DES MOINES, Iowa — A five-year-old boy has been ordered to appear in court on a traffic charge.

Patrolman Max Street said Monday he issued a ticket to Craig Johnson after the boy's bicycle collided with a pickup truck Sunday night.

The youngster is charged with failure to yield the right of way and is to appear in court Sept. 27.

He was treated at a hospital for shock and released.

Street said he issued the ticket because the Johnson boy caused the accident.

"It's my job to issue tickets for traffic violations," he said.

MOSCOW — The Soviet news agency Tass reported Sunday that Shirali Mislomov, said to be the oldest man in the world, died at the age of 168 in his home village of Barzavu in the Azerbaijan region following a severe illness.

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — A $10,000 cash donation from a group calling itself the Gainesville Marijuana Dealers Association has enriched muscular dystrophy fund-raising efforts and left police puzzled.

Volunteers here had raised $5,000 Monday during the Jerry Lewis telethon when a bag containing 10 packs of $1,000 arrived, officials said.

An accompanying note read: "From the Gainesville Marijuana Dealers Association. Right on."

Police said they had never heard of the organization.

TORONTO — Stompin' Tom Connors plans to get married Nov. 2, and fans can watch the wedding without an invitation.

A television set is all that will be required to watch the ceremony.

A spokesman for Connors, one of Canada's most popular country music performers, said Sunday the wedding will take place on the CBC television program Luncheon Date which stars Elwood Glover.

Connors' marriage to Lena Welsh, his long-time steady girl, would be North America's first televised celebrity wedding since Tiny Tim married Miss Vicky on NBC's Tonight Show in December, 1969.

TORONTO (CP) — David Archer, president of the 750,000-member Ontario Federation of Labor, urged the provincial government Monday to outlaw professional strikebreakers, "thugs, goons and gangsters."

In a Labor Day message, Archer said the CFL "will continue to nag our legislators at Queen's Park until they see that their duty is to Ontario's citizens and taxpayers, not to mendicant mobsters who feed off such disputes."

DOWNTOWN

Population Has Shrunk in City's Core Despite Encouragement From City Hall

By WAYNE HARDING
Times Staff

When the tourists get back on the boats, when the long-haired youths wander away from the squares, when the workers drive off to the suburbs, a community of 3,600 citizens remains in downtown Victoria.

Most of them are old people.

Many of them are poor people.

For all but a few, downtown living is not a fashionable new lifestyle. They cannot describe their rooms as townhouses.

For at least the past five years, official policy has been to encourage people to make their homes downtown.

Planners have envisaged redevelopments that would turn old buildings into fine apartment blocks occupied by working and middle-class people.

City council has responded to that vision — seeing benefits in having a community living close to work and shopping. Among the encouragements has been an amendment to the traffic bylaw in September 1972 to waive residential parking requirements for buildings built before 1910 in the downtown core.

But developers have been slow to respond to the encouragement and the visions of affluent urbanites replacing the indigent residents of the walk-up rooms.

Of course, there have been a few imaginative efforts such as the conversion of the London Flats at Broad and Johnson Streets and the conversion of the Albany Hotel on Government Street into a school of weaving with studios.

But on the larger scale, nothing much has happened except that the downtown community has become smaller. Between 1961 and 1971 it declined by 1,642 souls.

A declining population is natural for a community of old people — and downtown is just that.

Although many young people are evident during the day, in the core area (between Belleville and Chatham Streets and between Cook and the harbor), there are only 170 residents under the age of 20. The largest group of children living in the area, 75, live in Chinatown where there still are a relatively large number of families.

At the other end of the age scale, there are about 1,100 residents in the same area who are over the age of 65.

★

Apart from age and the modest incomes, the downtown community is not a very homogeneous society. It does not speak with any single voice. The Chinese community — about one-sixth of the total downtown population — is also made up mostly of elderly men whose numbers are declining but they live apart from the rest of the downtown population.

The age of the downtown residents is reflected in community facilities. There are no schools (other than dancing, craft and language schools whose students are attracted from throughout the region) and there are no playgrounds.

But for the elderly there is a pensioners hall, the Silver Threads Centre and many private clubs.

There also are nine beer parlors and 10 cocktail lounges in the area.

Indeed social life can be quite busy for those who can afford to share the public facilities of downtown Victoria with the suburbanites and tourists who visit.

Shopping facilities are plentiful, of course — but only during the day. When the suburbanites leave, there is no grocery store open between Yates and distant Niagara Street. There is also no laundromat open at nights downtown.

Will this quiet, often forgotten community that never lobbies city hall remain?

★

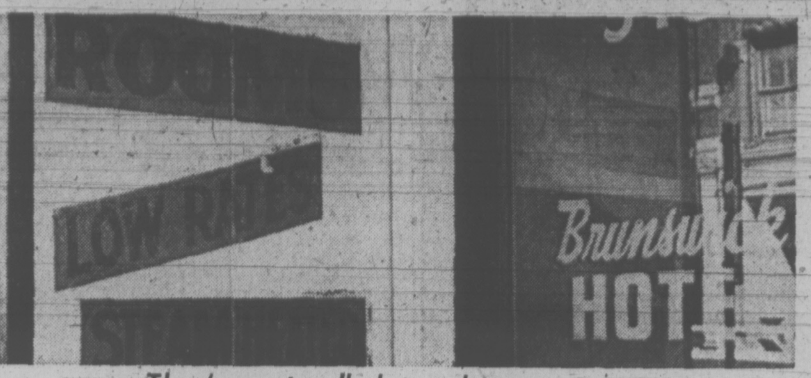
Probably not. While "people haven't been quick" to respond to the incentives of downtown living, says community development director Geoffrey Greennhalgh, the large "housing stock" in the downtown area suggests the visions of the planners and the politicians will soon be shared by developers and future residents.

The proposed Reid Centre apartment complex will make a major change to the composition of the community. There has been talk of building flats in the Dowell Building on Wharf Street. And there will probably be others.

In some cases, redevelopment itself will reduce the population as old buildings containing humble single-room residences are re-done into larger flats.

If it is now happening, the elderly indigent men who are being shifted out by the affluent urbanites have not complained. But they will.

"Elderly people want downtown accommodation and they can't get it now." says Mrs. Pauline Barker of the Silver Threads organization. "Prices are going up everywhere, including downtown, making it hard on them."



They're not called townhouses

Three Drivers Jailed, First Time Impaired

Three people were jailed today when stiffer penalties for first-time impaired drivers were brought into effect in Victoria traffic court.

A six-day jail sentence, to be served on weekends, was ordered by Judge Harold Alder for a 63-year-old man who admitted impaired driving in the 700-block Discovery on Monday.

Leonard Arendell, 714 Discovery, was also fined $100 for failing to remain at the scene of an accident earlier the same evening. Three months' probation was ordered.

The sentence, said Alder, was imposed "in view of the policy declared in the area."

The policy which provides for sentences of up to seven days in jail began Sept. 1.

Alder said earlier that fines of up to $350 and six-month suspensions were not having the desired effect.

He said then the new imprisonment policy could become "pretty general."

The Criminal Code allows a judge to impose up to three months imprisonment for a first offender and a fine of up to $500.

Also facing the stiffer penalty for impaired driving on Douglas St. Saturday was Ava Urquart, 23, of 860 Carrie, who was sentenced to two days in jail.

"There's no provision for different sentencing for women," said Alder, adding the woman was prohibited from driving in Canada for one year.

Court was told she reached speeds of up to 80 mph along Douglas and failed to stop when police started to follow.

Another six-day jail sentence was ordered for a 19-year-old youth charged with impaired driving July 21. David Allan Jeffrey, 128 Michigan, was stopped in the 500-block Fort St.

Judge Alder also imposed fines of up to $500 and driving suspensions for up to 10 months for persons charged with having a blood-alcohol content over .08.

Kathleen Collins, 23, of 3902 Cadboro Bay Road, was fined $500 for having a reading over .08 when stopped by police Saturday in the 1000-block Wharf.

THINKING DRIVERS END UP SMARTING

Travellers trying to dodge ferry line-ups Labor Day apparently outsmarted themselves on the Swartz Bay - Tsawwassen run because traffic was light Monday but there were delays today.

A spokesman at Swartz Bay said ferries had only three-quarter loads to mid-afternoon Monday and there was virtually no waiting. Line-ups this morning produced one to two-hour waits.

At Tsawwassen, traffic was described as light Monday but there were waits of about an hour this morning.

No one was left waiting at Departure Bay overnight, a spokesman at Nanaimo said today. Traffic there was light Monday morning, building to waits of about two hours later in the day.

Moderate traffic at Nanaimo today meant a missed sailing for a few vehicles.

Supermarket Apple Hike Criticized

Provincial horticulturist Alan Littler said today supermarkets should give consumers "a break" by reducing the price of locally grown apples.

"There's too great a markup between producer price and retail price," he said.

He said producers are getting 16 cents a pound for red Tydemans and the same apples are selling in supermarkets at 37 cents.

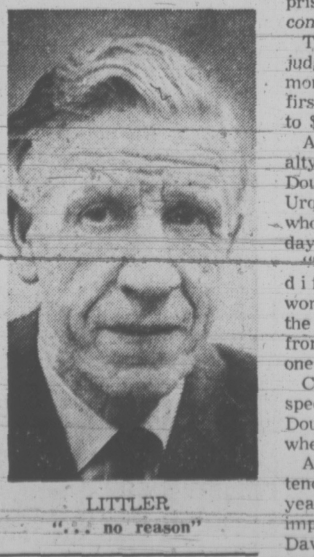
"It would be more reasonable to sell these apples at about 29 cents a pound," he said.

Littler said Vancouver Island produces about 850,000 pounds of apples a year, adding that California apples are selling between 33 and 45 cents, depending on the variety.

"This is no reason for the price of locally produced apples to be so high," he said.

He said he was amazed at the large amount of imported vegetables in local stores.

"I'm investigating the matter now."



LITTLER
"... no reason"

Sooke Logger Reigns Again

Ron Hartill of Sooke won the Panicky Bell trophy for top logger for the second year in a row Saturday in world logging championships at the Pacific National Exhibition in Vancouver.

Hartill compiled a total of 14 points by winning the single bucking event, coming second in the chokerman's race and in the obstacle pole event, and in the top five in the standing block and springboard chop.

Ask The Times

Q. How did the phrase, "God Bless You," after someone sneezes, originate? J.W.F.

A. The phrase was originally used as a blessing to someone near death. At the dying person's last breath, usually a wheezing type of sound, the gathered relatives would issue their blessing. The phrase eventually came to be used after a person sneezed, presumably because a sneeze produced a similar sound to a death wheeze.

Scene of Trail Fatality Long-Standing Concern

Outdoorsmen have been pressing the federal parks department to improve a section of the west coast trail near Port Renfrew where a man drowned Saturday.

The man was identified as Donald Arthur Matheson, 23, of London, Ont.

RCMP believe he is the trail's first fatality.

He was walking on the rocks near Logan Creek, about 10 miles west of Port Renfrew, when he fell into a sea chasm.

Matheson was hiking the trail from Bamfield with his girl friend Mary McLellan, also from Ontario, when he fell, but she was unable to pull him out of the water, police said.

Jack Scrivener, executive director of the Victoria Boy Scout Association, said the condition of the trail around Logan Creek has been of some concern to hikers for some time.

"The trail in this area is in such a poor condition that people are tempted to walk along the seashore which is more dangerous," he said.

"At Logan Creek, for example, "if you don't want to walk along a trail full of debris and fallen trees, the only alternative is to walk along a tricky ledge," he said.

"The trail in this area obviously needs to be improved or there may be other accidents. The remainder of the trail between Bamfield and Logan creek is fairly safe."

The federal parks branch this summer started to repair the western section of the trail. Many hikers felt the department should have started improving the trail in the Port Renfrew area.

Police said people have suffered broken legs or sprained ankles in falls on the trail.

The trail in the last few years has been attracting visitors from all parts of North America because of its wilderness aspects.

Davis Invited to River

Indian demonstrators near the mouth of the Cowichan River, fishing with a weir which is alleged to be illegal, have invited Environment Minister Jack Davis to hear their grievances Thursday.

Gordon Elliott, spokesman for about 30 young Indians who are protesting fisheries department restrictions, said Monday their weir went into operation Saturday afternoon.

Fisheries officers from nearby Duncan, who said earlier that weirs are illegal, visited the site Monday but asked only for more information on the demonstrators' plans, said Elliott.

The invitation to Davis, whose portfolio includes fisheries, was to be sent Monday or today, said Elliott. The Indians will have a submission for him and if he fails to show up it will be given to reporters.

A weir is a way of fishing rivers used by Indians in the old days but discarded on the Cowichan about 40 years ago. A fence of stakes and branches across the river directs the spawning salmon into a trap where they can be easily harvested.

Indians may obtain special permits to spear, and in some cases, net, spawning salmon but the demonstrators argue they are not able to harvest enough fish to feed their families this way.

Elliott had indicated the indians want to co-operate with the fisheries department to ensure sufficient fish escape to produce a future run. But they also want to manage the fish in the river passing through reserve lands and to use the old ways of catching them

The council of the Cowichan Indian Band, while supporting in principle the aims of the demonstrators, has dissociated itself from the demonstration, hinting that outsiders taking part may lead to trouble.

All of the 30 or so demonstrators camped by an old barn about a mile from the river mouth are young and most are from the interior.

The Royal Alexandra

Announcing the beginning of the end

The last self-owned apartments on Beach Drive in Oak Bay

Frankly, when we started we never expected to be able to build such an exceptional apartment featuring such spacious and luxuriously appointed rooms throughout, still provide a planned recreation complex that has it's own sauna room, exercise pavilion, therapeutic pool, hobby room, recreation lounge and underground electronically secured parking.

Naturally, the location and setting here on Beach Drive can never be replaced. This is your year 'round view.

Close by the world-famous Oak Bay Marina and Restaurant, a constant parade of graceful yachts and cruisers, lovely Windsor Park rose gardens and just about anything else you would want at the Oak Bay Village.

As we say . . . each apartment is larger and more luxuriously appointed than you would expect at these prices.

If you've ever wanted a place on Oak Bay now is the time to get it before they're all gone.

No Rails In B.C.

Times News Services

The majority of some 7,000 British Columbia railway workers defied a parliamentary order for the third straight day today by remaining off the job.

In other parts of Canada trains rolled and East Coast ferries went back into service during the weekend as 11 Canadian railways moved to clear a backlog of passengers and freight after a month of regional strike action and the nine-day national shutdown.

The order providing a minimum 8.25 per cent wage increase went into effect at 12:01 a.m. Sunday but the two national railways reported their B.C. operations were still tied up.

"You don't hear any train whistle, do you?" railway union leaders remarked early today.

Instead of going to work, members of the running trades and the shop crafts were scheduled to attend mass meetings today at Nanaimo, New Westminster, Revelstoke and Cranbrook.

In Victoria today, Roy Head, spokesman for one of the unions, said members were giving negotiators 30 days to come up with a decent contract "or there will be another strike."

About 100 members locally of the Brotherhood of Rail and Airline Clerks went back to work at midnight Monday "but they're very, very unhappy. It wouldn't take much to get them off work again."

Head said members are at the point now of saying, "to hell with it, we'll go to jail."

Resistance of members of the non-operating unions broke down at Prince Rupert where workers returned to the job Monday night but trains still were unable to operate without the running trades, including the enginemen, or the shop crafts who include machinists.

Crews were back at Kamloops but none at Nelson, Cranbrook or Revelstoke, CP Rail reported.

There was no yard staff at CP Rail's big Coquitlam yard but almost 50 per cent of the yard staff was back in Vancouver waiting to move trains that could not move without enginemen.

A CNR spokesman said passenger service has resumed operations on the northern line to Prince Rupert.

There was no other passenger service anywhere in B.C.

The regular eastbound train was scheduled to leave Prince Rupert today, and a westbound passenger train left Jasper for Prince Rupert.

Angry yardmen in Calgary have also defied the back-to-work legislation and their union leader says he cannot say when they will return.

"The men were absolutely adamant they weren't going back at midnight Labor Day — of all bloody days to order us back," Phil Burke, local chairman of the United Transportation Workers, said today.

In New Westminster about 1,000 non-ops unanimously approved a resolution Monday that unions in the Greater Vancouver area remain off the job until a new contract is negotiated and approved.

Roger Butler, president of a joint council of non-ops in New Westminster, told reporters after the vote the resolution ordered national negotiators to bargain for better contracts or resign.

"We didn't get anything that we were promised by our union officials. They sat back and let Parliament take over and it took the onus off them."

Milk, Bread Subsidies Gas Freeze Introduced

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberal government today introduced higher subsidies for bread and milk and imposed a petroleum price freeze until Jan. 30.

Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons Tuesday that the oil industry will be asked to stop all further price increases until the Jan. 30 date. The freeze would apply in all cases except where the energy minister decided the "increase in the cost of imported crude oil warrants a Canadian price increase."

Imported crude supplies Canadian needs east of the Ottawa Valley.

Mr. Trudeau said the government will also seek "a control mechanism" by which increases in U.S. prices will not automatically push prices higher in Canada.

"An export tax or a national oil marketing board are two possible control mechanisms," Mr. Trudeau said in language that appeared to be taken directly from the energy policy paper released last June.

Besides the petroleum freeze of interest to all motorists and homeowners using oil for fuel, there were these consumer oriented provisions:

—Subsidies payed to domestic millers will be increased to $1.25 from $1 a bushel and the consumer price of milk will be subsidized to the extent of five cents a quarter in any province where the marketing board guarantees prices will not be increased during the next year.

The government also intends to implement a raise in family allowances averaging $12 a month beginning next month and the increase won't be subject to income tax.

Another increase would begin in January, raising family allowances to an average of $20 a month from the current level of $7.21.

In Toronto radio station CFTR says the federal government several weeks ago ordered the printing of millions of ration stamps from a large Toronto firm.

The station says the firm's employees were given the job of running off material on three-colored paper. Then the firm's supervisors were called in to add the printing.

The station says what finally developed were Canadian ration stamps to be used in conjunction with possible introduction of wage and price controls.

Trudeau announced three weeks ago the government was going to escalate old-age pensions and the guaranteed income supplement on a quarterly basis according to the increase in the Consumer Price Index, instead of basing it on the annual rate of increase. There was no word of this today.

Both the Conservative and New Democratic Party opposition have been pressing for a full debate on inflation and particularly on rising food costs.

New Democrats, following a two-day caucus two weeks ago, once again threatened to withdraw support from the minority government if the Liberals failed to take steps in four living cost areas.

They included moves to toughen the food prices review board, subsidize basic food products, force down interest rates and help people on fixed incomes.

Observers suggest, however, that the New Democrats will be sufficiently placated if the government moves to act on pensions and allowances. NDP Leader David Lewis has maintained throughout that the party is more interested in working for progressive social legislation than in toppling the government.

As a result, the government may move shortly afer the pension and allowance debates to suspended discussion on a bill that would extend a partial ban on capital punishment for another five years.

Government House Leader Allan MacEachen has denied that the government has set any time limits on the probable inflation debate, describing as false reports that the government would once again recess Parliament if such a debate ended within two weeks. If not, the reports said, the government would move on to other subjects, thus preventing another recess until the normal Christmas break or an election call.

DOPE CHECK AT BLAINE CAUSES JAM

BLAINE, Wash. (AP) — A line of vehicles estimated at several miles long jammed the United States-Canada boder crossing here Sunday and Monday as Labor Day travellers returned to the U.S.

U.S. customs and immigrations agents said they were checking from 300 to 400 cars an hour for liquor, marijuana and other items.

Authorities said they were finding some illegal items in the searches framed by the International Peace Arch, the border-straddling symbol of friendship between the two nations.

Up-Island Prison Hit By Riot

Two prison guards were overpowered at knife-point early Monday at the Snowden prison camp near Campbell River.

In the following 80 minutes, before RCMP were notified, four prisoners escaped and the others rioted causing extensive damage to buildings and property.

Two of the inmates are still at large and two were apprehended soon after the riot.

Police are seeking Brian George Angus, 25, and John Arthur Heffernen, 29, who escaped in a car stolen from one of the camp guards.

Prison guards said the disturbance began at about 1 a.m. when they were forced at knife point into a solitary confinement unit by a group of prisoners.

While the guards were confined, extensive damage took place at the camp.

Offices, kitchen cupboards, storehouses and files were broken into. The camp flag pole was cut down. A fire extinguisher was turned on in the kitchen.

Car tires were slashed.

The main office of the camp was knocked off its foundation and the gate of the camp was run down by a fleeing truck.

Campbell River RCMP were called to the camp at 2:20 a.m. by prison officials. On the way to the camp, police stopped a prison truck allegedly stolen by Robert Clifford Sherlock, 20, and Daniel Michael Wright, 20, who were prisoners at the camp. Sherlock and Wright have been charged with being unlawfully at large and with possession of a stolen vehicle.

Arriving at the camp, RCMP found all prisoners in their living quarters but at a 4 a.m. roll call Angus and Heffernen were missing.

Police said Angus and Heffernen probably left the area before the RCMP were alerted. The car in which they left was a 1971 gold Plymouth, with licence number RGE 490.

There are 52 prisoners at the camp, part of the provincial corrections system. Police said they did not know how many of the prisoners in all took part in the disturbance.

When asked about the situation, an RCMP spokesman said: "I'd call it a disturbance rather than a riot."

Meanwhile, Colwood RCMP and officials of William Head prison are baffled by the disappearance of inmate Reginald Alexander Genereaux, 41, who was reported missing Sunday following a prisoner count at 6:30 p.m.

He had been seen four hours earlier walking towards the end of the William Head spit and carrying a fishing rod and radio.

Institution director Gamaliel Milner said a search was made Monday of the shoreline. The search continued today.

Colwood RCMP Sgt. Ted Foster said there are no clues as to where Genereaux might have gone. He said there have been no reports of stolen vehicles in the area and assumed the man either walked away or hitched a ride.

According to police, Genereaux, who was serving an indeterminate sentence as a dangerous sexual offender since 1965, was recently refused an application for parole. Foster speculated this may have had some bearing on his disappearance.

Cholera Ravages Spread

Times News Services

ROME — Cholera tightened its grip on Italy today, taking its 15th victim and spreading to northern Italy.

Various countries have taken precautionary measures to prevent its spread as one case has already been reported in West Germany.

The outbreak began in Naples and, spread to Rome and Sardinia before reaching northern Italy.

Naples hospital authorities announced the death of a 51-year-old man, bringing the city's death toll to 10.

In Rome, the health authorities announced a second cholera case Monday night.

Health authorities in Piacenza, southeast of Milan, reported that a 31-year-old woman, who had recently travelled in the Middle East, has contracted cholera.

She was the first reported case in northern Italy.

So far 15 countries including Canada have announced that vaccination certificates must be carried by travellers from Italy.

Many countries have also urged people visiting Italy to be inoculated against cholera.

Cancellations are pouring in from foreigners who had planned holidays in Italy.

The Italian health ministry has blamed infected shellfish imported illicitly to Naples from North Africa for the cholera.

There now is a virtual country-wide ban on the sale of mussels and other shellfish.

Italians, meanwhile, continued to line up at vaccination centres, particularly in the south, but there were no panic scenes like those of last week.

Joint Oil Strategy Pledge

CAIRO (WP) — King Faisal of Saudi Arabia has delivered a pledge to Egypt's President Anwar Sadat to restrict oil production increases to the level of 10 per cent annually by the end of the year, if U.S. policy in the Middle east does not change, according to responsible Egyptian and foreign sources.

The pledge, given to Sadat during his secret trip to Saudi Arabia last weekend, evidently signals fundamental policy changes for both Sadat and Faisal, and is part of a significant shift in political alignments within the Arab world now taking place.

The realignment, with Egypt looking toward the oil-producing lands of the Arabian Peninsula for help with a long-term strategy that will emphasize Arab political and economic pressure against Israel rather than war, was underscored by the limited steps taken to implement the merger between Libya and Egypt which came into effect Sunday.

Sadat's normally outspoken partner in the proposed merger, Col. Muammar Khadafy, has been silent since returning to Tripoli Wednesday night after reluctantly agreeing to a declaration of unity that fell far short of the instant total fusion of the two Arab states that the stridently-hawkish young Libyan wanted.

Libya nationalized 51 per cent of the holdings of all foreign oil companies Saturday.

The decree affects the Amoseas Oil Co., jointly owned by Texaco and Standard Oil of California, as well as all other companies operating in Libya, including Esso Standard and Royal Dutch Shell.

Sadat's turn to the oil-rich king instead of to the oil-rich colonel suddenly makes Faisal the key figure in the Arab confrontation with Israel, and moves Egypt still further

Tokyo: A City on the Verge of Total Collapse

TOKYO (Reuter) — A total collapse of city life is predicted for Japan if current migration to urban areas continues unabated for another decade.

The government's economic planning agency has urged emergency measures to prevent further population concentration.

And, with Tokyo nearing the bursting point, it has strongly recommended the government consider moving the national capital elsewhere.

Unless something is done, the agency said, living conditions in 1985 are "likely to be very miserable."

The housing shortage will become more acute, pollution will get worse, traffic jams will be monumental, garbage will pile up in the streets with no way of disposal, and water will be in short supply, as it is now due to a prolonged drought.

The Tokyo sprawl has reached out from the original 23 wards of the metropolitan area into three surrounding prefectures, swallowing up former satellite towns.

The agency said this Tokyo monster will probably have a population of 38 million by 1985 — 31 per cent of the national total — if the present rate of urban migration continues.

It studied three urban conglomerations — Tokyo and the two western Japanese concentrations around Nagoya and Osaka, now virtually joined.

The agency found 43.9 per cent of Japan's estimated 105 million people are concentrated in the three areas.

It expects this percentage to increase to 56 per cent — about 68.6 million people — by 1985.

The demand for public utilities, housing, schools and transportation imposed by that mass of people would exceed capability and contribute to the collapse of city life.

The agency said a decent living standard could only be guaranteed if the population inflow to the three areas is not only stopped but reversed.

One suggestion is to transfer institutions of higher learning to the countryside to draw away the young people who are the main migrants from rural areas.

Another is a revival of the idea that the government move to a new location.

The economic planning agency study is part of a review of an over-all national development plan formulated in 1969.

Some experts say this ambitious plan to turn Japan in the world's most closely-knit economic society has run into trouble because the government seriously underestimated the growth rate.

It also ran into problems from a public suddenly aware of the deteriorating environment, and opposed as a result to some of the industrial expansion plans.

NEWS BRIEFS

Cash Talks Set

PARIS (UPI) — Financial experts from 20 leading Western nations arrived in Paris Tuesday for talks on restructuring the world money system. Conference sources said the experts were optimistic of their chances of success because of the recent stabilization of the U.S. dollar on international money markets.

Fun for Surfers

GALVESTON, Tex. (UPI) — Daredevil surfers took advantage Monday of the high waves whipped up in advance of tropical storm Delia, but Labor Day vacationers and coastal residents fled the beachfronts today as the storm bore down on the Texas coast.
